Rowing.

YALE VS. HARVARD—'VARSITY EIGHTS.

YALE and Harvard eights have rowed forty-three races, beginning in 1852 on Lake Winnipiseogee at two miles. In 1855 the course was changed to Springfield and lengthened to three miles. Lake Quinsigamond was the scene for nine years, and Lake Saltoussall for 1869. After an interval of seven years the crews in 1876-77 went to Springfield, Mass., when the four-mile course was inaugurated. In 1878 the crews changed again to New London, Ct. The records:

Battenberg Cup Race—During the Hudson-Fulton Celebration at New York, September 25-October 2, the fifth contest for the Battenberg Cup for cutter crews was held. The trophy was won by the U. S. S. Minnesota twelve-oared crew, with the U. S. S. Louisiana crew second and British cruiser Drake crew third. The race, which is an international classic, was rowed for three miles along a course parallel with the line of the international fleet anchored in the Hudson for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. It was a close struggle between the two American crews, the tars of the Minnesota beating the crew of the Louisiana by a bare half length. The Drake's crew finished nine lengths behind. These three were the only contestants. This was the fifth contest for the Battenberg Cup since it was presented to the enlisted men of the American Atlantic fleet by the enlisted men of the British cruisers Drake, Cornwall, Berwick, Essex, Bedford and Cumberland, which comprised the squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg, which visited the United States in 1905. It was won twice by the battleship Illinois, once by the British cruiser Argyll and once by the Louisiana.

Hockey.

HOCKEY continued to gain in popularity as a winter sport during 1908-09 season. New artificial ice rinks were opened in several cities in the United States and the game was played by more club and college teams than in any previous year. The New York Athletic Club won the American Amateur Hockey League Championship without a defeat. The same team also defeated the Victorias, of Montreal, claimants of the Canadian Amateur Championship. Harvard won the Intercollegiate League title and defeated several Canadian college and A. A. H. L. teams in addition to the regular scheduled games of the league. During the winter the Montreal Wanderers, holders of the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the World's Hockey Championship, defeated the all-star Edmonton team, but later lost cup and title to the Ottawa professional seven by an 8 to 3 score. The new Sir Allen trophy, emblematic of the Canadian amateur championship, was won by Queen's College seven.

Basket Ball.

THE disbanding of the Eastern Intercollegiate League left the championship of 1909 undecided. Both Columbia and Pennsylvania claimed the honor. Columbia won every game but one on her schedule, breaking even in two games with Pennsylvania. The latter team won 18 out of 24 games played. The University of Chicago five, winner of the conference title, refused to play either team for the National Intercollegiate title, claiming that there was question as to which should represent the East. The New England Intercollegiate League championship was won by the Williams College team, with Brown and Wesleyan tied for second place. The records of the leading college teams follow, the scores of the college classified coming first:

Sunday World Field Days.

THE Sunday World Public School Field Days were inaugurated in 1906. In the Spring of that year 100 grammar schools in New York City held individual sets of field day games. This great series of athletic meets, in which nearly 20,000 boys competed, was planned by the Sunday World, which also gave the prizes. The games were under the direction of the New York Public Schools Athletic League. The programme of each meet consisted of individual and relay races, jumping and weight throwing.

In the Spring of 1907, 100 schools again had these field days. The boys then competed in classes according to their weight as follows: 80-pound class, 95-pound class, 115-pound class, unlimited (heavy) weight class.

In 1908, the third year of the Sunday World Field Days, the number of schools holding these athletic meets was increased to 114. Twenty-five thousand boys competed in the games for the Sunday World prizes that year.

The great and growing popularity of these athletic games in the New York schools was best evidenced in 1909, when 147 schools had Sunday World Field Days. At these 147 meets 33,480 boys competed in the games, and more than 1,200 teachers served as Field Day officials. More than a quarter of a million school children were spectators of the athletic contests. Three thousand, two hundred and forty boys won Sunday World medals in these games. Some of the separate school meets of 1909 were of unprecedented size, almost the entire grammar grade enrolment of the school being entered for the games. School No. 83, Manhattan, had 1,252 actual competitors in its Sunday World Field Day meet; School No. 62, Manhattan, 1,083; School No. 109, Manhattan, 721; School No. 43, Brooklyn, 642; School No. 145, Brooklyn, 565; School No. 75, Manhattan, 532. These figures indicate the astonishing growth and interest that these games have attained in the schools.

In the Fall of each year that the New York schools have held the Sunday World Field Days there has been a grand final meet of the entire series of the year's games, in which representatives of all the schools that had these field days during the year have been entitled to participate. In 1909 this great meet was held on October 9 at the American League Baseball Park, One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway. Fifteen hundred boys participated in the games; 20,000 spectators occupied the bleachers and grandstand. Sunday World gold, silver and bronze medals were given as first, second and third prizes in all the sixteen events on the programme, which included four relay races. Following are the winners of the gold medals:

Yachting.

THERE was a marked improvement in yacht racing during the season of 1909 as compared with that of the preceding year. Many new boats were seen in competition and some remarkable sailing races and records resulted from the many events scheduled. The most important feature was the international races between the American and German sander boats, off Marblehead, Mass., for the cup offered by President Taft, which was won by the American yacht Joyette. Important race results follow:

New York to Bermuda race, 670 miles, June 5-8—Won by Margaret, G. S. Runk; corrected time, 73h. 51m. 12s. Crusader II., E. Palmer, 77h. 37m. Amorita, W. L. Baum, 78h. 19m. 15s. The Amorita's elapsed time, 78h. 19m. 15s., is a new record for the race.

New York to Block Island, 100 miles, June 19-20—Won by sloop Nutmeg, A. C. Jones; corrected time, 11h. 52m. 30s.; elapsed, 13h. 34m. 30s. Sloop Dutchess, J. B. Palmer, won time prize.

Cape May ocean race for Coker cup, 325 miles, July 3-5—Won by schooner Tammany, W. C. Towne, Brooklyn Y. C., on corrected time, 39h. 01m. 03s. Schooner Eclipse, L. J. Callahan, finished first, elapsed time, 39h. 43m.

Ocean challenge cup, City Island to Vineyard Lightship, to Gravesend Bay, 285 miles, July 3-5—Won by Victory, H. A. Jackson, Jr. Time—52h. 38m. 45s.

Astor and King Edward cup races off Newport, R. I., August 6-7. Astor schooner cup race, 38 miles—Won by Elmira, F. F. Brewster, in 5h. 06m. 59s. Sloop cup—Won by Avenger, A. S. Cochran, in 5h. 02m. 54s. King's cup, 38 miles—Won by Istalena, G. M. Pyncheon, in 5h. 06m. 25s. Previous winners: 1906, sloop Effort, F. F. Smith; 1907, schooner Queen, J. R. Maxwell; 1908, sloop Avenger, A. S. Cochran.

Rudder cup race, Charlotte to Rochester, Lake Ontario, 290 miles, August 12-14—Won by Virginia, W. J. Graham.

Lipton cup race for 22-footers at Chicago, August 14-17—Won by Spray, F. A. Price, Chicago Y. C., which captured two out of three races, winning with a percentage of 266.6.

Taft cup, German-American sander race—Won by Joyette, owned by Commodore W. H. Childs, Bensonhurst Y. C., Brooklyn. Governor Draper cup—Won by Ellen, owned by C. P. Curtis, Eastern Y. C. The races were sailed off Marblehead, Mass., August 30-September 7. The American boats were Wolf, owned by C. Loring, Boston; Joyette and Ellen, selected from nineteen competing sander class yachts. The German yachts were Hevella, Sechund II. and Margarethe. Six races were sailed. The results follow: First race, Joyette; second race, Ellen; third race, Hevella; fourth race, Joyette; fifth race, Ellen; sixth race, Joyette.

Thompson cup and Atlantic yacht race week, September 1-6—cup for 22-footers—Won by Princess, F. G. Stewart, two out of three races at 12, 11½ and 12 miles.

Manhasset Bay challenge cup, September 8-9—Windward, Indian Harbor Y. C., defender, defeated Naulahka, American Y. C., in two races at 16 and 20½ miles. Time—First race, Windward, 4h. 23m. 31s.; Naulahka, 4h. 24m. 29s. Second race, Windward, 3h. 49m. 24s.; Naulahka, 3h. 50m. 44s.

Polo.

AMERICAN POLO CUP MATCH.

The feature of the year in polo was the winning of the American Polo Cup by the Meadow Brook (Long Island) Polo team in England. The international trophy had been held by the Hurlingham Club of England since 1886, when the British club captured the cup in a series of games at Newport, R. I. The American team which brought the trophy back to this country was composed of Lawrence Waterbury Harry Payne Whitney, Devereux Milburn and J. M. Waterbury, Jr. The series called for best two out of three games and the American team won in straight matches. The first contest was played June 23 and resulted in a victory for Meadow Brook, 9 to 5. The second and final game was played July 5 and went to Meadow Brook, 8 to 2. The total score for the two games was: Meadow Brook, 17; Hurlingham, 7.

Rogue.

THE National Rogue tournament was held at Norwich, Ct., August 16-23. The tourney was largely attended and was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The results in the three divisions were as follow. Games won and lost:

First Division—Bosworth, 11-3; E. Clark, H. Clark, 9-5; Wahly, MacDonald and Hogeland, 8-6; Browning, King, Webb, 6-8; Robinson, Baker, 4-10; Edmunds, 3-11; Jacobus, 1-13.

Second Division—Kirk, 9-2; Seele, Felton, 8-3; Baldwin, Whitaker, 7-4; William-son, 6-5; Thompson, Goldley, 5-6; Wahly, Dudley, 4-7; Webb, 2-9; Ewer, 1-10.

Third Division, deciding game—P. Chase defeated W. Sullivan. H. Boswick defeated E. Clarke in the series for the Van Winckle Medal, making the third year he has captured the trophy.

Billiards and Pool.

BILLIARDS.

THERE have been but two match contests for the world's championship of 18.1 balk line billiards since March 14, 1908, and in each the championship changed hands. The only 18.2 match entailed a forfeiture, Jacob Schaefer to George Sutton, because of the illness of Schaefer. There was no match at all for the world's championship of 18.2 after March 27, 1908. Since November, 1908, the three-cushion championship has changed hands only once, and the ball-pool championship thrice. Four of the five emblems contended for in connection with these championships were the gift of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company. The fifth is the Lambert Trophy, and symbolizes the three-cushion series, wherein that company, as in the other three, are official stakeholders and final arbiters.

World's Championship at 18.1, Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, New York, January 26, 1909—George F. Slosson, challenger, 500—56—8.62, defeated George Sutton, 328—51. Same hall and terms, June 2—George Sutton, challenger, 500—70—12.82; G. F. Slosson, champion, 201—26.

World's Championship at 18.2—Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, March 22 to April 2, 1909, third tournament of this series. Twenty-one games of 500 points, ties not played off.

A. G. Cutler	3	103	21.74	14.88

Slosson challenged at once, but by agreement with Morningstar withdrew the challenge a few days afterward, and in the following July Morningstar resigned the championship. There being no challenge pending, this closed the third series precisely as W. F. Hoppe closed the second, by resigning after defeating Sutton on March 27, 1908. A few weeks later, in Chicago, Sutton and Hoppe played a game of three nights, announced as for the world's championship at 18.2, which Sutton won.

Amateur Championship 18.2, played at the Liederkranz Club, New York, April, 1909:

	W.	L.	H.R.	G.Av.		W.	L.	H.R.	G.Av.
H. A. Wright	4	0	85	14 46-111	J. Mayer	2	2	86	8 30-137

C. Jackson	2	2	75	10 72-124

In the play off of the triple tie Conklin won second place and Jackson defaulted third place to Mayers.

THREE-CUSHION CHAMPIONSHIPS.

This changed hands three times in the first six matches, and twice since these pages last chronicled. On May 7, 8, 9, 1908, John Daly, who had won it from H. P. Cline, by 150 to 133, held it, by 150 to 142, against John Horgan, but lost it in October, by 118 to 150, to Thomas Hueston, from whom Alfredo De Oro took it, by 150 to 107, on December 7, 8, 9. Those first four matches were all in St. Louis. That in New York on February 10, 11, 12, 1909, in which De Oro defeated H. B. Lean by 150 to 103, was the first elsewhere; next was in Chicago on May 20, 21, 22, when 150 to 148 gave De Oro his second victory over Hueston; and the seventh of the series was played in New York November 4, 5, 6, when John Daly scored 119 to De Oro's 150. The St. Louis game between De Oro and Hueston showed the only runs above 8 and 6 (De Oro's 11 and Hueston's 10), and the two De Oro-Hueston games the highest averages—about .75 and about .67, both De Oro's.

BALL-POOL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Third match contest of new series, St. Louis, November 16, 17, 18, 1908—Alfredo De Oro, champion, 436 to the 600 of Thos. Hueston, challenger. Fourth match, Chicago, March 31 to April 3, 1909—Charles Weston, challenger, 800 to Hueston's 763. Fifth match, Pittsburgh, May 12, 13, 14, 15—Weston 600 to the 531 of H. B. Lean, challenger. Sixth match, Kansas City, Mo., October—John Kling, challenger, 800 to Weston's 789.

BEST RECORD AVERAGES.

Professional—100 at 18.2, George Sutton, New York, 1906; 40 at 18.1, Jacob Schaefer, Chicago, 1898; 10 at straight cushion-caroms, J. Schaefer, New York, 1883; 37.97, at Champion's Game, G. F. Slosson, Paris, 1882.
Amateur—57.14 at 14.2, Calvin Demarest, Chicago, 1908; 33.33 at 18.2, Lucien Rerolle, Paris, 1903.

BEST RECORD RUNS.

Professional—307 at 18.2, W. F. Hoppe, Chicago, 1906; 139 at 18.1, Jacob Schaefer, New York, 1899; 246 at 8.2, Maurice Vignaux, Chicago, 1883, when record balkline was first played; 185 at straight cushion-caroms, F. C. Ives, Boston, 1906; 398, Champion's Game, Paris, 1882; 802, conceded record at modern English billiards, H. W. Stevenson, London, England, about 1905. [Both in this country and abroad, runs all the way from 566 almost to 150,000, and others that were records in one land or another, if they were worthy at all, have been made by methods quickly barred.]
Amateur—175 at 18.2, L. Rerolle, Paris, 1908; 202 at 14.2, Calvin Demarest, Chicago, 1908.

Cricket.

PROMINENT among the cricket features of 1909 was the fourth visit of the Gentlemen of Ireland to the United States and Canada, during which they played seven games, winning three (Toronto, New York, Baltimore), drawn two (Ottawa, Colts of Philadelphia), lost two (Gentlemen of Philadelphia). G. A. Morrow lead in the batting averages and W. H. Napper in the bowling. Other features were:

The thirty-fifth annual cricket match between All-Philadelphia, representing the United States and Canada, played at Montreal, August 23-24, resulted in a victory for Canada by 143 runs; Canada, 156, 194; United States, 85, 122.

The Metropolitan District Cricket League defeated the New Jersey State League twice and their game against the Connecticut Cricket Association also resulted in a victory. The two games against All-Philadelphia ended in defeats for New York.

The Belmont Club won the Halifax Cup in Philadelphia. A team from Philadelphia visited Jamaica (B. W. I.), playing 6, won 4, lost 1, drawn 1. J. R. Congers headed the batting averages and H. V. Horden the bowling.

CRICKET—Continued.

BEST SCORES IN CRICKET.

H. Livingstone, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, established a record for the United States by scoring three consecutive centuries in one week in a tournament held in Chicago during August, 1907. A similar feat was performed by H. N. R. Corbett in Canada in a tournament held in Vancouver, British Columbia, in August, 1906.

H. V. Hordern, of the University of Pennsylvania, established a record for the United States and Canada by securing 213 wickets during 1907.

A. C. MacLaren scored 424 for Lancashire vs. Somerset at Taunton, Eng., July, 1895, the record in a first-class match. A. E. J. Collins, playing at Clifton, June, 1889, for Clarke's House vs. North Town, scored 628 not out, the record in any match. Melbourne University scored 1,094 against Essendon at Melbourne, 1898, the highest authenticated record. In a match between A. E. Stottart's English team and New South Wales 1,739 runs were scored, a record in first-class cricket. The longest partnership on record was 623 by Captain Oates and Private Fitzgerald, First Royal Munster Fusiliers vs. Army Service Corps at Cunagh, 1895.

Best records in the United States and Canada are: G. S. Patterson's eleven, playing against A. M. Woods's eleven at Philadelphia, scored 889. J. B. King scored 344 not out for Belmont vs. Merion Team B in 1906. W. Robertson, 206 not out, and A. G. Sheath, 118 not out, scored 340 runs in partnership without the loss of a wicket at San Francisco in 1894. Smallest score was Americus, 0, vs. Roseville at Guttenburg, N. J., in 1897. Largest score in the Metropolitan District Cricket League Championship, New Jersey Athletic Club, 385 for five wickets, vs. Manhattan, at Bayonne, N. J., 1897. Smallest score in the same series, Crescent Athletic Club, 4, against the New Jersey Athletic Club, 1896. J. Wisden, bowling for George Parr's English eleven vs. United States and Canada's twenty-two, in 1859, at Rochester, secured six wickets in six consecutive balls.

Chess.

THE sudden rise to fame of Jose R. Capablanca, chess champion of Cuba, who came to New York to take a course in Columbia University, was the chief event of 1909. By one bound this young star took his place in the first rank of the world's masters. This he achieved by means of a one-sided defeat of F. J. Marshall, of Brooklyn, the international player, who in his time has won many important laurels. This match began at the Ansonia Chess Club, the Staten Island Club, and at Morristown, N. J.; Scranton, Pa., and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., winding up on June 23 with a score of 8 games to 1 in favor of Capablanca, with 14 drawn. Prior to that match Capablanca toured all parts of the country under the management of the American Chess Bulletin with brilliant success, making a record of 720 games played, of which he won 686, drew 20 and lost only 14. The greatest number he played at any one time was forty-nine in a simultaneous exhibition in Pittsburgh. The international tournament in St. Petersburg resulted in a tie between Dr. E. Lasker, world's champion, and A. Rubinstein, Russian champion. The annual intercollegiate cable match played at Princeton was won by the American students, but in the Anglo-American match by cable victory rested with the British, who recovered the Sir George Newnes trophy. The principal tournaments of the year with results follow:

Seventeenth Intercollegiate Tournament—New York, December 21-23, 1908. Won by Princeton (for the first time), with a team total of 7½ to 4½; Harvard, 6½ to 5¼; Columbia, 5½ to 6¼; Yale, 4½ to 7½. The winning team was L. W. Stephens, of Brooklyn, captain; J. W. Alexander and J. L. Tiemann, of Manhattan, and H. R. Ferger, of Nashville, Tenn. Harvard has won the annual tournament 9 times, Columbia 6 and Yale and Princeton each once.

Tenth Triangular College Chess League Tournament—New York, December 28-31, 1908. Won by Pennsylvania, with a team total of 7 to 1; Cornell, 3½ to 4½; Brown, 1½ to 6¼. W. H. Hughes and N. T. Whitaker, both of Philadelphia, played for Pennsylvania. The tournament has been won 5 times by Cornell, 4 times by Pennsylvania, and in 1906 there was a tie between Pennsylvania and Brown. The last contest gave Pennsylvania permanent possession of the second Isaac L. Rice trophy, the first having been won by Cornell.

Marshall-Jaffe Match—Rice C. C., February 1-12; score: Marshall, 4; Jaffe, 2; drawn, 3.

Club Team Matches—February 12. Rice C. C., 9½; Brooklyn C. C., 6½; March 13. Rice C. C., 12; Brooklyn C. C., 4; May 30, Manhattan C. C., 8; Franklin C. C., 8.

N. Y. S. C. A. Meeting—New York, February 20 and 22—Championship won by C. S. Howell, of Brooklyn; general tournament won by S. H. Childs, Columbia, and A. Aaronson (tie), New Jersey tournament won by G. H. Koehler, of Newark; Pennsylvania, W. P. Shipley, Philadelphia; New England, G. H. Walcott, Boston.

St. Petersburg Masters' Tournament—February and March. Winners: Dr. E. Lasker and A. Rubinstein (tied for first and second); 3 and 4, O. Duras and R. Spielmann; 5, Dr. O. S. Bernstein; 6, R. Teichmann; 7, Dr. J. Perlis; 8, 9 and 10 (tie), E. Cohn, S. Salwe and C. Schlechter.

Anglo-American Cable Match—March 26-27.

Lacrosse.

THE United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse League championship tournament for 1909 resulted in a victory for Johns Hopkins University team in the Southern Division, while Harvard and Columbia tied for first place in the Northern Division. The final standing of both sections with games won and lost follows: Northern Division—Harvard, 2-1; Columbia, 2-1; Hobart, 1-2; Cornell, 1-2. Southern Division—Johns Hopkins, 3-0; Strathmore, 2-1; Stevens, 1-2; Lehigh, 0-3.

Winners in former years since formation: Northern—Harvard, 1905; Cornell, 1906-7; Harvard, 1908. Southern—Swarthmore, 1905. Johns Hopkins, 1905-6-7-8.

The final standing of the seven clubs in the National Amateur Lacrosse Union of Canada found the Montreal and Shamrock teams tied for first place as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.		Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Montreal	9	3	.750	Cornwall	5	7	.416
Shamrocks	9	3	.750	National	3	9	.250
Toronto	8	4	.666	Capital	2	10	.166
Tecumseh	6	6	.500

The tie was played off at Montreal on October 9 and the Montreal Club clinched the championship by a decisive victory, 5 to 1.

OTHER IMPORTANT MATCHES.

The Westminster team, holders of the Minto Cup, emblematic of the World's Lacrosse Championship, successfully defended the trophy against the Regina Club at New Westminster, B. C., on May 21 and 25. The first game was won by a 6 to 4 score and the second 12 to 2.

Oxford and Cambridge played their seventh annual contest at Oxford, England, on March 9. The contest was won by Cambridge, by an 8 to 6 score. The result by years follows: Cambridge, 1903, 4, 5, 6 and 9; Oxford, 1907, 8.

Baseball.

THE sensational struggle between the Pittsburgh team, winners of the National League Pennant, and Detroit, the American League champions, proved a fitting climax to the 1909 baseball season. It required the playing of the full seven games of the series before Pittsburgh was able to capture the premier honors in America's national sport. All former attendance and receipt records were broken in the series. The summaries:

At Pittsburgh, October 8. Pittsburgh—4 runs, 5 hits, 0 errors. Detroit—1 run, 6 hits, 4 errors. Batteries—Pittsburgh, Adams and Gibson. Detroit, Mullin and Schmidt.
 At Pittsburgh, October 9. Detroit—7 runs, 9 hits, 3 errors. Pittsburgh—2 runs, 5 hits, 1 error. Batteries—Detroit, Donovan and Schmidt. Pittsburgh, Camnitz, Willis and Gibson.
 At Detroit, October 11. Pittsburgh—8 runs, 10 hits, 3 errors. Detroit—6 runs, 10 hits, 5 errors. Batteries—Pittsburgh, Maddox and Gibson. Detroit, Summers, Willett, Work and Schmidt.
 At Detroit, October 12. Detroit—5 runs, 8 hits, 0 errors. Pittsburgh—0 runs, 5 hits, 6 errors. Batteries—Detroit, Mullin and Stange. Pittsburgh, Lefield and Philippe.
 At Pittsburgh, October 13. Pittsburgh—8 runs, 10 hits, 2 errors. Detroit, 4 runs, 6 hits, 1 error. Batteries—Pittsburgh, Adams and Gibson. Detroit, Summers, Willis and Stange, Schmidt.
 At Detroit, October 14. Detroit—5 runs, 10 hits, 3 errors. Pittsburgh—4 runs, 7 hits, 3 errors. Batteries—Detroit, Mullin and Schmidt. Pittsburgh, Willis, Camnitz, Philippe and Gibson.

FEATURES OF 1909 BASEBALL.

According to the official figures of the two major leagues, the total attendance in 1909 was 7,978,108. The New York Nationals led with 783,700. The Philadelphia Americans were second with 674,915 and the Boston Americans third with 608,965. The total American League attendance was 3,740,570, and the National League 3,637,538. The year's attendance by cities in the American League follows: Philadelphia, 674,915; average, 10,545. Boston, 608,965; average, 10,618. New York, 501,700; average, 7,963. Detroit, 490,490; average, 6,428. Chicago, 478,400; average, 6,553. St. Louis, 366,274; average, 5,466. Cleveland, 354,627; average, 5,066. Washington, 205,199; average, 3,309.

National League—New York, 783,700; average, 12,439. Chicago, 633,480; average, 9,316. Pittsburgh, 534,950; average, 7,430. St. Louis, 441,100; average, 6,583. Cincinnati, 424,643; average, 6,338. Brooklyn, 321,300; average, 5,020. Philadelphia, 303,117; average, 4,737. Boston, 195,188; average, 3,093.

The unassisted triple play made by Neal Ball, Cleveland shortstop, on July 19, at Cleveland, is the first undisputed play of the kind ever made in the major leagues. Wagner, of Boston, in the second inning, singled to centre. Stahl bunted safely. McConnell hit on a line to Ball, the two base runners having sprinted on the pitch. Ball leaped in the air, caught the ball cleanly, retiring McConnell, took two steps and touched second base, retiring Wagner, and then ran three steps more and touched Stahl, who had not been given a chance to turn and run back toward first base. For this play a gold medal was presented to Ball. The unassisted triple plays recorded to date are as follows: May 8, 1878, Paul Hines, of Providence; August 18, 1902, Harry O'Hagan, of Rochester, at Jersey City; June 10, 1904, Larry Schafley, at Portland, Ore.; September 6, 1906, Murch, at New Bedford, Mass. Hines's play has always been a subject of dispute.

All professional records for extra inning games were broken on May 31, when the Bloomington and Decatur clubs of the I. I. League played a 26-inning game. Decatur won by a 2 to 1 score. The play required almost 5 hours, of which 28 minutes was deducted for rain. Batteries were: Clark and Langdon for Bloomington; Burns and Fisher for Decatur. Hits—Bloomington, 12; Decatur, 10. Errors—Bloomington, 1; Decatur, 3.

There was not a single no-hit game pitched in either big league during the season, but shut-out games were numerous. One hundred and forty-five were registered in the American League; 132 in the National. The one-hit games of the season follow: American League—April 14, Mullin (Detroit) vs. Chicago; April 22, Coombs (Philadelphia) vs. Boston; June 8, Joss (Cleveland) vs. Philadelphia; June 20, Walsh (Chicago) vs. Cleveland; July 31, Burns (Chicago) vs. Washington; August 28, Gray (Washington) vs. Chicago; September 11, Brockett (New York) vs. Washington. National League—April 25, Camnitz (Pittsburgh) vs. Cincinnati; June 28, Reulbach (Chicago) vs. Cincinnati; July 10, Fromme (Cincinnati) vs. Brooklyn; July 12, Camnitz (Pittsburgh) vs. New York; July 28, Pastorius (Brooklyn) vs. Philadelphia; July 31, Wiltse (New York) vs. Pittsburgh; August 1, Brown (Chicago) vs. Philadelphia; September 14, Brown (Chicago) vs. Cincinnati; September 18, Willis (Pittsburgh) vs. Brooklyn.

The following is a short chronology of the records that were made during the campaign of 1909 in the major leagues:

Largest number of strikeouts in nine-inning game: National League—Nap Rucker, Brooklyn, 16, against St. Louis, July 24, at Brooklyn. American League—Tom Hughes, formerly of Washington, 12, made against Cleveland on July 9.

Bases on balls, nine-inning game, 12—Eddie Karger, formerly of Cincinnati, against Boston, May 12. Players who have made five hits in one game—Grant, of Philadelphia Nationals, April 28, against Brooklyn; Wagner, Pittsburgh, May 3, against Chicago; Clarke, Pittsburgh, June 11, against Brooklyn; Bransfield, Philadelphia Nationals, June 13, against St. Louis; Grant, Philadelphia Nationals, October 2, against New York; Hartzell, St. Louis Americans, August 13, against Philadelphia; Engle, New York Americans, September 4, against Boston.

Football.

DURING the Autumn of 1909 football as an intercollegiate sport was played in all parts of the country. Immense gatherings witnessed the principal games of the year, the record attendance being at the Harvard-Yale game at Cambridge, Mass., November 20, when 40,000 spectators watched the play. There were a number of serious accidents to players, some of which resulted in deaths, and in several instances college teams were refused the privilege of completing their schedules as a result. The records of the leading college elevens of the various sections follow, the score of the indexed team being given first in each case:

IMPORTANT CYCLING EVENTS OF 1908-9.

Georges Parent won the 100-kilometre world's professional paced championship, at Copenhagen, Denmark, August 15, 1909, in 1h. 35m. 45 2-5s. Paul Guignard holds the record made at Munich, September 15, 1909, in the time of 59m. 1s. Guignard also holds the 1 hour professional paced record, made the same time and place, of 63 miles, 199.8 yards. At Munich, Guignard on July 23, 1909, rode 31 miles, 1,198 yards in the half hour—a record.

The amateur 1 hour motor-paced record is 56 miles, 1,128 yards, and was made by Francois Cuzin, at Munich, September 30, 1909. Cuzin completed 100-kilometres in 1h. 5m. 45 2-5s. Leon Meredith won the 100-kilometre amateur paced championship, for the fifth consecutive time, at Copenhagen, August 19, 1909, in 1h. 39m. 8 4-5s.

Arthur Van der Stuyft made 2-hour paced record at Leipsic, Germany, Oct. 11, 1908, at 106 miles, 1,498 yards.

Six-day team race held in Madison Square Garden, December, 1908, MacFarland-Moran, 2737-1; (new record:) Rutt-Stol, 2737-1; Hill-De Mara, 2737-0; Walthour-Root, 2737-0; Collins-Mitten, 2736-9; Galvin-Wiley, 2736-8; Anderson-Vanoni, 2736-4; Palmer-Drobach, 2723-4.

(Compiled by R. F. Kelsey, Chairman Board of Control, National Cycling Association.)

Motorcycle Racing.

ACCORDING to the competition rules of the Federation of American Motorcyclists as adopted September 14, 1909, no record shall be accepted or recognized which is made on any motorcycle having an engine of greater piston displacement than 61 cubic inches (1,000 cubic centimetres). The distances officially recognized for speed records are one kilometre and one mile, and afterward by miles up to and including a distance of 25 miles. Above 25 miles and including 100 miles the official distances recognized for speed records will be those which are multiples of five, thus, 30, 35, 40, 45, etc. Above 100 miles the distances officially recognized for speed records will be the distances covered by hundreds of miles and by the hour. Only the following records made with a standing start will be recorded—the standing kilometre and the standing mile. All other record distances shall be negotiated from a flying start.

Automobile Races and Records.

There was a marked increase in the popularity of automobile racing in 1909, and several specially constructed motodromes marked a new era in the sport. On these immense cement race-courses at Indianapolis and Atlanta new records were established at a number of distances. Road racing also obtained a more important place in automobilism and attracted thousands of spectators. The principal events follow:

The American Turf.

The conditions which governed racing on the Metropolitan tracks about New York and at Saratoga during 1909 did not show much improvement over the previous year. Anti-betting legislation and invasion of European tracks by some of the largest American racing stables all combined to lessen interest in the sport. The regular season's racing schedule of the Jockey Club was adhered to, however, with but one exception, and the 1909 programme carried out with very few alterations. James R. Keene headed the list of winning owners for the year, as he did in 1907 and 1908. His aggregate winnings were $112,586, as against $281,965 for the previous season. S. C. Hildreth was second with $109,230, and R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Montpelier Stable third with $39,410. E. Dugan headed the list of winning jockeys with 110 firsts, 95 seconds and 69 thirds. Jockey Butwell secured second place with 80 firsts, 92 seconds and 47 thirds.

Many American stables sent their best horses to Europe during the year and figured prominently in the racing abroad, prominent among them being H. P. Whitney and H. B. Duryea. The stables of King Edward VII. and Mr. W. Fairie were the leading money winners on English tracks. Mr. Fairie's winnings amounted to $188,595, with the King's stable second with $100,720, although H. P. Whitney's horses won more than thirty races, which was the record for the year in this respect. Frank Wootton was the leading English jockey of the year, with Danny Maher a close second.

Automobile Industry.

In many ways 1909 was the most remarkable year in the history of the automobile industry in the United States. Although it had enjoyed many prosperous seasons none has compared with the one just ended. Anticipating a long period of prosperity the American manufacturers prepared during the Fall of 1908 for an extraordinary demand, many contracting for quick enlargement of their plants, and others for a production limited only by the restrictions of their equipment. As expected, the public demanded cars by the hundreds and thousands. It is a matter of record that as far back as the middle of Summer some of the more popular makes of cars were entirely sold out of their complete production for 1909, and had begun to produce and sell machines of the type that will be known as 1910 models. On October 1 it was estimated that nearly ninety per cent. of manufacturers had brought out their new models for purposes of demonstration.

As compared with the estimated output in American factories of 55,000 cars in 1908, the approximate production for this year (up to November 1) has been in excess of 80,000. For 1910 preparations have been made to build from 175,000 to 200,000 machines, according to the estimates of experts. The projected total, however, will be very greatly cut down through the inability of parts makers to meet the unprecedented demands of the manufacturers. Whatever the number produced there is at present no fear of over-production. Not only are the Eastern States providing a continuously increasing demand for motor cars, but other portions of the country, where automobiles were a rarity a few years back, have become important markets, and are absorbing thousands of machines. Notable in taking up the self-propelled vehicle have been the Pacific Coast States, with California the leader; Texas, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota. The Southeastern States are also being rapidly opened up as automobile markets. There is, in fact, hardly a good-sized town in any part of the country that does not boast at least one agency for automobiles, while every cross-roads hamlet has its gasoline depot for the accommodation of touring cars.

PRODUCTION IN 1909.

Of the approximated production of 80,000 power-driven vehicles in 1909, about 73,000 were gasoline pleasure cars, the remainder depending for propulsion on steam and electricity. The value of these cars was about $135,000,000, as compared with the total of $122,000,000 for the preceding season. Engaged in this enormous trade were from 240 to 300 firms with a total capitalization of more than $115,000,000. The number of employees making a living by the industry was estimated at 125,000, of which a third was engaged in trades allied with the automobile. This includes the manufacture of magnetos, lamps, gas tanks, horns, bodies, and of all other parts of the completed cars known in the trade as accessories.

The year's business emphasized the trend of public demand in the direction of low-powered, medium priced machines. This was natural in view of the entrance in the market of a large class of buyers who had previously looked upon the automobile as a plaything for the wealthy. In the large cities the cars selling above $3,000 found their best market, but in the provincial districts the call was for the smaller machines, running down in price from $3,000 to as low as $500. The big demand for cars selling at moderate prices caused many of the manufacturers who had built only large cars in earlier years to begin the production of a smaller type, claimed generally to be the equal, in material and reliability, of the large machines. These qualities they proved to possess to a remarkable degree, and it is reasonable to anticipate that they will become increasingly popular, and that in time the $5,000 car will become more or less a rarity.

TENDENCIES IN CONSTRUCTION.

The year developed two features of importance as indicating the trend toward standardization in the building of automobiles. This was the practically universal adoption of the magneto as a means of ignition, and the general adoption of the shaft drive in preference to the chain. The latter, in fact, was one of the features of 1908, and the chain had been retained only on a few of the very high-powered cars. The magneto in earlier years was used on the more expensive machines and the battery on those of cheaper manufacture. Now the magneto is being used even on the cheapest cars, either alone or in connection with the storage or dry battery, the two systems ensuring freedom from delays in case one or the other gives out.

The four-cylinder motor holds its place as strongly as in the past and is the accepted type of road engine. It is conceded that the six-cylinder engine gives a smoother running car, and greater ability for hill climbing, but the extra cylinders add to complications in running and added expense of manufacture. While the "six" type has a strong following, and the car to which it is fitted has a more attractive general appearance, the "four" has proved a perfectly satisfactory type for the average user. Advance in construction has been such that few cars of any type ever stall on hills.

COMMERCIAL VEHICLE FIELD.

In the commercial field the taxicab has enjoyed the greatest advance in popularity during the last twelve months. They are to be seen everywhere in all the large cities, and their introduction to the smaller centres of population is going ahead steadily. The number in use in New York has practically doubled in the last twelve months, and is now estimated at 1,500. High charges, claimed generally to be exorbitant, and, at any rate, much greater than for the same accommodation in Europe, have somewhat retarded the advance of the taxicab, and has been, to a certain extent, the subject of municipal regulation in the metropolises.

The larger commercial vehicles, used for heavy and light trucking, are gradually increasing their field, although their progress has not been as great as their utility and economy of operation would seem to warrant. Express companies, department stores, wholesale houses and breweries are steady and appreciative users of the heavy trucks, while for parcel delivery service the light electric wagon, with improved types of storage batteries capable of giving extended runs of 75 and 100 miles without recharging, are becoming popular.

SELDEN PATENT DECISION.

One of the most important features of the year, as affecting the automobile industry, was the decision of Judge Hough, in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, on the famous Selden patent cases, which had been litigated for some years. Judge Hough sustained the patent, holding it valid and infringed, the opinion creating a sensation throughout the country.

Apart from its importance to the automobile industry, the Selden patent litigation was probably the most important "pioneer" patent case ever brought up. Briefly, George B. Selden, of Rochester, N. Y., in 1879, filed with the Patent Office in Washington an application for a patent on a road locomotive of a design substantially the same as that of the present day gasoline automobile. For more than sixteen years, or until 1895, Selden's claim lay in the Patent Office. By that time various American and European constructors had developed and were marketing actual cars, apparently without the slightest knowledge of Selden or his idea, but along lines answering to the description of his claim.

When, in 1895, Selden's patent was issued, it was, to quote Judge Hough, "only useful for tribute." Acting with the Electric Vehicle Company, Selden instituted suits for infringement against various firms and individuals, building, selling or using the machines alleged to infringe. Quite a number of the pioneer manufacturing firms conceded the validity of the patent. They formed an organization known as the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, and have collaborated with Selden in the effort to substantiate the validity of the patent. While deprecating the value of Selden's idea to the industry, Judge Hough decided that "the patent speaks from the day of its issue," and sustained it broadly.

The immediate result of the decision was that six important automobile manufacturing companies, previously on the outside, joined the A. L. A. M. within a few weeks, (up to October 15.) The Ford Motor Company, of Detroit, one of the defendants in the suits, announced through its President, Henry Ford, that the fight to upset the patent would be continued. If the favorable decision is confirmed the A. L. A. M. will become a most powerful factor in the industry with the power virtually to control production. Thus it will be in a position to avert such a calamity as heavy over-production, and in many other ways will be able to conserve the interests of the industry. The Selden patent, however, will expire in 1912, when any one who cares will be at liberty to build gasoline automobiles without regard to patent rights.

HIGH SPEED ROAD CONTESTS.

High speed racing, both on road and track, proved a popular diversion for Americans in 1909. Because of the abandonment of road racing in Europe throughout the year, few, if any, special racing creations were constructed within the limitations laid down by the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs. As a result there was no renewal in America of the race for the Grand Prize, which is governed by the International rules. This contest, initially conducted at Savannah, had been the most important contest of 1908. There were several important road races, however, all catering to stock cars or stock chassis, and of particular interest to prospective purchasers of automobiles, as showing what service they might expect from similar machines bought out of stock.

Tactically acknowledging the inability to gather together specially built racing machines for any sort of a contest, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., donor of the Vanderbilt Cup, changed the conditions of the deed of gift and opened the classic trophy to contest by high-powered stock machines. This race, run simultaneously with two others for minor prizes over a 12.64 mile course on Long Island, including five miles of the Motor Parkway, was considered the most important road contest of the year. The date was October 30, and twenty-five cars competed for the various trophies. The Vanderbilt Cup was won by a six-cylinder American car which averaged a little more than sixty-two miles an hour.

Next in importance were the so-called "National" races on the Merrimack Valley Course at Lowell, conducted jointly by the Lowell Automobile Club and the American Automobile Association. The third, rated according to its importance, was the contest over the tortuous eight mile course in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, in October. It was won by an American built car driven by George Robertson. At Santa Monica and Oakland, Cal., there were other long distance contests in which high speed was maintained. The speed honors for the year, however, were carried off in a race over a 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ -mile circuit at Riverhead, L. I., in September. Conducted by an obscure organization, but with a thoroughly reliable set of officials, this meet proved sensational. An American stock car, selling at \$1,750, covered nearly 200 miles at an average of 70.8-1000 miles an hour. Several others in this race averaged more than a mile a minute.

TRACK RACING POPULAR.

Track racing, including the dangerous sport of contesting over mile ovals, reached its zenith in 1909 in many States thoroughbred courses were pressed into service. Three twenty-four-hour races were given at Brighton Beach, N. Y., in the last of which the winning car established a new world's record of 1,196 miles for the "twice around the clock" journey. Motordromes were built at Indianapolis and Atlanta, in circumference two and a half and two miles, respectively. The first and only meet on the former course was run with the surface in unsafe condition, and several fatal accidents resulted, five or six lives being lost.

A very large number of endurance and reliability tours were held in 1909, all showing the increasing stability of the modern car. The Glidden tour was only a partial success, the entry list being very small. Its route led from Detroit to Kansas City via Denver, a three weeks' journey of more than 2,500 miles. Despite very bad road conditions in the West and a stiff schedule several practically perfect scores were returned. Other important runs were from Washington to Boston and return and New York to Atlanta.

In Europe during 1909 the automobile industry enjoyed a prosperous season. The demand for cars was far below that of America, but production abroad is correspondingly small, and no stagnation resulted. No great races were held, although road contests may be resumed in 1910. The Prince Henry Tour in Germany was the principal event of its kind, a tremendous field taking part. So standardized have cars become on the Continent, and so rapid has been the spread of aviation, that no automobile shows of importance will be held in Paris or other Continental centres this winter. England had its annual show at Olympia, London, in November, and all the principal Continental makers took the opportunity of displaying their new models, making the exhibition one of extreme interest, although few new ideas in construction were brought out.

The make-up of the principal automobile organizations in the United States is as follows:

- AMERICAN AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION,
437 Fifth Avenue, New York City. F. H. Elliott, Secretary.
- ASSOCIATION OF LICENSED AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURERS,
7 East Forty-second Street, Coker F. Clarkson, Assistant General Manager.
- ASSOCIATION PATENTS COMPANY,
7 East Forty-second Street, New York City.
- AMERICAN MOTOR CAR MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION,
505 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Alfred Reeves, General Manager.
- NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURERS, INC.,
7 East Forty-second Street, New York City. S. A. Miles, General Manager.

Chronology of Aviation.

(Compiled by O. Chanute.)

Bewildering advance in aviation took place in 1908 and 1909. When it is remembered that the first successful man flight, landing safely, was made by Wright brothers December 17, 1903, that it took them two years—1904-1905—to obtain entire control over their machine; that the Santos-Dumont flight of 720 feet, November 13, 1906, excited the wonder and admiration of all Europe, we can realize partially the progress made, now that flights of over 100 miles have been made, that a height of 1,600 feet is said to have been attained, that there are hundreds of successful experimenters in the field and that records are being broken every few days.

It would be quite futile to give a compendium of all the flights made in 1909. They number thousands. The profitable thing which can be done is to tabulate the more remarkable performances, and in order to mark the advance, to include therewith the former feats of the same aviator, which excited wonder only one or two years ago. The most interesting of these are prefixed with a star.

The events which have attracted most attention have been the cross-country flight of H. Farman, from Bouy to Reims, 17 miles, without landing, October 30, 1908; of Bleriot, October 31, 1908, from Toury to Artenay and return with landings; of the same man from Etampes to Chevilly, 26 miles, July 13, 1909, and his flight across the British Channel, July 25; the two unsuccessful attempts of Latham to perform the same feat, July 19 and July 27, 1909; the flight of Farman July 23, from Chalons to Suppes, 40 miles; of his flights at Reims of 112 miles August 27, and of 150 miles at Mourmelon, November 3; of Orville Wright at Fort Myer, July 27 and 30; of W. Wright at New York October 4; of Curtiss at Reims August 28-29; of Latham over Berlin September 27 and of de Lambert over Paris October 18, as well as a speed of about 90 miles an hour down wind at Blackpool, attained by Latham October 22, 1909.

These feats have not been accomplished without some deplorable accidents. Several aviators have been killed or injured by the fall of their machines and many of the latter have been smashed. It will be remembered that Lieut. Selfridge was killed at Fort Myer, September 17, 1908. In 1909 Eugene Lefebvre was killed at Juvissart, September 7; on the same day Enea Rossi was killed at Rome while testing a machine of his own invention; while on September 22 the distinguished propagandist of aviation in France, Capt. L. F. Ferber, was killed at Boulogne by an unlucky landing. On December 6 A. Fernandez, a French aviator of Spanish birth, was killed at Nice by the fall of his biplane, similar to Wright's, caused by the explosion of his motor when at a height estimated at 500 metres.

The tendency has been to develop special experts for exhibition flights. Some 200 of their flights, which are thought the more memorable for one reason or another, will be found in the following list:

DIRIGIBLE AIRSHIPS.

During 1909 great activity prevailed in military aeronautics; the principal European nations vying with each other in developing this new war appliance, the use and efficiency of which are not yet very clearly determined. Germany and France made the most progress.

GERMANY.

The popular German subscription to enable Count Zeppelin to continue his work was closed December 24, 1908, having yielded a sum of $1,524,000. With this, the Count has begun building a plant with capacity to turn out eight dirigibles a year; organizing a training school and constructing new war balloons, utilizing parts of those previously wrecked.

The first ship to come out was Zeppelin V. (it was really the sixth), which was subsequently renumbered No. I., and finally, Military No. I. It is of the rigid type, heretofore thoroughly described, is 446 feet long and 42½ feet in diameter, containing 536,000 cubic feet of gas in its 17 separate compartments or balloons. This ship made its first trial ascents March 9, 1909, and went out again March 11, 12, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 22 and 26. On March 12 it rose 4,300 feet above Lake Constance, and on March 19 carried up 26 persons to a height of 1,000 feet. On March 29 it rose to 3,280 feet, or barely out of rifle range. It is said that it must navigate lower than this when loaded with a full crew and fuel (gasoline) for a long journey.

On April 1 the Zeppelin I. started with a crew of 9 persons for a trip to Munich and return, a distance of 222 miles. A gale of wind sprung up and the balloon passed over Munich, went 100 kilometres (62 miles) further and came to anchor for more gas and fuel. Next morning the wind lulled and Count Zeppelin sailed back to Munich, lunched with the Prince Regent of Bavaria, who decorated him, and returned to his shed at Friedrichshafen, having demonstrated his ability to come to anchor in a 35-mile wind, the own inherent speed of the balloon being 28 miles an hour.

On April 5 the Zeppelin I. started out with the intention of remaining up 24 hours, but a wind sprung up and the trip was cut short to 11 hours. On April 6 it was up over 12 hours. This was the nineteenth ascension and trial trip and was said to complete the tests required for acceptance by the Government, but it has been also said that some questions arose and the War Department demanded further tests.

On May 29 the Zeppelin II. left its shed at Manzel, near Friedrichshafen, presumably for Berlin, 433 miles distant. A rain storm came up, but in 21 hours it reached Bitterfeld (86 miles short of Berlin, where the Emperor was waiting) and then, being short of fuel, turned back, sailed southwest and descended near Goepingen, to replenish its tanks. In doing so it ran into a tree and sustained damages which involved 28 hours' delay. A landing had to be made again near Eiberach, about 40 miles from home, to take in more supplies. It left June 2 and reached Friedrichshafen, having been up 47 hours, 30 minutes in the air, and 32 hours 40 minutes at anchor, a total of 80 hours and 10 minutes, travelling a distance variously estimated at 700 to 850 miles.

On June 29 the Zeppelin I., now accepted by the Government and renumbered as Military No. 1, left with its military crew on board for its station at Metz. A storm compelled a landing at Eiberach (some 40 miles), where it remained at anchor till July 3, at which time it rose and sailed to Metz, some 210 miles, in 9 hours and 20 minutes (about 22 miles per hour). Since then it has been performing military evolutions.

The Zeppelin III. made its first ascent at Friedrichshafen on August 25, 1909. On August 27 it set out for Berlin, reaching it August 29, after some breakages of propellers and motors, which required landing for repairs, and was met by the Emperor and the acclamations of 100,000 spectators. It started back that night, broke still another propeller, which tore a hole in one of the compartments, and was back to Friedrichshafen September 2, having covered a total distance of 950 miles with 5 stoppages. On September 11 the Zeppelin III. sailed from Friedrichshafen to Frankfort, 220 miles, in about 17 hours, thus repeating a performance of Zeppelin II. Both of these balloons are of the same size.

During most of their trips the weather proved very bad in Germany; storms sprang up after Zeppelin started; wind, rain and even snow, loading the balloon sometimes with some 2,000 pounds of moisture. The demonstration was made, however, that these vicissitudes could be met and that the balloon could ride at anchor.

It is said that Count Zeppelin has begun the construction of several dirigible balloons to establish at least three lines for regular passenger traffic in Germany, in order to provide commercial craft which may be utilized in case of war. He has also projected an exploration to the North Pole, which was said to have met with approval by the Emperor before the results of the attempts of Peary and of Dr. Cook were known.

While the Zeppelin performances have been much the more important and spectacular, attracting the most attention, other developments have taken place in Germany with different types of dirigible airships, i. e., the Gross or semi-rigid, and the Parseval or non-rigid, sometimes called the flexible type.

The Gross depends for its rigidity upon a framework of steel tubes. The Gross II., of 1908, was 216 feet long, 36 feet diameter and 176,000 cubic feet capacity. It met with some successes and some mishaps, and now belongs to the Government. In 1909 it was used in experiments with wireless telegraphy over Berlin, beginning January 21 and ascending April 10 and 26, May 2, 3, 15 and 23, June 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. On August 4 it journeyed from Tegel to Apolda and return, 290 miles, in 16 hours, and on September 13 it took part in the military manoeuvres but was caught in a tree in landing. On September 17 it manoeuvred in presence of the Emperor. A Gross III. has since been added to the fleet, but very little as to its performances has yet appeared in the press.

The Parseval obtained its rigidity while under way from the internal pressure of the gas. There is no stiffening frame or platform, and thus, in case of need, it can be deflated, folded up and transported by carriage. The Parseval II. is 190 feet long, 30½ feet diameter and 213,000 cubic feet capacity. It was accepted by the Government December 1, 1908. It made many trial trips in 1909 with varying success.

The Parseval III. came out February 19, 1909. It was then 226 feet long, 36 feet diameter and 199,000 cubic feet capacity, since increased to 236,000 cubic feet by an increase in diameter. It made a trial trip from Bitterfeld June 28 and early in August went to the Frankfort Exposition for evolutions, taking up paying passengers. On August 12 its envelope was ripped in landing, but none of the eleven persons aboard were injured. On September 15 its dangling rope caught a college lad by the leg and carried him up, but he was landed at the end of 15 minutes. On September 18 the envelope was torn in landing, but has since been repaired. On November 2 the Parseval II., the Zeppelin II. and the Military Airship No. 1 are said by the newspapers to have manoeuvred jointly in the valley of the Rhine, flying to Coblenz, surprising the garrison, swooping down on the rocky fortress of Ehrenbreitstein opposite and theoretically capturing it. What would have happened in real war is perhaps open to question.

A small military dirigible, called the Clouth, has also been making displays at Frankfort, together with a semi-rigid, the Ruthenberg, which is taking up passengers.

Germany, at last accounts, had three Zeppelins, three Gross and three Parsevals, a fourth of the latter now being built. It has eleven dirigible balloon sheds, while Professor Shulle is said to be building at Mannheim a dirigible still larger than the Zeppelins, in order to obtain greater speed. The frame work is to be of wood and outside of the gas compartments.

The Krupp works have been building and testing special ordnance admitting of high angle fire to shoot at aerial craft in case of war. They expect to get the range by using smoke emitting projectiles.

FRANCE.

At the beginning of 1909 the French Government had three dirigible airships in commission: The Lebaudy, the Villa de Paris and the Republique. The first is the schoolship and it made notable ascents May 15-21 and June 15-24, 1909, camping on occasion in the open air, to train the crew for actual campaigning. The Villa de Paris is stationed at Verdun, some 40 miles west of Metz, and makes trial trips and occasional excursions over the surrounding country. The Republique performed evolutions over the troops at Longchamp, July 14, in company with the Villa de Nancy, repeated on July 19-21. On August 4 it won the "Deutsch prize" by making a trip of 130 miles in 7¼ hours. On September 3 it started to attend the military manoeuvres at La Palisse. After proceeding 120 miles in a rising wind it landed to overhaul an over-heated motor. In so doing it ran into a tree and sprung the frame so badly that it was thought best to deflate. It was transported to La Palisse, repaired and came out again September 13, so as to operate over the troops. On September 15 it made an ascent of 6 hours, covering 60 miles of reconnaissance. On September 25 it started to regain Meudon. After passing Moulins one blade of the propeller broke off, burst wide open the balloon, the latter suddenly collapsed and fell from a height of about 400 feet, instantly killing the whole crew of four men and completely wrecking the dirigible.

The Government dirigible Colonel Renard was completed July, 1909, by the Astra Co. It is 212 feet long and 152,000 cubic feet capacity. It left Beauval August 23 for Reims (62 miles in 1 hour, 32 minutes, with a favorable wind), and there performed evolutions over the aviation field in competition with the Zodiac. On August 29 it won the $2,000 prize for the quickest trip by flying 50 kilometres (31 miles), in 1 hour, 19 minutes. It was estimated that the real distance was 65 kilometres in consequence of losses in veering turns.

The next Government dirigible, Liberte, is 213 feet long, 41 feet diameter and 148,000 cubic feet capacity. It was built at the Lebaudy shops and made its trial trips September 19-20, during which it proved its inherent speed to be 45 kilometres (28 miles) per hour.

The Villa de Bordeaux is the next balloon due to come out, thus providing the French with 5 military dirigible airships.

The Clement-Bayard was built by the Astra Co. for Mr. A. Clement. It is 184 feet long, 35 feet diameter and 133,000 cubic feet capacity. It has proved fast and was finally sold to the Russian Government. On August 23 it more than passed the final tests by rising to 5,000 feet and remaining up two hours. When coming down a gusty wind sprang up and it was deemed judicious to alight on the Seine. In attempting this the envelope was torn by a tree and the balloon deflated. It was fished out slightly damaged, has been repaired and delivered.

The Villa de Nancy is practically a duplicate of the Clement-Bayard and built by the same Astra Co., for the exposition at Nancy, where it operated in July. The Zodiac I., II. and III. are small dirigibles belonging to a private company. No. III. was operated at Rojans during aviation week (August 24-29) together with the Colonel Renard,

RUSSIA.

Russia has now two dirigible military airships, one, the former Clement-Bayard, built by the Astra Co., and one, the Russie, built by the Lebaudys, renamed Lebed. On September 28, 1909, they sailed over St. Petersburg and were acclaimed by the populace. On October 11, 1909, the Spanish military dirigible Espana, built by the Astra Co., began its trial trips, and on October 16 the Austrian dirigible Renner came out, but ran into a tree on October 19.

ENGLAND.

During the year 1909 the British War Department experimented with a small dirigible, only 84 feet long, with no marked success, it preferring to watch the results obtained on the Continent. The Government was sharply criticised by the public and the newspapers, which produced a great scare. The subject was discussed in Parliament and the Minister of War stated that a large Zeppelin was now being constructed and that three dirigible cruisers would be procured. The newspaper, the Morning Post, inaugurated July 21 a subscription and ordered an airship for presentation to the British Government, to be built by the Lebaudys upon severe specifications.

ITALY.

The Italian Government dirigible war balloon No. 1 was rebuilt for 1909. It made its first ascent August 17 and trial trips August 21 and 24, as well as September 3, 16 and 18. Up to that time it had made sixteen ascensions and journeys, a total of 1,280 kilometres (800 miles), in two months of operation. It is one of the fastest among the dirigibles and burns 48 pounds of gasoline per hour. October 21 it made a round trip to Bracciano and on October 31 to Naples and back, 300 miles. On November 1, at Rome, Lieutenant Rosetti, endeavoring to keep back the crowd, was struck by a blade of the propeller and killed.

BELGIUM.

Belgium has a military dirigible, Belgique, built by Godard, 256 feet long and 230,000 cubic feet capacity. Its first trials took place June 28 and it has been operating near Brussels.

UNITED STATES.

The United States have only thus far the small dirigible purchased from Baldwin in 1908. Congress has seemed inclined to await the results of European developments before appropriating large sums for war dirigibles, the efficiency of which is yet undetermined and which seem to meet with many accidents.

Wellman's dirigible balloon America started from Spitzbergen for the North Pole August 15, 1909, with four passengers, but descended in the sea after a few hours, owing to the breaking away of the drag-rope, which contained much of the provisions. All the passengers were saved. It seems doubtful whether the attempt will be repeated now that no less than two explorers claim to have reached the North Pole.

In connection with the Hudson-Fulton celebration, THE NEW YORK WORLD offered a prize of $10,000 for the best time by airship from New York to Albany.

On September 29, T. S. Baldwin and G. L. Tomlinson started from New York in their respective dirigibles. Baldwin had to descend when off Spuyten Duyvil in consequence of the breakage of part of the framework of his car. Tomlinson had to descend at White Plains (22 miles), because of leaks in his motor. THE NEW YORK WORLD has since renewed the offer, open until October 10, 1910, with the elimination of any entrance fee. There are no conditions, except that the trip must be continuous.

BALLOON ASCENTS AND RACES.

It is impracticable to enumerate the many ascents of spherical balloons which took place during 1909 in Europe and America. Notice may, however, be taken of the ascent of the balloon Reve from Bordeaux on February 1, in which Mr. Faure was killed in landing on a precipice; of that of the Gay-Lussac April 4, from St. Cloud to Gouville, in which Mrs. Masson was drowned in alighting in the sea; of that of the Fil-du-Vent May 1, from Paris to the Dauphine Alps, in which Count de la Vaulx had a leg broken in landing; and of that of the Vannolsky, starting from near St. Petersburg, which burst in the air, two of the passengers being killed and a fourth seriously injured.

Notice may also be taken of the more important spherical balloon races in 1909—May 29, from St. Cloud, thirteen starters, won by Leblanc, who landed in the south of France. June 5, from Indianapolis, six starters, won by Mr. Forbes, who travelled 358 miles. August 19, from Peoria, Ill., three starters, won by E. Honeywell and G. E. Smith, who travelled 230 miles. September 26, grand prize Aero Club, from Paris, twenty starters, won by G. Blanchet, 394 miles. October 3, the fourth Gordon Bennett race, from Zurich, seventeen starters, won by E. W. Mix, representing the Aero Club of America (389 miles), thus bringing the cup to this country for a second time. October 4, from St. Louis, ten starters, won by S. Von Phul, 550 miles in 40 hours, 40 minutes.

Some remarkable trips over the Alps took place. On December 31, 1908, Mr. Usuelle, piloting the Ruwenzori, left the Italian lakes and passed over the chain of the Alps, attained a height of 4,500 metres (14,760 feet), and landed at Frejus, France. On February 9, 1909, Mr. O. Erbsloh, the winner of the Gordon Bennett race of 1907, passed over the Alps from St. Moritz, in the Berlin, with three passengers, and landed near Budapest, after a trip of 33 hours, during which a height of 5,800 metres (19,000 feet) was attained. On August 8, Mr. E. Spelterini, the celebrated Swiss aeronaut, ascended from Chamouni in the Sirius with three passengers, passed nearly over Mont Blanc and the Alps and landed near Lake Maggiore (93 miles) in about 7 hours, the maximum altitude attained being 5,700 metres (18,700 feet). The highest elevation attained in a mounted balloon in 1909 was by Italian aeronauts, G. Piacenza and J. Mina, in the balloon Albatross, who on August 9 went up from Turin to a height of 30,350 feet. The previous record is that of Berson and Suring, of 34,450 feet on July 31, 1900.

The greatest height reached by a ballon-sonde was from the Uccle Observatory in Belgium, November 5, 1908, in which the record was 29,040 metres (18 miles), with a temperature of -63.4° C. or -82° F., while the minimum shown at lesser heights was -47° C., or -88° F., thus confirming previous records that atmospheric temperature actually increases slightly after passing a height not yet accurately determined of about seven miles above the sea.

Geographical Research in 1909.

AFRICA.

H. B. Lewin when stationed at Kikoina, Bwekula County, Uganda Province, explored many of the caves in the western part of the province. The Banyora tribe used the caves as places of refuge from the Bagandas, who made raids twice a year to their country. Some of the caves are large enough to hold 200 or 300 people besides cattle. The entrances are usually situated in a ravine and hidden by thick vegetation.

The most painstaking attempt yet made to trace in detail the sources drawn upon by Pliny for his geographical description of Africa has been made by D. Detlefsen and published in Sieglin's Quellen und Forschungen zur Alten Geschichte und Geographie. About fifty paragraphs of Pliny's description are ascribed to Greek and Roman sources and the rest are from a variety of sources; the authors in many cases could not be traced.

Professor Lemoine writing to the Zeitschrift für Gletscherkunde in regards the snow covering the summits of the Western Atlas Mountains, states that the Winter accumulation is only enough to impede travel on the passes from December to April, while few, if any, of the peaks have snow all the year around and none appear to have glaciers or neve fields.

Dr. Chevalier is again exploring Western Africa. The route he has planned will take him to the sources of the Niger River, through the basin of the Cavalla and the southern parts of French Sudan to Dahome.

The German-Portuguese boundary south of the Rovuma River has been settled by a joint commission from the two countries.

Dr. Poch took to South Africa a phonograph, and obtained the peculiar and difficult language of the Kalahari Bushmen. He also had a large cinematograph and among the representations he secured were those of dances imitating the movements of animals, the mode of stealing up to game and shooting poisoned arrows. The conclusions drawn by him from his travels are, (1) there are hardly any tribes left bearing all the characteristics of the Bushmen, they having intermingled with the Hottentots and negroes, (2) the Bushmen have been scattered over immense areas of South Africa.

Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States, spent several months in British East Africa collecting specimens for the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D. C.

Dr. Berson's Aerological expedition to East Africa, organized by the Royal Prussian Aeronaughtical Observatory at Lindenbergl, returned with a large amount of valuable data. Observations of the upper atmosphere were made by kites and balloons over the Victoria Nyanza, and the ocean in the neighborhood of British and German East Africa. The highest ascent made by the self-registering balloons was 65,000 feet, where a temperature of -119 degrees Fahr. was recorded, a lower temperature than ever registered at similar or greater heights in Europe. The important discovery was made of the existence of an upper current from the west flowing above the regular easterly one of the equatorial regions.

Reports stating of satisfactory progress being made have been received from H. Scott and J. C. F. Fryer, who are exploring the Seychelles Islands and others northwest of Madagascar. Mr. Scott has paid particular attention to collecting the insect fauna still remaining on the islands of Silhouette and Mahe.

E. Torday and W. H. Simpson, who have been in the Kasai district since the Autumn of 1907, are expected to return to England the first part of 1910. Besides their ethnographical collections which have been obtained for the British Museum, they have taken a large number of photographs illustrating the geographical characteristics of the country.

ASIA.

Carruther's expedition in Northern Arabia, although unable to advance beyond Telma, yet explored considerable new country. Starting from Jesi the expedition went to Temia, and from there turned north and explored the western edge of Nefud to within three days of El Jauf. Five perfect specimens of the Arabian oryx were obtained.

The Paris Geographical Society received an account of Dr. Legendre's explorations of the Wa-pao-Shan, a mountain group lying between the Ya and Tung Rivers and east of the high road from Ya-Chou to Fulin.

J. W. Brooke, the well known traveller, was murdered by the Lotos in Western China. De Fleurette and de Boyve (members of the D'Ollone expedition, which explored parts of China little known) are preparing in France a map of the country traversed.

Professor W. Dunstan called attention to the agricultural possibilities of Asia Minor, particularly with regard to raising cotton, and pointed out there was an area nearly equal to the present cotton area in Egypt available for the growth of American cotton.

With the financial support of T. Riabushinsky, a Moscow banker, the Imperial Russian Geographical Society organized an expedition for the thorough exploration of Kamchatka. To this expedition, which is planned to last two years, Mr. Riabushinsky has given over $100,000. Studies will be made on geological, botanical, zoological, meteorological and ethnographical subjects.

J. P. Tolmachof, keeper of the Geological Museum of the Imperial Academy of Science at St. Petersburg, is exploring the North Siberian coast from Kolyva to Bering Strait. He has the support of the Ministry of Trade and Industries, as it is hoped that his researches may lead eventually to the opening of ocean navigation between the Pacific Ocean and the north coast of Siberia. In connection with Tolmachof's party, Mr. Seouf will survey the delta of the Kolyva River.

A party in charge of Donald Mackay started up the Purari River, British New Guinea, with the intention of reaching its source and then going overland to the Fly River. The chief difficulties so far reported were lack of supplies and the rapid current in the river.

Duke of the Abruzzi of Italy spent several months in India exploring the glacier system, of which the Baltero glacier is the centre.

A treaty was made between Great Britain and Siam, which transferred the States of Kelantan, Trengganu, Keda and Perlis with the adjacent islands to the British Government. The precise line followed by the new frontier is defined in a protocol annexed to the treaty.

G. W. Bury's expedition to South Arabia, which intended to explore an unknown part of the country, proceeded no further than the outskirts of Haura, owing to the treachery of the natives.

The latest report from the British Colonial Office on the State of Keda, Malay Peninsula, records a continued progress toward a successful development with a sound financial situation. Tin mining is being carried on and several large rubber growing estates have been opened.

Letters received from Dr. T. G. Longstaff's Himalayan expedition, stated that a base camp would be established at the head of the Saltoro Valley for the purpose of exploring the Bilafond and Chumick glaciers.

EUROPE.

An Austrian Association formed some years ago for the scientific exploration of the Adriatic Sea, has been active during the past year with its research ship Adria. The Adria has a laboratory with oceanographic apparatus, dark room for photographic work and two rooms for microscopic observations. Apart from the special work for the Association the ship is used by the Trieste Zoological station.

The configuration of the Baltic Coast of Germany is the subject of the first of the Geographische Arbeiten edited by Dr. W. Ule, Professor of Geography in the University of Rostock. In it is discussed the semi-circular bays, which furnish a variety of coastal types, and their horizontal formation is shown to be due to the same causes as their vertical structure. Each is the result of some natural force either glacial or denudation.

Dr. H. Spethman approached sufficiently near the great ice sheet of Vatna Jokull of Southeast Iceland to get a good idea of its general features. The Vatna Jokull is shaped like a curved shield with its central portion almost an unbroken mass of ice. The most striking characteristic of the outer parts is the contrast between the northern and southern margins. The latter reaches nearly to the sea level, while the former to an elevation of 2,600 feet.

M. Crignoux of the University of Lyons made a special study of the earthquakes in the province of Calabria, Southern Italy. The liability of the province to destructive earthquakes he found to depend upon the existence of faults between the Pliocene deposits and the crystalline masses forming the framework of Calabria, south of the valley of the Crati.

M. Spence, in an article in the Journal of the Scottish Meteorological Society, discussed the changes in the climate of the Orkney Islands during recent years. Statistics covering the past eighty years seem to prove that the yearly range of temperature is gradually becoming less. The climate, however, is so much modified by the currents, moisture and winds of the Atlantic Ocean, as to be unrecognizable by its latitude, while its vagaries defy the systematic classifications of the meteorologist.

From Prof. M. P. Davis's observations on glacial erosion in North Wales, Mount Snowdon was in preglacial times a large featured, round shouldered, mountain which has been converted by erosion during the Glacial Period into the sharp featured, hollow chested mountain of to-day.

The ebullition of the Thermal Spring in the Etang de Thau, near Certe on the Mediterranean coast of France, was investigated by Messieurs Chevalier and Guiry, and the results published in the Bulletin de l'Institut Océanographique for 1909. Soundings made by them, showed that the funnel composed of calcareous rocks and inclosing the rising column of water, was about 10 feet below the surface, and that at a depth of 100 feet was the orifice through which the spring escaped. The temperature of the water is nearly constant during the entire year, being around 69.8 degrees Fahr.

W. H. Bond, of New York, established a new record in mountain climbing, by ascending Mount Blanc in nine hours from Chamonix. The previous record which was made in 1865 by Mr. Morehead, an Englishman, was nine and one-half hours.

AMERICA.

The question of boundary of several South American countries was brought up again, and in some cases has been settled. Boundary agreements have been concluded by Brazil with Dutch Guiana, Venezuela and Uruguay, while negotiations have been in progress between Brazil and Peru regarding the territory lying between the Yavari River and 11 degrees south latitude.

Attention was called in an address by Dr. Spencer before the American Association for the Advancement of Science to the spoliation of Niagara Falls. Dr. Spencer admits that a limited amount of power can be taken from the falls without injury to the scenery, but maintains if the Canadian and the two New York companies take the water up to the full limits of their franchises the beauty of the falls will be greatly diminished.

The Provinces of Quebec and Newfoundland have agreed to abide by the decision of the Privy Council for the settlement of the true frontier dividing their jurisdiction in Labrador.

The climate of the State of Sao Paulo, Brazil, is ably discussed in the meteorological section of the Directoria de Agricultura. The climate is divided into three classes and the rainfall and temperature of each covering a period of several years is given.

Surveys have been made on the frontier between Argentina and Paraguay. The commissioners in charge of the work—Don Domingo Krause for Argentina, and Colonel Ayala for Paraguay—suffered many hardships from insufficient food supplies and were much hampered by the mud and swamps. The district they surveyed included the Rio Dorado and Rio Confuso Rivers, the Parantina lagoon, and also where the upper Pilcomayo River debouches into a marsh.

Dr. W. B. Dawson placed before the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers the results of observations, which have permitted the determination of the difference in the mean sea level between Quebec and New York. Mean sea level at New York is 7.13 feet above the Admiralty low water datum at Quebec. A long series of tidal observations at Quebec have given the mean sea level there as 8.58 feet (above the low water datum) thus making it 1.46 feet above that at New York.

The Department of Militia and Defence of Canada is still working on the one inch to one mile survey of Canada. Over 14,000 miles have been completed in the field, and the work progresses at the rate of about 4,000 square miles a year.

Professor R. S. Tarr, of Cornell University, and members from the Universities of Wisconsin and Washington, spent several months in Alaska studying glaciers. Some of the glaciers they found were receding while others were advancing. On the discovery of Jamaica flora and on examining the structure of the coal bed formation they concluded that Alaska was once a tropical country.

O. H. Tiltmann, of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the Canadian astronomer W. F. King worked on the northern boundary lines of the United States and Alaska with Canada.

The 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Hendrick Hudson was celebrated in New York by the Hudson-Fulton Celebration from September 25 to October 9. Models of Hudson's ship, the Half Moon, and the steamer Clermont, in which Robert Fulton navigated the Hudson River in 1807, were exhibited.

Miss A. S. Peck describes in the Bulletin of the American Geographical Society for June, 1909, her ascent of Mt. Hauscaran, Peru. With the assistance of two guides she succeeded in reaching the summit, which she estimated as 24,000 feet high, making it the highest mountain in the Andes.

POLAR RESEARCH.

Lieutenant Shackleton, of England, made a dash to within 100 miles (latitude 88 deg. 23 min. S. and longitude 162 deg. E.) of the South Pole. The distance covered including relays was 1,708 miles and the time occupied 126 days. Lieutenant Shackleton gathered a good geological collection, discovered eight distinct mountain ranges and surveyed a number of glaciers. Traces of a former glaciation were seen, while the violent blizzards encountered at 88 degrees S. latitude proved that the supposed area of calm must be small in extent.

A Danish expedition to East Greenland, in charge of Uimar Mikkelsen, was organized, and started out with the object of recovering records left near Denmark fjord by Mylius Erichsen, who was lost in trying to return to his ship. Mikkelsen has a small vessel with a crew of six men. He proposes to land and spend the Winter near Cape Bismarck, where a depot will be established, and in the Spring of 1910 go North.

Professor E. David was the leader of a party to the South Magnetic Pole. They reached an inland plateau 7,000 feet above the sea, and on January 16, 1909, found the Magnetic Pole, which, with a Lloyd-Creak dip circle, was determined to be at latitude 72 deg. 25 min. S. and longitude 154 deg. E.

Dr. Bruce's expedition to Spitsbergen sailed July, 1909, on the steam trawler Conqueror, to continue researches in Prince Charles Foreland and adjacent districts. Several experts were taken who will carry on topographical and geological work.

The publication of a synoptical record of the Swedish explorations in Spitsbergen reprinted from Ymer, Part I, 1909, gives an historical view of Sweden's important share in the scientific work of that country.

Walter Wellman, in August, made an attempt to reach the North Pole in his balloon, America. When several miles from Camp Wellman, Spitsbergen, a guide rope containing provisions broke, and he was obliged to return. His balloon was the second largest aerial craft ever built (1909), being exceeded only by that of Count Zeppelin. It was designed to carry 6,000 pounds of gasoline for the engines, food for a year, sledges, dogs, lifeboat and a crew of three men besides himself. He is contemplating making another attempt in 1910.

Word was received September 2, 1909, from Dr. F. A. Cook, of Brooklyn, N. Y., that he had reached the North Pole. He reported starting from Annatok on the northwestern coast of Greenland, February, 1908, and making the final dash with two Esquimaux in March, arriving at the Pole April 21, 1908.

In September, 1909, Commander R. E. Peary, U. S. N., announced that he had discovered the North Pole April 6, 1909. He left New York, July 6, 1908, in the steamer Roosevelt, and spent the Winter at Cape Sheridan. His sledge expedition started North in February, and after many hardships succeeded in reaching the Pole.

Captain R. Amundsen, a Norwegian explorer, postponed his polar expedition to June 1, 1910, on account of delay in his preparations caused by a general strike in Sweden.

Review of Scientific Progress in 1909.

ARCHAEOLOGY.

THE British School at Athens, Greece, resumed its researches in Sparta, and completes completing the excavation of the precinct of the temple of Artemis Orthio in 1910.

A prehistoric German cemetery has been unearthed at Kessenick near Maesevck. Many skeletons have been found in different shaped urns, the urns showing from their ornamentation a German origin. Some years ago in the same neighborhood Dr. Nyssens discovered a Roman cemetery.

The discovery of an eastern sanctuary at Rome in which the Syrian god Baal was worshipped under the title of Jupiter Heliopolitanus aroused great interest among archaeologists.

Excavations have been carried out on the supposed site of the ancient city of Jericho, by the Deutsche Orient Gesellschaft, and the results have been particularly interesting. About eight feet below the surface a wall was encountered which was estimated to have extended 2,700 feet. Besides the wall, a citadel on one of the northwest hills was found fortified by walls with corner towers.

Investigations have shown that Tournaire's restoration of the acanthus column at Delphi, and the one in plaster at the Delphi Museum are not correct. There are five drums instead of four; the total height of the column being 8.65 metres and not 7.80. There was no architectural base, the tips of the three large leaves at the bottom resting directly on the plinth.

I. N. Svoronos interpreted several reliefs found in the Asclepieum at Athens which had hitherto baffled all attempts.

Two pages of a bible, dated 1472 and published by Schoeffer, was found in an old portfolio at the Brighton Public Museum, Brighton, England. The pages were in an excellent state of preservation.

Frescoes said to be among the most beautiful so far discovered have been excavated at Pompeii on private property. All the figures are of exquisite workmanship and are nearly two-thirds natural size.

Dr. Ede advanced the theory that, in the comparatively few cases where ancient coins depict a figure either full front or to the left, it was to give the idea of terrifying or of dominant energy. Human beings thus represented might be thought of, as in the disguise of demigods.

A French expedition under Lieut. Desplagnes in Western Sudan, Africa, made many interesting archaeological observations in the gold yielding districts.

J. Pierpont Morgan presented to the British Museum a valuable collection of bronze implements from various parts of Europe and Asia. Among the rarest is a large Chinese spear head, cast in A. D. 761.

A. E. H. Goekoop, by treating the Iliad and the Odyssey as if they were historical documents, arrived at the conclusion that the Homeric Ithaca was located in southern Cephallenia.

Excavating at Delos, Greece, has been steadily carried on and many valuable relics have been found. The relics are of particular interest and importance for they represent an unbroken line of Hellenic art from the eighth century B. C. to the Neo-Grecian period.

E. Ritterling restored a Greek inscription from Sardis, referring to Ti Julius Celsus Polemaeanus, the founder of the library at Ephesus. He also restored an inscription in honor of L. M. N. Quadroneus Verus found at Magnolia, on the Black Sea.

Professor A. H. Sayce, exploring in Africa, discovered the site of an important city, about three miles from Kabushia, where are the well known Meroitic pyramids. He found the ruins of a great wall and of a temple with an avenue of rams, which lead him to believe the city is that of Meroe.

ASTRONOMY.

There were two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon during 1909. A central eclipse of the sun occurred June 17, and a partial one December 12. In the former the path passed over inaccessible regions in the Arctic Circle, while the latter was visible only in the south polar regions and parts of Australia. Total eclipses of the moon occurred June 3 and November 26. The eclipse of June 3 was visible generally in Europe, Africa, South America and North America. The eclipse of November 26 was visible generally throughout North America.

Owing to the planet Neptune being disturbed in its orbit around the sun, Professor W. H. Pickering, of Harvard College Observatory, announced that a planet belonging to the solar system and hitherto unknown may be the cause of this disturbance. He gives the approximate location of the new planet as right ascension 7h. 47m., declination +21 deg.

T. J. J. See, of Mare Island, Cal., claims the Lunar Terrestrial System originated by capture and the moon came to the earth from heavenly space. He bases the proof of his claim upon the researches of Hill, Poincare and Darwin.

The first new comet for 1909 was discovered by Zaccheus Daniel at Princeton, N. J., June 15. Mr. Daniel found the comet in the constellation of Triangulum, and as it is moving northward about one degree a day it will pass through the foot of Andromeda and head of Perseus. The comet (a 1909 Daniel) is small, with a very small stellar nucleus and a faint spreading tail.

Volume VIII., of the Lick Observatory publications for 1909, contains heliogravure reproductions of photographs of nebulae and star clusters made with the Crossley Reflector by the late Director Keeler.

The great disk one hundred inches in diameter for the Solar Observatory on Mt. Wilson, Cal., has proved a failure. It had been worked nearly to a finish when flaws were discovered, making it unfit for telescopic purposes.

The tenth annual meeting of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America was held August 18 to 23, at the Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis.

Professor C. L. Poor has invented an instrument which he calls a "Photoheliometer," for detecting changes in the diameter of the sun. It consists of a double telescope, with object glasses two inches in diameter and 25 feet focal length.

The planet Mars on September 24, 1909, was nearer to the earth than it has been since 1894. Every 15 years, Mars approaches to within 35,000,000 miles of the earth, while during the other years it is about 50,000,000 miles away.

Solar halos accompanied by parhelia or sun dogs, which are rarely seen in latitude 42 deg. 17m. 42s., were observed during February and March by S. F. Whiting at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass. The sun was surrounded by a rainbow circle on which to the right and left were the sun dogs, bright with prismatic color, and just above the sun was an arc of a tangent circle.

The highest meteorological and astronomical observatory in America was completed in September, 1909. The observatory is situated on the top of Mount Whitney, Cal., 14,500 feet above sea level, and was built under great difficulties as all the materials were carried on pack mules over narrow rocky trails.

From the result of observations from Mount Whitney, Professor W. W. Campbell, states there is no water vapor of appreciable quantity on Mars. He also asserts that there is no evidence that Mars is inhabited.

Calculations made by several astronomers give the date of perihelion of Halley's Comet as April 16, 1910.

CHEMISTRY.

Work was started at Carteret, N. J., on the first plant in the United States for detinning tin scrap by Goldschmidt's chlorine process. This process has been in successful operation at Essen, Germany, for many years, where about 50,000 tons of tin scrap are annually detinned.

Dr. G. D. Hinricks outlined a new method for calculating atomic weights. He claimed that the so-called official atomic weights of the American Chemical Society are not true to nature, and the laboratory work done throughout the United States has been persistently falsified.

The process of dry chlorination of sulphide ores has attracted considerable notice. Its success depends on the fact that oxidation must be prevented, and the operation carried on so chlorides are the only products formed. The field of usefulness of the process is very large, but the most promising one is the treatment of the complex lead zinc ores that can only be marketed by sacrificing one or more of the valuable constituents.

Dr. L. H. Baekeland, of Tonkers, N. Y., has invented a new material called "bakelite," which he succeeded in preparing by indirect synthesis, starting with alcohol phenols. Bakelite has many important properties and is being tried commercially in a large number of industries. It is an excellent insulator and resists temperatures as high as 300 degrees centigrade without melting or softening.

A contract was made with the British Metalliferous Mines Co. (Limited) by Lord Iveagh and Sir Ernest Cassel for 7½ grams (a little more than a quarter of an ounce) of pure radium bromide. This large order will be supplied from the company's mine near Gram-pound Road, Cornwall. The price paid was about $20 a milligram, equivalent to nearly $456,000 an ounce.

Metallic sodium has been used for drying transformer oil, and to raise the insulating qualities. Sticks of sodium in an iron wire cylinder are hung in the oil.

L. Frischauer discovered, when sulphur is allowed to crystallize exposed to the action of radium, the number of centres of crystallization is greatly increased, rising to double that in specimens of sulphur which were treated in exactly the same way, but were screened from the radium rays by lead foil.

Siemens, Halske & Co., of Germany, brought out an ozone apparatus for the purification and regeneration of the air. The fundamental principle is, that the strong oxidizing nature of ozone can regenerate foul air even without a supply of fresh. The ozone molecules give off their third oxygen atom, which oxidizes the impurities in the air, and the remaining bi-atomic oxygen molecules bring the air up again to the desired concentration of oxygen.

A new process for the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen has been developed by the Badische Company, Ludwigshafen, Germany. An electric furnace is used for combining the oxygen and nitrogen in air by means of an arc discharge.

F. Fischer, of Berlin, demonstrated that ozone is produced when oxygen is raised to a high temperature.

H. C. Greenwood, of the University of Manchester, England, carried out a series of experiments to determine the boiling points of different metals. He employed a vertical carbon tube resistance furnace in which was suspended a long graphite crucible containing the metal. He found the approximate boiling point of aluminum to be 1,800 deg., antimony 1,440 deg., bismuth 1,420 deg., copper 2,310 deg., and iron 2,450 deg. Fahr.

GEOLOGY.

The geological section of the Riabushinsky Expedition, under Messrs. Krug and Konrad, will explore the eastern border of the Kamchatka Peninsular, Asia.

H. Kynaston, in his anniversary address before the Geological Society of South Africa, described the red granite of the Transvaal Bushveld. The area covered by this granite with its peripheral belt of basic rocks and intrusions of syenite, has been estimated at 15,000 square miles. Valuable deposits of tin ore have also been discovered in the granite and in some rocks into which it extends.

The first of a series of annual publications of the Department of Geology and Mines has been issued on the mineral resources of the Philippine Islands. The report is summed up in the practical conclusion that a profitable and steady mining industry can be established on the islands. A sub-bituminous coal, resembling black lignite, but superior to it is found on nearly every island, besides there are hundreds of square miles of limestone, with shell and clay beds available for cement.

H. Y. L. Brown, Government Geologist, of South Australia, in his report on mineral discoveries, states that copper has been discovered in a granite area at Mount Davis Creek, in the Pine Creek District, and also tin and gold in new localities of the same district.

T. D. A. Cockerill announced the discovery of another fossil tsetse fly in the Miocene shales of Florissant, Colorado.

The geology and mineral resources of New Brunswick were discussed by R. W. Ellis before the Department of Mines of Canada. Mr. Ellis called attention to the fact that the geological structure has been much affected by glacial action. Lake basins, diverted river courses, large deposits of boulder clay, and stratified sand are the results of an ice mantle estimated to have been 2,000 feet thick. At present non-metallic minerals only are worked in paying quantities. The coal deposits cover an area of 10,000 square miles, and there are also deposits of gypsum, building stone and albertite. Silver, copper and galena are found in small and broken amounts.

Rich diamond fields are reported to have been found in German South Africa, near the town of Luderitzbucht. The diamonds are in a layer of sand and gravel, which cover a large tract of the country to a depth of a foot or more.

The United States Geological Survey issued a report on the peat deposits of Maine. The field tests and analyses showed that Maine possesses immense resources of peat of excellent quality for fuel and other purposes. In the southern and eastern parts of the State deposits of good quality are most abundant, in Androscoggin, Kennebec, Penobscot and Washington counties.

W. R. Humbold, in the Economic Geology Magazine for June, 1909, contributed a paper, proving in the majority of cases the popular idea of the origin of the Bolivian tin deposits and their mode of occurrence is erroneous.

The State of Washington made an appropriation for a geological survey, and will cooperate with the United States Geological Survey, in a study of the water resources and coal lands.

W. D. Smith, Chief of the Division of Mines, Manila, P. I., wrote in the April number of the Economic Geology Magazine, that the geologic structure of the Philippine Islands is such as to introduce many difficulties in the profitable exploitation of the coal fields.

Professor Gould, of the Oklahoma Geological Survey, reported that there is enough gypsum in Oklahoma to keep 100 mills, each manufacturing 100 tons of plaster a day, busy for 34,000 years.

ENGINEERING.

The Queensboro Bridge across the East River, from Sixtieth Street, Borough of Manhattan to Ravenswood, Borough of Queens, New York, was opened March 30. The bridge is of the cantilever type, with five spans, the longest of which is 1,182 feet, with the floor 135 feet above the river.

Work has steadily and satisfactorily progressed on the Panama Canal. It has been definitely decided that the lock type of canal will be built.

The longest concrete arch so far attempted is the main span of the 708 foot concrete bridge over Rocky River, Cleveland, O. The main span is 280 feet long and is approached on one side by two and on the other by three fifty-foot arches.

The Pathfinder Dam, which has been under construction on the North Plate River, Wyoming, since 1905, was completed May 1, 1909. The dam impounds water from a drainage area of 12,000 square miles in Colorado and Wyoming, and forms a reservoir with a capacity of 1,025,000 acre feet, or 358,000,000,000 gallons.

A two-mile tunnel, (the Wasserfluh) in the Alps Mountains, was holed through April 2. The tunnel lies between Brunnadern and Lichtensteig, on the new Bodensee-Toggenburg Railroad of Northern Switzerland.

A high pressure water system has been installed by the City of Winnipeg, Manitoba. Water for the system is taken from the Red River by a pumping plant having a total capacity of 10,800 United States gallons per minute, or 15,532,000 gallons per twenty-four hours, at a pressure of 300 pounds per square inch. About 7½ miles of water mains have been laid in the business district and on these 78 fire hydrants have been set.

A New York to Montreal waterway has been discussed. In Canadian territory this would involve deepening the Richelieu River and enlarging the Chambly Channel. In New York it would be necessary to improve the Hudson River between Waterford and Hudson.

Millions of dollars are being spent in New York City and the immediate vicinity by the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Erie, New York, New Haven and Hartford and Lackawanna Railroads. The Pennsylvania Railroad's mammoth station, and the tunnels to it under the Hudson and East Rivers, will be completed in 1910. The Hudson and Manhattan Railroad's tunnel under the Hudson River, connecting New York and Jersey City, was formally opened July 19, 1909.

The New York and Brooklyn portions of the suspended span of the Manhattan Bridge over the East River were joined April 16, 1909.

The Torresdale filtration plant, belonging to the city of Philadelphia, was put in operation. This plant has a capacity of 240,000,000 gallons per day, which, with those at Belmont and Roxborough, can supply Philadelphia with 300,000,000 gallons of filtered water per day.

Gunnison's Tunnel, forming part of a large irrigation project in Southwestern Colorado, was opened in September, 1909. It carries water from the Gunnison River to the Uncompahgne Valley, where nearly 300,000 acres of dry volcanic dust will eventually be turned into fertile soil. The tunnel is six miles long and is one of the largest underground waterways ever constructed.

A new subway system was proposed for Chicago, Ill. The congestion of the traffic in the business section is now so great that the number of passengers carried per hour in the street cars is 30 per cent. less than in 1902.

Earthquakes, their Causes and Results.

BY J. MORRISON, M. D., Ph. D.

OF all the forces of nature with which man is acquainted, none is more appalling or more destructive of life and property than those disturbances of the solid earth commonly called earthquakes. The very name strikes terror into the hearts of all people and especially into the inhabitants of those countries in which these earth movements are most frequent. Cities and towns have been wholly or partially submerged or otherwise wrecked and hundreds of thousands of people have perished by these terrible disturbances of the earth's surface. Within the last two or three decades they have occurred with more than usual frequency. There is scarcely a country in the world that has not recently experienced shocks more or less violent and accordingly the most absorbing interest has been aroused in the minds of all classes as to the cause of these extraordinary terrestrial phenomena. In order to obtain a clear and satisfactory idea of their nature and cause we must go back a long way into the remote past and trace the various astronomical conditions of matter as revealed to us in the sidereal heavens, in the dynamical features of our solar system, in the constitution of our own moon and in the physical structure of the earth itself.

The cosmogony of our solar system (including, of course, the earth and sun) rests on the nebular hypothesis first propounded by Swedenborg, but not generally accepted in his time; it was, however, subsequently revived and partially confirmed by the researches of Sir William Herschel, after a careful study of the nebulae as shown by his powerful telescope. At a still later date it was examined by one of the most distinguished mathematicians and astronomers that ever lived, the celebrated La Place, who gave it to the scientific world nearly in its present form, and is erroneously known as the nebular hypothesis of La Place, now universally accepted by astronomers as the true cosmogony of our solar system. It should, however, in all justice be called the nebular hypothesis of Swedenborg. It did not receive its final confirmation until the discovery of the spectroscope—an instrument designed for the analysis of light. This instrument shows the nebulae which Herschel, La Place and others regarded as groups of stars, to be in reality prodigious masses of incandescent gas at a temperature beyond anything we can conceive or comprehend.

Spiral nebula at A. A portion appears to be condensing and ready to separate. The spiral form shows motion in the direction of the arrow.

This irregular gaseous mass detached from the solar globe—and which subsequently became the earth—would, of course, receive a motion of translation from the parent mass and by well known dynamical principles, acquire a rotation around an axis passing through its centre of gravity. While in this gaseous state it abandoned or set free a portion of its own mass, which became the moon, and as the comparatively small volume of the earth rapidly cooled by the radiation of heat, the surface soon became too viscid to repeat the process. By the mutual attraction of their own particles these gaseous masses would finally assume an approximately spherical figure and as the cooling proceeded rapidly, owing to their comparatively small volumes, they would become viscid or plastic. At the very high temperature which must have prevailed during the long period the earth was in a gaseous condition, all the chemical elements of which the earth is composed—about sixty-seven in number—were dissociated or existed in a free or uncombined state, chemical compounds could not then exist, but when the temperature declined to a certain point, chemical affinity would assert its power and combinations of the various elements would ensue. Oxygen and hydrogen would unite to form water in the form of vapor or steam; oxygen and carbon to form carbon dioxide; calcium and other metals would unite with oxygen to form oxides of these metals and so on.

When the temperature still further declined, the steam would condense to water, which would be precipitated in showers on the hot surface, to be again sent back as steam. By a repetition of this process, the surface would become cooled down to a temperature at which water would remain as such on the surface, and thus be formed a universal ocean of warm water highly charged with carbon dioxide and holding carbonate of lime and other similar substances in solution. In process of time as the temperature declined, the carbonate of lime would be precipitated to the bottom, and thus a solid crust of limestone would be formed.

The nebular hypothesis sets out on the well founded assumption that all the matter composing the sun and planets once existed as a gaseous nebula. These nebulous bodies are of prodigious magnitude and of various forms; some are very irregular, some oval or nearly globular, and others show a spiral formation as in the annexed diagram, which indicates a rotation on an axis in the direction of the arrow. It also shows large wholly or partially detached portions which are assumed to be planets in course of formation. A full discussion of the nebular hypothesis cannot be given for want of time and space, and it must therefore suffice to say that all the structural and dynamical features of the solar system confirm it in a most remarkable manner. Our planet was then once in a gaseous condition, having been thrown off or detached from the parent or central revolving mass or solar globe when its volume extended to or filled the earth's orbit.

THE BIRTH OF MOUNTAINS.

As the cooling proceeded the interior molten or plastic mass would contract or shrink away from the crust just as the water of a frozen river or pond recedes from the ice on its surface, a tremendous strain would thus be produced in the crust, which would collapse, and enormous rents or fissures, technically called faults, would be formed through which prodigious masses of molten rock would exude, and thus mountains were born.

This is well shown in the Laurentian Mountains of Northern Canada. This extensive range of granite reaching from the eastern coast of Labrador in a curve forming about one-third of a circle, to the mouth of McKenzie River, forms a watershed between the streams flowing into the Mississippi and the Great Lakes on the south and those flowing north into Hudson Bay and the Arctic Sea. The eastern portion of this range is a solid wall of granite against whose sides the ancient stratified limestone lies like the sloping roof of a house, but the western portion consists mostly of rounded hills and isolated peaks, the result of extensive glacial action in subsequent geologic ages. The Laurentian Mountains are the oldest portion of our continent; they have withstood all the mighty convulsions to which the earth was subjected in subsequent times, and they stand to-day an eloquent witness of the condition of the earth ages before the dawn of animal or vegetable life, and millions of years before the advent of man.

After the lapse of an immensely long period of time, to be counted only by millions of years, comprising probably the greater part of what is called the Paleozoic Period, during which enormous deposits of sedimentary rocks were laid down at the bottom of the ocean, the Appalachian chain of mountains was born of the deep—an upheaval which must have shaken the earth to the very centre. This mighty range of mountains, extending under different names from near the mouth of the St. Lawrence to Northern Alabama, was at first of great height—so high that in some places it toppled over.

Another geologic age rolls by comprising nearly the whole of what is called the Mesozoic Period, the duration of which cannot be even approximately determined, another tremendous convulsion shattered the crust for thousands of miles when the Rocky and Andes systems of mountains emerged from beneath the briny waves. This latter system of mountains is but as yesterday compared with the Laurentian and Appalachian. These mighty upheavals and many others in other parts of our globe, have broken the crust into innumerable fragments which readily allow the settling down of the entire surface. The enormous masses of igneous rock called granite, found in Canada, New Hampshire, Texas, and elsewhere throughout the world, were pushed up through the overlying crust in a plastic condition—not in layers like the limestone strata, but as one mass. The Appalachian and Rocky Mountains are, for the most part, upheavals of the limestone crust, and an examination of these rocks shows the strata to be tilted up at every angle from a horizontal to a vertical position and to be composed, for the most part, of shells, the solid sarcophagi of countless millions of once living creatures that tenanted those ancient ocean depths.

When we turn over the rocky pages of the earth's crust and read thereon the indelible records engraved by the hand of time, we are irresistibly forced to the conclusion that the nebular hypothesis is true, and has emerged from the region of pure speculation and attained almost to the dignity of a demonstration.

REGIONS OF SEISMIC DISTURBANCE.

The upheaval of these great mountain ranges must have caused very extensive cracks or fissures in the crust, and it is along these that seismic disturbances chiefly occur. One is believed to extend from New England along the Atlantic Coast to the West India Islands, and probably into South America, and another along the Pacific Coast of the United States, Mexico, Central and South America to Tierra Del Fuego in Southern Chile. The Charleston earthquake of 1886 and the recent earthquakes of San Francisco, Valparaiso, the Isthmus and Mexico, were along these faults. Another extensive fault, no doubt, exists from Alaska and the Aleutian Islands through Kamchatka, the Kuril Islands, Japan, the Philippines, Formosa, Java and Sumatra, and another probably runs off from the Atlantic Coast through Southern Portugal, Spain, Italy, Greece, the eastern part of the Mediterranean Sea, Asiatic Turkey and Persia. Hot springs and active and extinct volcanoes abound along all these regions.

VOLCANIC ACTIVITY.

These terrific disturbances of the earth's surface are the result of a settling down or a subsidence due to the contraction or shrinking of the heated interior. There is probably considerable loss of heat from the general surface by radiation, and there certainly is a prodigious expenditure or loss from the numerous active volcanoes scattered all over the globe.

Beginning on the east coast of Greenland we have Jan Mayen, which has been furiously active since its discovery; Hecla in Iceland, and numerous active volcanoes in Alaska and the Aleutian islands, while Kamchatka, the Kuril Islands, Japan, the Philippines, Formosa, Java and Sumatra fairly bristle with these fiery outlets. Southern Europe has three active volcanoes, Vesuvius, Stromboli and Aetna. Mexico, Central America and the entire chain of the Andes are alive with volcanic activity, so also are the West Indies, the Sandwich Islands, New Zealand, the Canaries and numerous islands in the Pacific Ocean, and lastly we find two terrific volcanoes in the South Frigid Zone, viz., mountains Erebus and Terror, one of which has been in a state of violent activity ever since their discovery by Captain Ross in 1841.

These numerous outlets of subterranean heat must produce a decided effect in lowering the temperature of the molten interior with a corresponding contraction of volume. Cavities are thus formed beneath the crust, and when the strain on this crust becomes quake visited the Isthmus of Panama and was felt at all the important points along the Canal zone. The shocks, however, were not severe enough to affect the canal to any appreciable extent. The tremor covered an area of several hundred square miles, as is shown from the reports received from several points outside of the zone. After the tremor had ceased subterranean rumblings continued for some time in various parts of the Isthmus. The disturbance is supposed to have been due to the activity of the volcanoes at Santiago, near Managua, and at Montombo, some four or five hundred miles away; both of these craters are still smoking and further shocks may be looked for at any time. In July and August, 1909, Central Mexico was violently disturbed by an earthquake which extended completely across the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The City of Acapulco and several other towns and villages were almost completely ruined, and some thousands of the natives killed, injured or made homeless. While this paper was in course of preparation, the volcano Colima, about 150 miles from the west coast of Mexico, and situated in the same region, became violently active. This very active volcano is of comparatively recent origin, having suddenly burst out in an open plain since Mexico became independent. It has partially collapsed once or twice, becomes dormant for a while and then displays its fiery temper with great violence. In the early part of 1909, a volcano several thousand feet high, situated on one of the Aleutian Islands off the coast of the Peninsula of Alaska, collapsed, and nothing now remains but a smoking crater raised a little above the surface of the island. On August 14, 1909, 30 persons were killed, 32 severely injured, several thousand rendered destitute and over 400 buildings, many of them temples, were destroyed in a few minutes by an earthquake in central Japan. The shocks were very severe and intermittent, and were felt during the afternoon, throughout the night and into the forenoon of the 15th. The mountain Ibuki, a short distance west of the town of Gifu, emitted smoke for a time and then collapsed with a thunderous roar. Its outlines are completely changed as well as those of the general landscape. The shock affected a wide area, extending as far as Tokio, several hundred miles away. The town of Ozaka suffered terribly. The Hida River was diverted from its ordinary course and flooded the surrounding country. Mount Ibuki, known as one of the "seven high mountains" of central Japan, reared its bare head to a height of 4,300 feet and was one of the noted landmarks of the country.

NOTED EARTHQUAKE AREAS.

No part of the earth appears to be free from seismic disturbance. There are some regions where they are most frequent and destructive.

Major De Moutessus, a French scientist, has, during the last half century, made a special study of these earth movements and has a catalogue of 130,000 shocks, of which trustworthy details were procured. This valuable record, extending over so long a period, indicates with a considerable degree of precision the average frequency of seismic shocks throughout the world. During this interval Italy had 27,672; Japan 27,502; Greece and adjacent islands, 10,306; South America, 8,080; Mexico, 5,586; Asia Minor, Sicily and the Pacific Coast of the United States, about 4,400 each; Central America, West Indies, Java, Switzerland, France, Spain, and Portugal, New Zealand and the British Islands come next with about an average of 1,500 shocks. The countries most frequently disturbed are Italy, Japan, Greece, South America, Mexico, Sicily, Central America and the West India islands. The countries least disturbed are Australia and Tasmania, Africa, Russia, including Siberia, Scandinavia and Canada. In Greece and Asia Minor earthquake vibrations have been tolerably frequent, but not very destructive, while in India and China they are very infrequent, but generally very violent.

NOTABLE DEPRESSIONS.

In addition to the depressions and collapses of portions of the earth's surface, already noticed, may be mentioned that which occurred in Western Asia during the time of the Patriarch Abraham. The plain on which the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah stood, sank, the Dead Sea was formed and the River Jordan arrested in its course. This historic river formerly flowed into the Gulf of Akaba which forms the northeastern extremity of the Red Sea through a channel still well defined. The Dead Sea, a considerable tract of country around it, and the entire valley of the Jordan are now more than a thousand feet below the level of the Mediterranean. A similar condition of things exists in the case of the Caspian and Aral Seas. There is also a large area of depression several feet below the Caspian, in southeastern Russia.

Several monuments and columns which stood high above the Mediterranean in Pliny's time, are now wholly or partially submerged, the coast for many leagues having sunk several feet. From the facts already mentioned there is good reason to believe that large areas of the floor of the Pacific Ocean are slowly settling down.

In the early part of the last century an immense tract of country in Western India, embracing a large portion of the delta of the River Indus, sank several feet, rendering the region uninhabitable. This is, so far as known, the most extensive collapse in modern times.

Seismic disturbances of great magnitude appear to be going on in northern Canada. The eastern shore of Hudson Bay is rising and the western shore sinking, new islands have appeared and the bay is becoming shallower—all within the memory of persons now living on its shores.

REMARKABLE EXPLOSIONS.

Wherever there is a range of mountains there must necessarily be faults or cracks in the surface. Some of these may be hermetically sealed by the surface soil and by the pressure of the opposing sides, but when these cracks are not normal, but oblique to the surface, they may be, and very probably are, open, and when they extend under the ocean, water percolates down to the heated interior, where it is converted into superheated steam, which ultimately bursts out at the point of least resistance with terrific violence. The explosions of Krakatoa, in 1882, and of Mount Pelee in Martinique which wiped out the city of St. Pierre, in 1902, were of this kind and probably all submarine disturbances are of the same character.

THE DIAMETER OF THE EARTH DECREASING.

In view then of these structural features of the earth's crust, it is certain that there must be going on continually a general subsidence of the surface or, in other words, the diameter of the earth must be decreasing. There is no means of determining what the actual contraction is, but after the lapse of a few centuries the length of a degree of latitude will doubtless be found to be considerably less than it is now. The numerous faults which must always accompany mountain ranges permit a gradual subsidence which may be scarcely felt or registered by the most sensitive seismometers, but if the crust should bridge over cavities formed by the contracting and receding liquid or semi-liquid interior a sudden collapse of the crust must eventually take place with resulting depression and tremors or vibrations which may be transmitted through great distances.

Moreover, the additional pressure on the molten mass beneath would, by the laws of hydrostatics, be transmitted to every portion of the internal surface of the solid shell or crust. For instance, if a square mile of the surface of the molten mass were to receive an additional pressure of say 1,000,000 tons, then every square mile of the internal surface of the shell or crust would receive the same pressure and earthquake tremors or vibrations may occur anywhere at the point of least resistance; thus an earthquake in Italy may cause vibrations in South Africa or a volcanic eruption in New Zealand or Iceland.

Taking into consideration all the seismic disturbances of the last two or three centuries, it is not too much to assume that the equatorial radius of the earth has been reduced by, say at least two feet, and the question which now confronts us, is what effect will this reduction of the earth's radius have on the length of the day, or in other words on the duration of the earth's diurnal rotation. When the earth's surface extended to the moon, the duration of one revolution on its axis was the moon's present sidereal period, viz. twenty-seven days, but as the mass contracted the axial rotation was accelerated until it reached its present value, viz., one sidereal day or 86,400 sidereal seconds.

SHORTENING OF THE SIDEREAL DAY.

By the laws of dynamics it can be shown with mathematical precision that a reduction of two feet in the earth's radius will cause the earth to make a complete revolution on its axis in 86300-9175 second instead of 86400 as formerly, or in other words the sidereal day is now about 1-125 of a second shorter than it was a few centuries ago. This small fraction of a second would appear to the layman as utterly insignificant, but not so to the astronomer to whom it is a subject of most absorbing interest and of the utmost importance, as it constitutes a disturbing factor in the computation of past events. In ancient times total eclipses of the sun were recorded with all the accuracy possible at that time, but on computing backwards, astronomers fail completely to identify any of these phenomena by days, weeks, and even months. This failure is doubtless due in part to the length of our day, which must have been longer in ancient times than at present. There are, however, other factors, due to the moon's motion, which interfere in such computations.

FINAL CONCLUSIONS.

From what has been said regarding the formation and structure of the earth's crust, it appears we are living on the surface of a spherical shell composed of rock and soil of variable and unknown thickness, which may be five or ten miles or twenty, fifty or even one hundred miles, and that this shell has been broken into innumerable fragments which are floating on a sea of semi-plastic and molten rock, and this again resting on a core or globe of intensely heated gas. Most people think that at the depth of a hundred or a thousand miles the pressure on the matter beneath must be tremendous, but such is not the case, as we now proceed to show. The weight of a body on the earth's surface depends on its mass and the force of gravity. The former is constant, the latter variable, depending on its distance from the centre of the earth, and on its latitude or angular distance from the equator. Above the earth, the force of gravity varies inversely as the square of the distance from the centre—the attraction of a sphere on external bodies being the same as if the entire mass were concentrated at the very centre—but below the surface, gravity varies directly as the distance from the centre. The full significance of this statement will be better understood by saying that if a pound of matter at the earth's surface could be taken half way to the centre (nearly 2,000 miles below the surface) it would weigh only half a pound; if taken three-fourths of the way, it would weigh only one-fourth of a pound, and if taken to the centre, it would have no weight at all, because it would then be equally attracted in all directions. The pressure beneath the surface is then not so great as most persons imagine. A body below the surface is attracted only by the sphere whose radius is equal to the body's distance from the centre, and then only directly as the distance, that is to say, the nearer the centre the less the attraction. The attraction of the various parts of the shell neutralize each other. For instance, if a body be placed anywhere within a hollow shell, assuming, of course, that it is of uniform thickness and density, it will remain at rest. Again, all matter can be reduced to the gaseous condition by sufficient heat, and conversely all gases can be reduced to the liquid or solid state by pressure under certain restrictions of temperature, which we now proceed to explain. At ordinary temperature a pressure of about four atmospheres (sixty pounds to the square inch) will condense chlorine gas to a liquid, but at a higher temperature, say 212 degrees Fahr., that of steam, no pressure whatever would liquefy it. There is a temperature common to all bodies in a gaseous condition, but different for each gas, above which they cannot be condensed to a liquid by any pressure that can be applied. This particular temperature at which they liquefy is called the critical temperature of that gas. Hydrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide, methane, and other gases have been subjected to a pressure of over 3,000 atmospheres without condensing them, because the temperature employed was far above the critical temperature of that particular gas. A pressure of 74 atmospheres and a temperature of 31 degrees Cen. (or lower) are required to liquefy carbon dioxide, but above that temperature no pressure would condense it. In consequence then of this critical condition of matter, and the comparatively light pressure that exists there, the interior of the earth must be plastic, liquid or gaseous, according to its depth or distance from the surface. In a gaseous condition it certainly was when detached from the parent mass which subsequently became the sun; in a plastic condition at a comparatively low depth when the Laurentian Mountains were heaved up, for the soft or plastic rock penetrated into the holes and fissure in the uplifted strata just as melted lead would do if thrown on a surface containing holes or cracks, and, as a matter of fact, volcanoes still pour forth from their fiery mouths melted rock or lava which is, no doubt, gaseous at great depths.

The collapse of volcanic cones, and the more or less irregular settling down of large areas of the surface, must necessarily disturb the centre of gravity of the earth and as the axis of rotation must pass through this point, the position of the poles is not permanent, but variable, and therefore a slight variation in the latitude of places must take place—a variation which has already been established by direct astronomical observation at several observatories. The shifting of the poles through a distance of 101 feet would cause in certain localities a change of one second of arc in the latitudes. There is also abundant geologic evidence to show that the poles must have occupied quite a different position in prehistoric times from what they do to-day, for a subtropical climate certainly once existed in high northern latitudes.

Earthquakes are not subject to any law; they cannot therefore be predicted, but no doubt many more are to come, where and when no man can tell. The vast store of subterranean heat, hid deep in the earth's bosom, will keep her pulse throbbing for a long time, perhaps for millions of years, but owing to the radiation of heat from the surface, which no doubt exceeds slightly that received from the sun, and through the agency of volcanoes and hot springs, a time will come in the far distant future when the temperature will decline to such an extent that all animal and vegetable life will cease to exist on the earth.

It certainly had a beginning and it is equally certain that it will have an end. As age after age rolls by the cooling will proceed. Our oceans and lakes will be frozen to the bottom, and this atmosphere now so rare and transparent, will be reduced to a liquid, and this liquid air will trickle down the hillsides to form babbling brooks to carry it to the lower levels, where it will be congealed as solid as the rocks. The temperature will still decline until the absolute zero temperature is reached, or until all molecular motion ceases; then and not until then will the earth be dead. Here we pause, for the edict has gone forth: "So far shalt thou come but no farther." This may appear to some to border on the domain of wild speculation, but it does not. It is the logical outcome of the nebular hypothesis now universally accepted as the true cosmogony of the solar system. It is the only hypothesis which satisfactorily explains the physical construction of our globe and it also shows the profoundly deep insight into the arcana of nature possessed by its original propounder. There can be no doubt but seismic disturbances have always operated from the beginning and are still slowly operating to produce great changes in both the structural and dynamical circumstances of our globe, and thus it is that "change and decay in all around we see" throughout the entire realm of material creation.

The Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford University.

CECIL RHODES, statesman, who died at Cape Town, South Africa, March 26, 1902, directed in his will dated July 1, 1899, that a part of his fortune, estimated at $10,000,000, should be applied to the creation of a fund for the support of a certain number of scholarships covering a three-years' course at the University of Oxford. He directed that the selection of the recipients of this gift should be made two from each State and Territory of the United States, or one hundred in all, fifteen from Germany and from one to nine from each of the British Colonies. The scholarships are awarded on marks only, three-tenths whereof shall be given to a candidate for his "Literary and Scholastic" attainments, the remainder being for his love of outdoor athletics and sports, for strong, manly qualities such as courage, generosity and kindness, and for high moral character, and especially for ambition to serve and lead in large public affairs.

The agencies for final selection vary a good deal. Scholars from Cape Colony are chosen by the individual schools to which the scholarships are especially assigned. In several of the Canadian provinces and in a few States of the American Union it has been decided that an appointment shall be made in rotation by the leading universities. Under this system the field of selection each year is somewhat narrowed, but it is possible to carry out more closely than otherwise the suggestions made by Mr. Rhodes, who appears to have had in his mind selection by a single institution. The five German students for whom annual provision is made are nominated, according to the terms of the will, by the Emperor himself. In the great majority of the States of the Union, in outlying colonies like Bermuda, Jamaica and Newfoundland, in four provinces of Canada, in New Zealand and the States of Australia, the final choice of the scholar is left in the hands of a Committee of Selection. Great care has been taken in the constitution of these committees, as it has been felt that on the wise and impartial exercise of their judgment depends more than upon anything else the full success of the scheme.

In most of the States the selection is made by a committee appointed by representatives of the colleges; in some the appointments are made in rotation by the leading colleges.

The conditions regulating the award of scholarships in the American States provide that the candidates shall have satisfactorily completed the work of at least two years in some college of liberal arts and sciences. Except under extraordinary circumstances the upper age limit must be twenty-four years at the time of entering upon the scholarship at Oxford. To be eligible the candidate must be a citizen of the United States, or the son of a citizen, and must be unmarried. Each student receives an allowance of £300 a year, which is equivalent to $1,500, payable in quarterly instalments, which is just enough to enable him to pay his college fees and necessary expenses. As the first instalment is not available until some time after the arrival of the student, he should go abroad with one or two hundred dollars in his possession.

At the beginning of Michaelmas term, October, 1904, there entered Oxford seventy-two Rhodes scholars; forty-three were Americans, twenty-four colonials and five Germans. In 1906, the full number, 190 in all, were in residence, and thereafter this number will be maintained, the vacancies being filled as men complete their three-years' course. The last examination in the United States took place in January, 1908. There will be examinations also in 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, and so on, omitting every third year. The examinations are not competitive, but qualifying. Inquiries as to particulars by intending candidates may be addressed to any college. Information about Oxford, its colleges and course of studies, should be addressed to F. J. Wylie, the Oxford agent of the Rhodes trustees, Oxford, England.

New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox, and Tilden Foundations.

ESTABLISHED by consolidation of "The Trustees of the Astor Library," "The Trustees of the Lenox Library," and "The Tilden Trust," May 23, 1895, twenty-one Trustees being chosen from the Trustees of these corporations. The agreement of consolidation provided for the establishment and maintenance of a free public library and reading-room in the City of New York, with such branches as might be deemed advisable for the continued promotion of the objects and purposes of these several corporations.

The Trustees soon after the consolidation in 1895 determined to pursue a liberal policy and to create a great library system not only for the use of scholars, but for the people. The best permanent site for the future great library was considered to be in Bryant Park, on Fifth Avenue, between Fortieth and Forty-second Streets, on the site of the reservoir, which had become obsolete and was practically unused. On March 25, 1896, the Trustees made a formal address to the Mayor asking aid from the city in securing the site of the reservoir, and in May, 1896, the Legislature passed a law authorizing the removal of the reservoir and the lease of the land to the Library. On May 19, 1897, another act was passed providing for the construction by the city of a library building on the reservoir site, and for its lease to the Library, which act was amended in 1900, removing the limit of cost. On November 10 the architects were selected for the new building and on December 1 the plans were approved by the city. The style of architecture is Renaissance and the material used is white marble. The building fronts on Fifth Avenue, looking east. The greatest projection of the main façade of the building is seventy-five feet back of the Fifth Avenue building line. It is intended to make a terrace out of this seventy-five feet of foreground, serving as a grand approach to the main entrance. The terrace will be 455 feet long. There is a hallway in the centre of the building eighty feet long and forty feet wide. The staircases which lead to the second and third floors are of stone, twelve feet wide. The arches of the vestibule are thirty-five feet high and fifteen feet wide. The entrance to the stairs and the elevators is found on the Fortieth Street side. The rooms for the circulation of books and the children's room are on the basement floor, Forty-second Street side; on this floor are also the rooms for newspapers, the binding and printing departments; the first floor contains the offices of the business superintendent, superintendent of circulation, patents, and periodicals, reading-rooms, and exhibition rooms; on the second floor is the Trustees' room, the office of the Director, lecture and assembly rooms, cataloguing and accession departments, and various special reading-rooms; the third floor contains the large general reading-rooms, the public catalogue, special reading-rooms for manuscripts, Americana, etc., the Stuart books and pictures, the print room, etc. There is about 140 feet of ground between the west elevation of the building and the present park. The design of the building is monumental in character, with classical proportions. After delays, owing to the inability of the city to appropriate funds for the work, the removal of the reservoir was begun on June 6, 1899. The entire building was under roof at the end of November, 1906.

On March 12, 1901, Mr. Andrew Carnegie offered to give $5,200,000 to the city for the construction and equipment of free circulating libraries upon condition that the city should provide the land and agree to maintain the libraries when built. This communication was submitted to the Mayor on March 15, and on April 26 an act was passed authorizing acceptance of the gift by the city upon the terms imposed by Mr. Carnegie. An agreement with the city was executed on July 17, the Library acting as agent for Mr. Carnegie, under which forty-two buildings are to be erected in Manhattan, the Bronx, and Richmond (later increased to fifty), on sites to be selected and purchased by the city with the approval of the Library, the buildings to be leased to the Library and to be under its control. The city agrees to provide adequate yearly maintenance, 10 per cent. of the cost of each building being agreed upon as a minimum.

On November 7, 1901, an agreement was made with three firms of architects in New York to prepare plans and specifications for these branch libraries. On June 6, 1902, an issue of bonds for $250,000 was authorized for purchase of sites. The first Carnegie building, known as the Yorkville branch, was opened December 13, 1902, at 222 East Seventy-ninth Street; the second, providing a new home for the Chatham Square branch, was opened November 2, 1903, at 31 East Broadway. By the end of 1909 thirty-two branches had been opened under this contract. The Trustees of the Library are:

The Library of Congress.

THE Library of Congress was established in 1800, destroyed in 1814 by the burning of the Capitol, afterward replenished by the purchase by Congress of the library of ex-President Jefferson, 6,760 volumes (cost, $23,950); in 1851, 35,000 volumes destroyed by fire; in 1852, partially replenished by an appropriation of $75,000; increased (1) by regular appropriations by Congress; (2) by deposits under the copyright law; (3) by gifts and exchanges; (4) by the exchanges of the Smithsonian Institution, the library of which (40,000 volumes) was, in 1866, deposited in the Library of Congress with the stipulation that future accessions should follow it. Sixty sets of Government publications are at the disposal of the Librarian of Congress for exchange, through the Smithsonian, with foreign governments, and this number may be increased up to 100. Other special accessions have been: The Peter Force collection (22,529 volumes, 37,000 pamphlets), purchased 1867, cost $100,000; the Count de Rochambeau collection (manuscript), purchased 1883, cost $20,000; the Toner collection (24,484 volumes (numerous pamphlets); gift in 1882 of Dr. Joseph M. Toner, the Hubbard collection (engravings); gift in 1898 of Mrs. Gardiner G. Hubbard.

The collection is now the largest in the Western Hemisphere, and third in the world. It comprised at the end of the fiscal year (June 30, 1909) about 1,702,685 printed books and pamphlets (including the law library of which, while a division of the Library of Congress, still remains at the Capitol), manuscripts, maps and charts, pieces of music, and photographs, prints, engravings, and lithographs. Of the printed books, probably one-sixth are duplicates not in use.

The collection is rich in history, political science, in official documents, National, State, and foreign, and in Americana, including important files of American newspapers and original manuscripts (colonial, revolutionary, and formative periods). Many of the rare books and manuscripts belonging to the Library are exhibited in show cases on the second floor.

In 1897 the main collection was removed from the Capitol to the building erected for it under the acts of Congress approved April 15, 1886, October 2, 1888, and March 2, 1889, at a cost of $6,347,000 (limit by law, $6,500,000), exclusive of the land, which cost $585,000. The architects who furnished the original designs were John L. Smithmeyer and Paul J. Pelz. By the act of October 2, 1888, before the foundations were laid, Thomas L. Casey, Chief of Engineers of the Army, was placed in charge of the construction of the building, and the architectural details were worked out by Paul J. Pelz and Edward P. Casey. Upon the death of General Casey, in March, 1896, the entire charge of the construction devolved upon Bernard R. Green, General Casey's assistant, and under his superintendence the building was completed in February, 1897, opened to the public November, 1897. The building occupies three and three-quarter acres upon a site ten acres in extent at a distance of 1,270 feet east of the Capitol, and is the largest and most magnificent library building in the world. In the decorations some forty painters and sculptors are represented—all American citizens. The floorspace is 326,195 square feet, or nearly 8 acres. The book stacks contain about 56 miles of shelving, affording space for 2,600,000 octavo volumes.

The southeast interior court has been built over as a book stack, with capacity for 940,000 octavo volumes of books on 22 miles of shelves, and 84,000 volumes of newspapers on a similar length of shelves—22 miles.

The Library is maintained by annual appropriations by Congress for various purposes, including the purchase of books.

Library Service.—Library proper, 239 employes; copyright, 78; distribution of cards, 24; law indexing, 7; disbursement and care of building and grounds, 127. Total, 476. By virtue of the act of 1897, employes in the Library proper are appointed by the Librarian of Congress "solely with reference to their fitness for their particular duties."

Copyright Office.—The Copyright Office is a distinct division of the Library of Congress, and is located on the ground floor, south side; open 9 to 4.30. It is under the immediate charge of the Register of Copyrights, who, by the act of February 19, 1897, is authorized "under the direction and supervision of the Librarian of Congress," to perform all the duties relating to copyrights. Copyright registration was transferred to the Librarian of Congress by the act of July 8, 1870. Of most articles copyrighted two copies, and of some one copy, must be deposited in the Library of Congress to perfect copyright.

Entitled by statute to draw books for home use are the following: The President, the Vice-President, Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress (no books may be given out upon the orders of members in favor of those who are not members); Heads of Departments; the Justices, Reporter, and Clerk of the Supreme Court; the Judges and Clerk of the Court of Claims; Judges of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia and Judges of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; representatives at Washington of foreign governments; the Solicitor-General and Assistant Attorney-General; the Secretary of the Senate; the Clerk of the House of Representatives, the Solicitor of the Treasury, ex-Presidents of the United States; the Chaplains of the two Houses of Congress; the Secretary and Regents of the Smithsonian Institution; the members and Secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Chief of Engineers of the Army.

Inter-Library Loans.—While not a lending library, but a reference library, primarily and essentially, the Library of Congress maintains an inter-library loan system by which special service is rendered to scholarship by the lending of books to other libraries for the use of investigators, engaged in serious research, which it is not within the power or duty of the Library in question to supply, and which at the time, are not needed in Washington.

Hours.—The Library building is open to the public all days in the year excepting certain legal holidays. The hours are from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. week days, and from 2 P. M. to 10 P. M. Sundays and holidays.

The Main Reading Room, and Periodical Reading Room are open to the public from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. week days, and from 2 P. M. to 10 P. M. Sundays and holidays.

The Librarian's Office is open for the transaction of business from 9 A. M. to 4.30 P. M. week days, and from 2 P. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays and holidays.

The other administrative divisions of the Library, including the Copyright Office, are open for the transaction of business from 9 A. M. to 4.30 P. M. all days in the year, excepting legal holidays and Sundays.

Librarians Since the Inception of the Library.—1800-1814, the Clerk of the House of Representatives (for the time being); 1815-1829, George Watterston; 1829-1861, John S. Meehan; 1861-1864, John G. Stephenson; 1864-1897 (June 30), Ainsworth R. Spofford; 1897-January 17, 1899, John Russell Young; 1899 (April 5), Herbert Putnam.

General Administration.—Librarian of Congress, Herbert Putnam; Chief Assistant Librarian, Appleton P. C. Griffin; Chief Clerk, Allen R. Boyd.

Paul Otlet, the Secretary of the Brussels International Bibliographic Institute, estimates the number of printed books since the invention of printing to January, 1900, at 12,163,000 separate works, and the number of periodicals at between fifteen and eighteen millions.

Mr. A. Growoll, editor of "The Publishers' Weekly," has furnished the statistics from which the above figures have been compiled.

The Dickens Fellowship.

THE Dickens Fellowship is a worldwide league of English-speaking men and women whose purpose is to exemplify the teachings of Charles Dickens and to cultivate and diffuse the spirit which pervades his writings—the spirit of innocent festivity and mirth, of religion without bigotry, of charity without coldness, of universal philanthropy and human kinship. The society began its existence in London in October, 1902. The object and aims of the Fellowship are:

"To knit together in a common bond of friendship lovers of that great master of humor and pathos Charles Dickens. To spread the love of humanity, which is the keynote of all his work. To take such measures as may be expedient to remedy or ameliorate those existing social evils which would have appealed so strongly to the heart of Charles Dickens, and to help in every possible direction the cause of the poor and the oppressed. To assist in the preservation and purchase of buildings and objects associated with his name and mentioned in his works."

The Fellowship is open to all, without restriction as to class, creed or nationality. On the list of Vice-Presidents of the society are the following: Sir Francis C. Burnand, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the Rev. Canon Benham, Sir L. Alma-Tadema, J. Comyns Carr, T. P. O'Connor, M. P.; Miss Georgiana Hogarth, J. M. Barrie, Harry Furniss, W. S. Gilbert, Hall Caine and Lord James of Hereford. Branches of the Fellowship have been formed not only throughout Great Britain but in the United States and Canada, India, Australia and New Zealand, 15,000 members in all.

The officers of the Manhattan (New York) branch are: President—Dr. F. A. Lyons. Vice-Presidents—Hon. H. A. Metz, H. M. Leipziger, Ph. D., W. V. Hirsh, Mrs. Parker Morrison. Corresponding Secretary—Miss Louise G. Shinn, 505 W. 124th St., N. Y. City. Recording Secretary—A. Muerz, Ridgewood, N. J. Treasurer—Paul Shotland. Membership fees are $3 per annum. Dickens entertainments are a feature. Meetings are held from October to May on or about the 7th of every month.

American Philatelic Society.

ORGANIZED 1886. President—H. N. Mudge, 6643 Normal Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Vice-President—Frederick Cornwall, St. Louis, Mo. Secretary—H. S. Adair, Atlanta, Ga. Treasurer—Dr. W. P. Wherry, Omaha, Neb.

Literature in 1909.

NOTABLE BOOKS OF THE YEAR.

OUR viewpoint is the events of the year and the chief books that had bearing on the period covered. It was a red letter year in the calendar of literary biography. In it were celebrated the second centenary of Dr. Samuel Johnson and the centenaries of Charles Darwin, Gladstone, Tennyson, Edward Fitzgerald (world renowned translator of Omar Khayyam's "Rubaiyat," of which four fine editions were published), Edgar Allan Poe, Oliver Wendell Holmes and Abraham Lincoln. Death reaped among the authors and their departure led to much important criticism and useful reminiscence: Swinburne, Meredith, F. Marion Crawford, George Manville Fenn, Cesare Lombroso, Russell Sturgis, Edward Everett Hale, Theodore Cabot Lodge, Simon Newcomb, Henry Harland, Sarah Orne Jewett, Martha Finley, Rosa Nouchette Cary and Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson. The discovery of the North Pole, aerial navigation, wireless telegraphy, the curing of disease by various forms of religion (the triumph of mind over matter), Woman Suffrage, Christian Science (particularly as to its head, Mrs. Eddy,) and the sumptuous celebration of the Hudson-Fulton memorial (chiefly in New York City) and a great movement for municipal reform throughout the Union were uppermost in the public mind. The publishers and the booksellers flourished and the production of new books passed 7,000. There is still a month of the year before them and the books not yet on record will probably make a thousand more.

FICTION.

Every subject, even Government statistics, bridge building, dynamos and railroads finds its way into fiction. It is the one form of presentment that appeals to the reading public of America—the women. Naturally, the unbalanced, restless, dissatisfied attitude of the idle, luxurious, educated "brainy" woman has furnished material for many novels. Much discussion has come about the limit to be permitted in frankness in revealing the secrets of married life and the special tragedies that lead to separation and divorce. Some fiction stops at nothing—and it is chiefly written by women. Of course we do not exploit such fiction by title, but the motive with which it is written, the ethical effect it may have when in the hands of literary masters, must be faced in a review of the features of the year's fiction. The present unrest of women who do not comprehend their purpose in the scheme of creation is treated from an admissible standpoint in: "The Climber," by E. P. Benson (a selfish woman, determined to be a leader in London society); "Michael Thwaite's Wife," by Miriam Michelson (resemblance of twins that deceived the husband of one into taking the other after his wife has run away with another man); "Bella Donna," by R. S. Hichens (a wholly materialistic woman, who marries a husband with ideals); "The Winning Chance," by Elizabeth Dejeans (young girl who finds it impossible to live on earnings and lets employer support her); "Marriage à la Mode," by Mrs. Humphry Ward (argument against divorce); "Inner Shrine," published anonymously (heroine who lived a careless life in Paris, afterward reformed, but consequences follow her through life; brilliantly written); "The Magnate," by Robt. Elson (modern extravagance and woman's rule); "The City of Splendid Night," by J. W. Harding (electric lighted New York and an author trying to regain the affection of his divorced wife); "Anthony Cuthbert," by Richard Bagot (psychological study of difference of love and passion and of the civil and ecclesiastical marriage laws of Italy); "The Story of Thyra," by Alice Brown (a fine woman has an illegitimate child and sews her life away to educate him; made a great stir); "Sebastian," by Frank Danby (heroine writes novels, and lets husband kill himself to support her in luxury); "The End of the Road," by Stanley P. Hyatt (unhappy marriage from use of drugs; husband finds an affinity in Alaska); "Germaine," by Henry C. Rowland (girl adopted by writer of risqué stories who reads and knows of all things but remains wholly pure); "The Moccasin Ranch," by Hamlin Garland (strange conditions of life on a lonely prairie, far from civilization and conventions; wife leaves husband); "Pillars of Eden," by Philip V. Mighels (fashionable, useless wife finally changes into helpmate; "pillars" are love, children, work, unselfishness); "When a Woman Woos," by C. Marriott (daughter of drinking mother finds sympathy with a physician who always respects her); "Trespass," by Mrs. H. E. Dudeney (two men love a woman, who loves them both at times); "Wiving of Lance Cleaverage," by Alice MacGowan (man and wife make each other miserable and separate; his misfortune brings out wife's better nature); "The Journal of a Neglected Wife," by M. H. Urner (separation, tragedy of "other woman," readjustment of daily lives); "Wares of Edgefield," by Ezra Orme White (man and wife take time to learn to live together; temperance question introduced); "The Title Market," by Mrs. E. P. Post (international marriage; clever comparison of the reliable, careless, undevoted American husband, and the unreliable but outwardly devoted European husband), and "Julia Bride," by Henry James (satire on American divorce).

"High finance," as it is called, and great fortunes figure in "The Automatic Capitalists," by Will Fayne (speculation in gas bonds); "Masterman and Son," by W. J. Dawson (son disapproves of father's business methods); "The Diamond Master," by Jacques Futrelle (manufacture of bogus diamonds); "The Danger Mark," by Robt. W. Chambers (two children inherit vast fortune and peculiar family traits); "The King of Nobody's Island," by T. Enright (a maker of millions and without friends or health); "Three Keys," by Frederick Ormond (rich New Yorker squanders patrimony; makes another fortune by "high finance"); "The Governors," by E. P. Oppenheim (methods of group of millionaires who control American trusts and influence the money markets of the world; scathing criticism on sordid spirit of the age); "The Battle," by Cleveland Moffett (made from play; richest man of the world finds his son devoted to labor interests); "The Whirl," by Foxcroft Davis (romance of Washington diplomatic life); "The Hand-Made Gentleman," by Irving A. Bacheller (plan for combining railway lines with interview with "a man by the name of Carnegie," wonderful development of past fifty years in New York); "Simeon Tetlow's Shadow," (young assistant of brilliant railroad president runs a great corporation when president's health fails); "The Deafield Affair," by Florence Finch Kelly (story of Boston man who defaulted and ruined many innocent people); "The Ring and the Man," by Cyrus Townsend Brady (story of proprietor of large department store and the methods of "the ring" that governs New York politics); "King in Khaki," by H. K. Webster (financiering of great deal in tropical products); "A Reformer by Proxy," by J. Parkinson (London story of finance and fraud); "A Certain Rich Man," by W. Allen White (absorbing career of a money maker in Kansas who finally controls all persons and all things; the good and bad of present American life); "Tono Bungay," by Herbert G. Wells (story of the advertising methods that exploited this patent medicine); "The Butler's Story," by Arthur Train (inside view of life of newly rich New Yorkers); and a very superior novel, "The Chippendales," by Robert Grant (contrasting business methods of to-day and the time when the New England conscience governed; "electric coke" is the article speculated in).

Detective stories and stories of mystery proved very popular. "The Man Without a Shadow," by Oliver C. Cabot, records a case of mistaken identity; "The Web of the Golden Spider," by F. Orin Bartlett, (hypnotized girl sees visions); "The Red Mouse," by W. H. Osborne (mysterious murder in fashionable New York gambling house); "Perfume of the Lady in Black," by Gaston Leroux (same characters as "Mystery of the Yellow Room"); "The Bronze Bell," by L. J. Vance, author of "Brass Bow" and "Black Bag" (and equally successful); "The House With No Address," by "E. Nesbit" (dancer of Salome Dance lives in marvellously constructed house); "The Sealed Verdict," by E. M. Vandewater (beautiful actress killed; detective work); "Amethyst Cross," by Fergus W. Hume (author of "Mystery of a Hansom Cab"); "Elusive Isabel," by Jacques Futrelle (mysterious woman appears in Washington and secret service office watches her); "The Other Side of the Door," by Lucia Chamberlain (San Francisco murder story); "Lady Without Jewels," by Arthur F. Goodrich (kidnapping of American girls by eccentric German Count); "The Man in Lower Ten," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose "Circular Staircase" made such a hit; and "A Gentleman of Quality," by Frederic van Rensselaer (mistaken identity). Stories of mystery in which automobiles, airships, balloons and other modern inventions figure were "The Black Flyer," by Edith Macvane (motor ride for a wedding license); "Banza!" (Japanese war cry, sudden invasion of United States by Japanese; inventions, methods and ships of modern warfare); "The Hawk," by Ronald Ledge (fleet of airships attack English coast); "Air Ship Boys," by H. L. Saylor (quest of Arctic treasure in dirigible balloon); "Set in Silver," by the Williamsons (intercepted elopement; eight weeks' motor tour through England); "Waylaid by Wireless," by Edwin Balmer (story of English thief); "House Between the Trees," by J. R. Lane (motor car accident; girl restores brother's mind by skilful operation); "The New Commandment," by Anthony Verrall (ascent in tethered balloon, which breaks away and goes to heart of the American desert; Shaw's "Lady of the Dynamos" (arc lights and machinery in Ceylon; heroine invents plan for making fabulous riches); "The Magician," by W. Somerset Maugham (modern wizard sets out to produce human life by artificial means and sacrifices his own wife); "With the Night Mail," a story of 2000 A. D., by Rudyard Kipling (aerial run in postal packet from London to Quebec in one night), and "Zariah, the Martian," by Norman R. Grisewood (invention enables a visit to Mars and lovers whirl among the planets).

Of religious interest and much discussed were Hall Calne's "The White Prophet" (Mahdi, hero; criticism of England's rule in Egypt); P. Marion Crawford's "The White Sister" (law of Church and State in Italy); Ibanez's "The Shadow of the Cathedral" (law of Church and State in Spain); true religion and help for human brethren were treated in A. E. Jacomb's "Faith of His Fathers" (harshness of Puritan godliness); M. L. Knapp's "But Still a Man" (problems of ordinary American parish); Wright's "Calling of Dan Matthews" (presents a true minister and how he deals with Christian Science); Carter's "The Seamless Robe" (Christian Science accepted); Galsworthy's "Fraternity" (reform among the poor); Oppenheim's "The Missioner" and "Dr. East" (work among the east side Jews of New York City); "The Attic Guest," by Robt. E. Knowles (fearless preaching to moneyed congregation); G. Sandeman's "Uncle Gregory" (melodramatic philanthropy); A. R. Perrin's "Idolatry" (missionary work in India), and Querido's "Toil of Man" (terrible picture of modern life).

Books by standard authors included Mrs. Barr's "The Hands of Compulsion," Harold Bindloss's "The Greater Power," R. W. Chambers's "Special Messenger," Crawford's "Stradella," Richard Harding Davis's "The White Mice," Thomas Dixon's "Comrades," Miss Glasgow's "Romance of a Plain Man," Henry Hawland's "The Royal End," Mrs. Harrison's "The Score," Emerson Hough's "54-40 or Fight" (Louisiana Purchase), W. J. Locke's "Septimus," Jack London's "Martin Eden," Charles Lowe's "The Prince's Pranks" (Emperor William II.'s youth), Justin Huntley McCarthy's "The Gorgeous Borgia," G. Barr McCutcheon's "Truxton King," Mrs. A. C. Hegon Rice's "Mr. Opp," Mrs. Sarah Ellis Ryan's "The Flute of the Gods" (American Indian history), and Mrs. Stuart Phelps Ward's "Jonathan and David."

Of true literary merit were Phillpotts's "The Three Brothers" (farmers of Devonshire), and "The Haven" (a story of fishermen, full of world wisdom); "The Glory of the Conquered," by Susan Glaspell (a scientific husband and an artistic wife); Maurice H. Hewlett's "Open Country," continuation of "Halfway House" (thoughts on Socialism, religion, marriage, poverty, temperance and simplicity); "A Daughter of France," by C. E. Maud (a little Catholic French girl comes into a stiff British home; rare humor); "The Power of a Lie," by Johan Bojer; "This, My Son," by Rene Bazin (Breton peasant life); "The Bride of the Mistletoe," by James Lane Allen (history of the Christmas tree); Rickert's "The Beggar in the Heart" (a gem), and E. W. Townsend's "The Climbing Courvats" (prestidigitator and his delightful wife), and Mrs. Wiggins's "Susannah and Sue" (wife leaves husband for a season).

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL.

Finance, government, tariff, transportation, politics, emigration, immigration and social conditions specially affecting American life brought their full quota of books of investigation, reform, theory and practice. Finance can be studied in Jevons's "Investigations in Currency and Finance," Kinnaird's "Evolution of Money," Noyes's "Forty Years of American Finance," the report of the United States National Monetary Commission on the "Fiscal Systems of the United States, England, France and Germany," Davies's "Money and the Stock Market," Flehm's "Introduction to Public Finance," "Financial Diary 1909" (diary of past financial events from the beginning of financial history in the United States to the present time; diary of future financial events from April, 1909, to date), Vallette's "Financial Gatling Gun" (currency question), and Borsodi's "Financial Advertising." Government literature includes John Bigelow's "Substitute for the Tariff Upon Imports and a Provision for an Equitable Distribution of the Wealth of Nations," (Government ownership), Cleveland's "Chapters on Municipal Government and Accounting," Deming's "Government of American Cities," Munroe's "Government of European Cities," Goodnow's "Municipal Government," Wilson's "Civic Problems," Millard's "America and the Far Eastern Question" (relation of United States to problems involved), Bruce's "Romance of American Expansion" and Nathaniel Schmidt's "Federation of the World." Railroads and transportation, the vital questions in our vast country, produced books as follows: Johnson's "Element of Transportation," Rankin's "American Transportation System," Hill's "Future of Rail and Water Transportation," Peyton's "American Transportation Conditions," Gehart's "Transportation and Industrial Development of the Middle West," Quick's "American Inland Waters," Fagan's "Labor and the Railroads," Talbot's "Railway Conquest of the World," Carter's "When Railroads Were New," Cleveland's "Railroad Promotion and Capitalization in the United States," McPherson's "Railroad Freight Rates," Moody's "Analysis of Railroad Investments" and Mundy's "Earning Power of Railroads." After a long extra session of Congress a new code of tariff was finally arrived at. The questions involved brought Boyle's "Methods of Assessment as Applied to Different Classes of Subjects," Fillebrown's "A B C of Taxation," Means's "Methods of Taxation Compared with Established Principles of Justice," Page's "Taxation by Local and Special Assessments," Seligman's "Progressive Taxation in Theory and Practice," Walden and Mowry's "Revenue Law Informer," "Tax on Net Income of Corporations" (message from President Taft), and many treatises covering the issues involved in separate States. The issues of immigration clamor more and more for settlement, and are ably treated in O'Neill's "Naturalization Made Easy," Steiner's "The Immigrant Tide, Its Ebb and Flow," and the many volumes on the Chinese question, among which were most notable Cowan and Dunlap's "Bibliography of the Chinese Question in the United States," and Mrs. Coolidge's "Chinese Immigration."

The present social conditions of the United States were taken up in Alexander Francis's "Americans" (verdicts carry weight), Rogers's "The American Newspaper," Holtzclaw's "The Women of To-Day," Hamilton's "Marriage as a Trade," Hillquit's "Socialism in Theory and Practice" (studies Socialist movement of the world), Barnett and Rowland's "Towards Social Reform," Devine's "Misery and Its Causes" (by editor of Charities), Hobson's "Industrial System" (earned and unearned income), Candler's "Dangerous Donations and Degrading Doles" (colleges put under too much obligation to remain independent in management), Harding's "Select Orations Illustrating American Political History" (vital questions in the nation treated in speeches of public men). Fifteen new publications helped to solve the negro question. The woman suffrage question got some notice, but thus far no vital argument in its favor, and a notable treatise by James P. Lichtenberger (a professor of Columbia University) put the question of "Divorce" in a new light, studying it carefully as a natural feature in the economic changes of the past fifty years.

Ships and shipbuilding from the manufacturing and commercial side, naval art and science and navigation were actively studied, and specially interesting are Paine's "Ships and Sailors of Old Salem," Attwood's "Theoretical Naval Architecture," Morrison's "History of New York Shipyards," and many Government publications. The American battle fleet circumnavigated the world, and the officers of Edgar Allan Poe's "Pictorial Log of the Battle-Fleet Cruise Around the World" and "Around the World with the Battle-Ships," "Round the World with Our Navy," "Souvenir of the Visit of the American Fleet to Australia and New Zealand," brought Matthews's books "With the Battle Fleet" and "Back to Hampton Roads." Robt. W. Neeser's fine book in two volumes, "Statistical and Chronological History of the United States Navy, 1775 to 1907," is one of the great productions of the year.

BIOGRAPHY AND HISTORY.

The centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln brought out 70 books and pamphlets. Distinctive and original was the "Lincoln Tribute Book," appreciations by statesmen, men of letters and poets at home and abroad, with a Lincoln centenary medal made by Jules Edouard Roine, in bronze in the fine edition and in silver in the cheaper one, a work of international interest. John Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life" (90 years covered), Parker's "Recollections of Grover Cleveland," "Letters and Journals of Samuel Gridley Howe," edited by Laura E. Richards; Kuchnemann's "Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University," "The Last Letters of Edgar Allan Poe with Sarah H. Whitman," and Nathaniel S. Shaler's "Autobiography" are epoch making books. Other American biographies include Mrs. Roe's "Army Letters from an Officer's Wife," covering from 1871 to 1888; Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster's "From My Youth Up," B. Moses's "Louisa M. Alcott, Dreamer and Worker," Crothers's "Oliver Wendell Holmes," G. Rice Carpenter's "Walt Whitman," Bells's "Marcus Whitman, Pathfinder and Patriot" (murdered by Indians in 1847), Kimball's "Joshua James, Life Saver" (General Superintendent of the United States Life Saving Service), An Admiral's Logbook was Miller's "Pictorial Log of the United States," and last, in place of honor, the first two volumes of "Emerson's Journals," now published for the first time.

English biographies of note were "Love Letters of Thomas Carlyle and Jane Welsh" Craig's "The Making of Carlyle," Walling's "George Borrow," Hall Caine's "My Story," Cross's "Life and Times of Laurence Sterne," "The Autobiography of Sir Henry Morton Stanley" (of Livingston African fame, edited by his wife), a splendid edition of Boswell's "Samuel Johnson," gotten up for the bi-centennial, with illustrations from all the celebrated portrait painters of Johnson's day, and Broadley's "Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Thrale," which throws new light on Byron's affairs. "Francis Joseph and His Times" is by Sir Horace Rumbold, for twenty-five years British Ambassador in Vienna. There were upwards of twenty-five books on Shakespeare and three or four on the ever renewed Shakespeare-Baconian Cypher. "Wits, Beaux and Beauties of the Georgian Era," by J. Eyvie, covers the time from 1719 to 1827, when "Lady Cardigan's Letters" take up the inner life of those high in the public eye in England; and the great mass of biographical material collected for the period in France ruled by the Louis from XIV. to XVI. and the Napoleons that followed was a great feature of the year.

Biography runs into history. The Hudson-Fulton celebration brought New York prominently before the world. Esther Singleton's "Dutch New York," with its admirable illustrations; Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "History of the City of New York in the Seventeenth Century," Van Dyke and Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "The New New York," illustrated by Pennell; W. E. Griffis's "The Story of New Netherlands—the Dutch in America," Clifton Johnson's "The Picturesque Hudson," Mack's "The Palisades of the Hudson," Hall's "Hudson and Fulton," Sutcliffe's "Robert Fulton and the Clermont," Janvier's "Henry Hudson," and Horner's "Hudson-Fulton Celebration, September 25 to October 9," were but a few of the notable books. The great "History of the Philippine Islands," in 55 volumes, was finished, and bearing specially on America were Mulhall's "Explorers in the New World Before and After Columbus," Snowden's "History of Washington" (in 5 volumes), Matthews's "Remaking the Mississippi," Allen's "Our Naval War with France," Crockett's "History of Lake Champlain, 1609-1909," and "Lake Champlain Tercentenary" (July 4 to 10, 1909, companion volume to "Henryk Hudson Ter-centennial"), Ripley Hitchcock's "Decisive Battles of America," Murray Aaron's "The Heart of Our Country," presentation from official sources of the history, development and methods of the United States Federal Government in all its departments; a very valuable book; Enoch's "Mexico," Winter's "Guatemala and Her People of To-Day," Cornish's "The Panama Canal and Its Makers," (history, engineering and labor problems, and future of white races in the tropics), Channing and Lansing's "The Story of the Great Lakes," and Curwood's "The Great Lakes and the Vessels that Plough Through Them."

There were about twenty books on China, chiefly historical. Those most discussed were S. P. Conger's "Letters from China," Williams's "By the Great Wall," Gell's "Great Wall of China," Headland's "Court Life in China," Stanford's "Atlas of Chinese Empire," Thomson's "The Chinese," and "The Nestorian Monument" (discovered in 1625, an ancient record of Christianity in China). Of fifteen books on Japan we mention only Cary's "History of Christianity in Japan," Kuropatkin's "The Russian Army and the Japanese War" (suppressed by the Russian Government), Norman's "Real Japan," and Ozaki's "Warriors of Old Japan." Turkey figured in Buxton's "Turkey in Revolution," Knight's "The Awakening of Turkey" (famous English war correspondent), Brown's "Haremlik" (pages from the life of Turkish women), Upwards's "East End of Europe," and Garnett's "Home Life in Turkey," and many more, for Turkey is changing the political geography of nations. Perkins's "Builders of Spain" was a notable book, as were also Adugar's "Spain To-Day from Within," Calvert's "Royal Palaces of Spain," and Chadwick's "The Relations of the United States with Spain."

MISCELLANEOUS.

So many subjects press that the big classes of other years (which have not specially distinguished themselves this year) must yield to our special scheme, which is to cover first the books connected with the subjects of which the people spoke during the year. The North Pole has been discovered and there is still the doubt that makes things interesting, but Capt. Peary's book is already in hand, while Dr. Cook's presentations of his discoveries will no doubt soon follow. Mikkelsen, the Danish explorer, has also provided a book on "Conquering the Arctic Ice," proving there is land north of Alaska and west of Bank's Land, and Hyrst's "Adventures in the Arctic Regions" is full of news. The South Pole was nearly reached by Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton, who describes his great voyage in "The Heart of the Antarctic" with illustrations taken on the spot. That the South Pole is on a high plateau is now attested. Aerial navigation absorbs the world. It can be studied in Chatley's "The Force of Wind in Aeronautics" (by member of Aeronautical Society of Great Britain), Turner's "Aerial Navigation of To-Day," Lahn's "Aerial Navigation," Twining's "Model Aeroplanes," Lanchester's "Aerial Flight," Maxim's "Artificial and Natural Flight," Squires's "Present Status of Military Aeronautics," Hearne's "Aerial Warfare," Koch's "Conquest of the Air," and Victor Loughheed's "Vehicles of the Air." Advertising is becoming a fine art, perhaps a science. Books about it were Ayers's "Forty Years of Advertising, 1869-1900," Balmer's "Science of Advertising," Bellamy's "Effective Magazine Advertising," Borsodi's "Advertiser's Cyclopaedia of Selling Phrases," ($15 work) and "Financial Advertising," Egan's "Five Practical Chapters on Retail Advertising," Lewis and Duff's "How Fortunes Are Made in Advertising," E. S. Lewis's "Financial Advertising," French's "Art and Science of Advertising" and Pratt's "Advertising Manual."

Much study has been given to tuberculosis, which is now decided to be a curable disease. Literature on the subject includes Davis's "Consumption; Its Prevention and Cure Without Medicine," Hor's "Rational Immunization in the Treatment of Pulmonary, Tuberculosis and Other Diseases," "Simple Lessons on Tuberculosis and Consumption," Otis's "Great White Plague, Tuberculosis," Andrews's "White Peril; or, How Cured Myself of Consumption," and Knop's "Tuberculosis: Preventable and Curable Disease," &c.

The books emphasizing the power of mind over matter and those devoted to the study of the mysteries beyond this world came out in great number. There were at least a dozen books meditating on immortality. Those being discussed are Lombroso's "After Death, What?" notable because Lombroso died the day it appeared in this country and because he incorporated in his studies the medium Eusapia Palladino, who was much discussed; Dickinson's "Is Immortality Desirable?" Frank's "Modern Light on Immortality" (by founder of Independent Church, New York City), Rider's "Are the Dead Alive?" (personal beliefs of Sir Oliver Lodge, Tolstoy, Lombroso, Prof. Lang, Prof. William James of Harvard and others), Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard has books on "The Eternal Values" and on "Psychotherapy," in which he recognizes the element of truth, even in the Emmanuel Church movement and in Christian Science. Books of note were Dubois's "The Psychic Treatment of Nervous Disorders," Podmore's "Mesmerism and Christian Science," Starrett's "Mental Therapeutics; or, How to Cure All Diseases with the Mind," Thomson's "What is Physical Life?" Womer's "Relation of Healing to Law" (Emmanuel Movement), Huckel's "Mental Medicine" (conferences with students of Johns Hopkins Medical School), Finot's "Philosophy of a Long Life" (being translated into every known language), Fallows's "Peace and Happiness," and many writings on the Emmanuel Movement, Suggestion, New Thought and the various new creeds evolved by modern thought. There are 22 volumes on Christian Science alone. Ex-President Eliot's (of Harvard) "The New Religion" made a sensation, as did his "Five-Foot Bookcase of the Classics," in which the Bible and Shakespeare were not included.

Automobiles hold their own in modern life. The newest about them is found in Root's "Automobile Troubles and How to Remedy Them," Homes's "Motor Routes of England," Hutchinson's "Motoring in the Balkans," "Cyclopaedia of Automobile Engineering," Brewer's "Motor Car," Pemberton's "Amateur Motorist," "American Cyclopaedia of the Automobile" (in 6 volumes), Bottone's "Magnetos for Automobiles," Stowell's "Motor Tours in Wales," and books of "Automobile Laws" covering almost every State in the Union.

Works of description were specially rich and beautiful this year. Of great intrinsic value was Sven Hedin's "Trans-Himalaya," in which the great Danish scientist reached the most forbidden places of Tibet; Howells's "Seven English Cities," George Wharton Edwards's "Holland of To-Day," and the Pennells's "French Cathedrals" were also notable for text and artists.

Important works of reference of the year are the revision of "Webster's," to be known as the "New International Dictionary of the English Language," with many valuable improvements; new volumes in the "New Schaff-Herzog Encyclopaedia of Religious Knowledge," two new volumes in the "Catholic Encyclopaedia," and the many "Who's Who" volumes for American, English, German, French, Italian, Catholic and many local sections, notably New York, New England and various important towns.

(The following information has been furnished The World Almanac by the Board.)

The Simplified Spelling Board was organized in the United States in January 12, 1906, to promote the movement for a gradual regulation and simplification of English spelling. The organizers were a number of philologists, educators, and men of letters who had long favored and promoted the movement, and had ascertained, in the previous Summer (1905), by inquiry among many hundred leading educators and scholars that the time had come to take some definite steps forward. In March, 1906, the Board announced its organization and put forth its first proposals for simplification. It then consisted of twenty-eight members.

The first list of words whose simplification was recommended was entitled "A List of Common Words Spelled in Two or More Ways"—a list of three hundred words based on similar lists contained in Webster's Dictionary and the Standard Dictionary. The Board asked those persons who favored the idea of adopting the simpler of the two forms already in common use to signify that fact by signing a card. The signers would thus constitute a public upon which the Board could rely for continued support. The proposals thus made were approved by many thousand persons, who signified their approval by signing an agreement "to use, as far as may be practicable, the simpler spellings that have been recommended by the Simplified Spelling Board." The expressed aims and methods of the Board attracted world-wide attention and brought to its support many eminent men, among others Mr. Roosevelt, the then President of the United States, and Justice Brewer of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Board has published a "Second List" (January 30, 1908) and a "Third List" (January 25, 1909) of simplified forms of spelling, together with rules and reasons for the changes proposed. In March, 1909, it published the three lists in a combined form as an "Alphabetic List of Simplifications in Spelling recommended by the Simplified Spelling Board up to January 25, 1909." The card of agreement to use these simplified spellings in preference to the longer spellings has been signed by many thousand teachers, including the leading philologists and educators of the United States, and by many scholars and educators in foreign lands, as well as by many thousand other persons in professional and business life.

In September, 1908, through the intermediation of the Board, the Simplified Spelling Society of Great Britain was established, with Professor Walter W. Skeat, the eminent etymologist, as president, and Sir James A. H. Murray and Dr. Henry Bradley, the editors of the New English Dictionary; Dr. Frederick J. Furnivall, and other eminent scholars as vice-presidents, and William Archer, the distinguished dramatic critic, as secretary.

The following is a list of the present members of the Simplified Spelling Board:

LIST OF MEMBERS.

President, Thomas R. Lounsbury, professor of English in Yale University; Treasurer, Charles E. Sprague, president of the Union Dime Savings Institution, New York; Secretary, Charles P. G. Scott, etymological editor of the Century Dictionary, New York, N. Y.; Chairman of Executive Committee, Calvin Thomas, professor of Germanic languages and literature in Columbia University; E. Benjamin Andrews, William Archer, author, London, Eng.; O. C. Blackmer, publisher, Oak Park, Ill.; Henry Bradley, associate editor of the Oxford English Dictionary; David J. Brewer, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; James W. Bright, professor of English literature in Johns Hopkins University; Andrew Carnegie, Clarence G. Child, professor of English in the University of Pennsylvania; Samuel L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"); Melvil Dewey, formerly director of the New York State Library; Oliver F. Emerson, professor of rhetoric and English philology in Western Reserve University; David Fellmley, president of Illinois State Normal University; Isaac K. Funk, editor and publisher of the Standard Dictionary; Frederick J. Furnivall, founder and director of the Early English Text Society; Lyman J. Gage, formerly Secretary of the Treasury; *Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine; Charles H. Grandgent, professor of Romance languages in Harvard University; *William T. Harris, formerly U. S. Commissioner of Education, editor of Webster's International Dictionary; George Hempel, professor of Germanic philology in Leland Stanford University; Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Henry Holt, publisher, New York; William James, professor of philosophy in Harvard University; H. Stanley Jevons, lecturer in economics and political science in University College of South Wales and Monmouthshire, Cardiff, Wales; David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford University; Alexander H. MacKay, superintendent of education of Nova Scotia; William F. MacLean, M. P., editor of the Toronto World, Toronto, Ont.; Francis A. March, professor of English and of comparative philology in Lafayette College; Brander Matthews, professor of dramatic literature in Columbia University; William H. Maxwell, city superintendent of schools, New York; William W. Morrow, Judge of the United States Circuit Court, San Francisco; Sir James A. H. Murray, editor of the Oxford English Dictionary; Theodore Roosevelt, formerly President of the United States; Homer H. Seerley, president of the Iowa State Normal School; Walter W. Skeat, professor of Anglo-Saxon in Cambridge University; Benjamin E. Smith, editor of the Century Dictionary; Sir Robert Stout, Chief Justice of New Zealand, Wellington, New Zealand; Thomas G. Tucker, professor of classical philology in the University of Melbourne; E. O. Valle, formerly editor of Intelligence, Oak Park, Ill.; William Hayes Ward, editor of the Independent, New York; Andrew D. White, formerly president of Cornell University; Robert S. Woodward, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; Joseph Wright, professor of comparative philology in Oxford University, editor of the English Dialect Dictionary.

The qualifications for membership are thus stated in the constitution: "The qualifications for membership in the Council shall be the same as those expected for membership in the Board—namely, first, a belief in the principle and in the immediate practise of simplified spelling in some degree, and secondly, a recognized status and influence as educator, scholar, writer or man of affairs."

Nominations are made by members of the Board or of the Council. Educational and scientific societies in any State may propose persons to represent the State in the Council.

The offices of the Board are at No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City. Circulars of information are sent free to all inquirers, and the Board particularly requests that persons who wish information of its proposals should get it from its own publications and not rely upon casual and careless mentions in the newspapers.

The offices of the Simplified Spelling Society of Great Britain are No. 44 Great Russell Street, London, opposite the British Museum.

There are members of the Simplified Spelling Board in Canada, Australia and New Zealand. It is expected that organizations similar to the Simplified Spelling Board or the Simplified Spelling Society will ultimately be formed in all the divisions of the British Empire. There is no organized opposition to the movement among scholars or educators, and the Board claims that the greater part of the opposition in the newspapers is based upon lack of information and is made without examination into the real proposals of the reformers.

Copyright Law of the United States.

DIRECTIONS FOR SECURING COPYRIGHT UNDER ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 4, 1909.

THE new copyright law approved March 4, 1909, which took effect on July 1, 1909, provides that the application for registration of any work "shall specify to which of the following classes the work in which copyright is claimed belongs:"

SUBJECT MATTER OF COPYRIGHT.

(a) Books, including composite and cyclopaedic works, directories, gazetteers, and other compilations; (b) periodicals, including newspapers; (c) lectures, sermons, addresses prepared for oral delivery; (d) dramatic or dramatico-musical compositions; (e) musical compositions; (f) maps; (g) works of art; models or designs for works of art; (h) reproductions of a work of art; (i) drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character; (j) photographs; (k) prints and pictorial illustrations.

The application for registration of any article should distinctly specify to which one of these classes the work belongs. An article is not entitled to registration unless it is reasonably possible to class it under one or the other of the designations named in the statute.

STEPS NECESSARY TO SECURE COPYRIGHT REGISTRATION.

For works reproduced in copies for sale: 1. Publish the work with the copyright notice. The notice may be in the form "Copyright, 19... (year date of publication) by" (name of copyright proprietor)." 2. Promptly after publication, send to the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., two copies of the best edition of the work, with an application for registration and a money order payable to the Register of Copyrights for the statutory registration fee of $1.

In the case of books by American authors, the copies deposited must be accompanied by an affidavit, under the official seal of an officer authorized to administer oaths, stating that the type setting, printing, and binding of the book have been performed within the United States. Affidavit and application forms will be supplied by this office on request.

Books of foreign origin in a language or languages other than English are not required to be manufactured in the United States. In the case of a book in the English language published abroad before publication in this country, an ad interim copyright for 30 days may be secured by depositing in the Copyright Office one complete copy of the foreign edition within 30 days after its publication abroad. If two copies of such book manufactured in this country are deposited during the ad interim term, the copyright shall be extended for the full term of 28 years.

For works not reproduced in copies for sale: Copyright may also be had of certain classes of works (see a, b, c, below) of which copies are not reproduced for sale, by filing in this office an application for registration, with the statutory fee of $1, sending therewith: (a) In the case of lectures or other oral addresses or of dramatic or musical compositions, one complete manuscript or typewritten copy of the work. This privilege of registration, however, does not exempt the copyright proprietor from the deposit of printed copies of a dramatic or musical composition or lecture where the work is later reproduced in copies for sale. (b) In the case of photographs not intended for general circulation, one photographic print. (c) In the case of works of art (paintings, drawings, sculpture); or of drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character, one photograph or other identifying reproduction of the work.

COPYRIGHT FEES.

For registration of any work subject to copyright, $1, which sum is to include a certificate of registration under seal. But only one registration at one fee is required in the case of several volumes of the same book deposited in the Copyright Office at the same time. For every additional certificate of registration, or copy of record under seal, 50 cents. In the case of photographs the fee shall be 50 cents where a certificate is not requested. For recording and certifying an assignment of copyright, or for a certified copy of an assignment, $1, if the instrument is not over three hundred words in length; if more than three hundred and less than one thousand words in length, $2; if more than one thousand words in length, $1 additional for each additional one thousand words or fraction thereof over three hundred words. For comparing a copy of an assignment with the record of such document in the Copyright Office and certifying the same under seal, $1. For recording the transfer of the proprietorship of copyrighted articles, 10 cents for each title of a book or other article, in addition to the fee prescribed for recording the instrument of assignment. For recording an extension or renewal of copyright, 50 cents. Remittances should be made by money order payable to the Register of Copyrights.

DURATION OF COPYRIGHT.

The original term of copyright runs for twenty-eight years. Within one year prior to the expiration of the existing term, the author, if living, or the widow or widower of the author, or the children of the author if not living, or next of kin if none of the above are living, may secure a renewal for a further term of twenty-eight years, making fifty-six years in all.

ASSIGNMENTS.

Copyrights are assignable by any instrument of writing. Every assignment of copyright must be recorded in the Copyright Office within three calendar months after its execution in the United States, or within six calendar months after its execution without the limits of the United States, "in default of which it shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration, without notice, whose assignment has been duly recorded." Every assignment of copyright executed in a foreign country must be acknowledged by the assignor before a consular officer or secretary of legation of the United States authorized by law to administer oaths or perform notarial acts. The certificate of such acknowledgment under the hand and official seal of such consular officer or secretary of legation is prima facie evidence of the execution of the instrument.

Statistics of the Press.

THE ANNUAL, published by N. W. Ayer & Son, reported the number of newspapers published in the United States in 1909 as follows:

Alabama.....	249	Indiana.....	791	Nebraska.....	623	South Carolina....	156

* The French Academy is one of five academies, and the most eminent, constituting the Institute of France. It was founded in 1635 by Cardinal Richelieu, and reorganized in 1816. It is composed of 40 members, elected for life, after personal application and the submission of their nomination to the head of the state. It meets twice weekly, at the Palace Mazarin, 23 Quai Conti, Paris, and is "the highest authority on everything appertaining to the niceties of the French language, to grammar, rhetoric, and poetry, and the publication of the French classics." The chief officer is the secretary, who has a life tenure of his position. The present permanent secretary is Thureau-Dangin (No. 9), who was elected an Academician in 1893. A chair in the Academy is the highest ambition of most literary Frenchmen.

The other academies of the Institute of France are: The Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres, with 40 members; Academy of Sciences, with 68 members; Academy of Fine Arts, with 40 members (as follows: Painting, 14; sculpture, 8; architecture, 8; engraving, 4; musical composition, 6), and Academy of Moral and Political Science, with 40 members. All members are elected for life.

The Carnegie Hero Fund.

In April, 1904, Andrew Carnegie created a fund of $5,000,000 for the benefit of the dependents of those losing their lives in heroic effort to save their fellow men, or for the heroes themselves if injured only. Provision was also made for medals to be given in commemoration of heroic acts.

The endowment known as "The Hero Fund" was placed in the hands of a commission composed of twenty-one persons, residents of Pittsburgh, Pa., of which Charles L. Taylor is President, and F. M. Wilmot, Secretary, and Manager of the fund.

In his letter to the Hero Fund Commission Mr. Carnegie outlined the general scheme of the fund thus: "To place those following peaceful vocations who have been injured in heroic effort to save human life, in somewhat better positions pecuniarily than before, until able to work again. In case of death, the widow and children or other dependents are to be provided for until she remarries, and the children until they reach a self-supporting age. For exceptional children, exceptional grants may be made for exceptional education. Grants of sums of money may also be made to heroes or heroines as the commission thinks advisable—each case to be judged on its merits."

The fund applies only to acts performed within the United States of America, the Dominion of Canada, the Colony of Newfoundland, and the waters thereof, and such acts must have been performed on or after April 15, 1904.

The Commission has awarded 319 medals—163 bronze, 143 silver and 13 gold. In addition to the medals, $230,616 has been awarded for disablement benefits, and special purposes, and for the dependents of heroes who lost their lives, including payments made to December 31, 1909, on monthly allowances. On that date the amount of monthly allowances in effect was $22,440 annually. The Commission has also awarded $134,462 for relief of sufferers from disasters—at Brockton, Mass., $10,000; from the California earthquake, $54,462; at Monongah Mines, Monongah, W. Va., $35,000; at Darr Mine, Jacobs Creek, Pa., $25,000, and at Lick Branch Mine, Switchback, W. Va., $10,000.

Organizations for the Promotion of Education.CHAUTAQUA INSTITUTION.

Chancellor—John H. Vincent. President—George E. Vincent. President of Trustees—Clement Studebaker, Jr. Secretary—Ira M. Miller. Treasurer—Scott Brown. Director—Arthur E. Bestor. Located at Chautauqua, N. Y.

The Chautauqua Assembly, now Chautauqua Institution, was organized in 1874 as a result of the joint plan of Lewis Miller and John H. Vincent. It holds annual sessions during July and August at Chautauqua, N. Y. The plan includes Summer school courses of instruction in language, literature, science, and art, open lectures, concerts, and recitals, and various forms of platform entertainment and out-of-door recreation. Local assemblies patterned after the mother Chautauqua convene in different places throughout the United States and number over five hundred.

The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle (Kate F. Kimball, Chautauqua, N. Y., Executive Secretary) was organized at Chautauqua in 1878, with the aim of continuing the influence of the Assembly throughout the year in all parts of the country. Since that time more than two hundred and sixty thousand members have been enrolled. The Circle aims to promote the habit of reading and study in history, literature, science, and art, in connection with the routine of daily life. Each year four books are specially published for the course, and the Chautauquan Magazine (Frank Chapin Bray, Editor) offers series of articles relating to the plan of the year and gives advice as to home reading. The essentials of the plan are: A definite course covering four years, each year complete in itself; specified volumes approved by the counsellors, allotment of time by the week and month, a monthly magazine with additional readings and notes, review outlines, and other aids. Individual readers may pursue the course alone, or local circles may be formed by three or four members. The time required is about one half hour daily for nine months. Certificates are granted to those who complete the course. Seals are affixed to the certificates granted for collateral and advanced reading. Any one may become a member of the C. L. S. C. by sending an application, together with $5 for the unit (four books, membership book and magazine for one year), to Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, N. Y.

THE PEABODY EDUCATION FUND.

In 1867 and 1869 George Peabody established a fund of $3,500,000, to be devoted to education in the Southern States of the Union. Of this amount $1,380,000 being in Mississippi and Florida bonds was not available, those of Mississippi, having been repudiated and those of Florida issued while it was a Territory, never having been recognized as legal by its authorities. The fund was placed in the charge and control of sixteen trustees, of whom Mr. Robert C. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, was the chairman. Mr. Peabody died in London in 1869. The trustees hold meetings annually, usually in New York. They fill vacancies caused by death or resignation. The present trustees are: Chief Justice Fuller, President of the Board; Joseph H. Choate, First Vice-President; Dr. Samuel A. Green, Secretary; J. Pierpont Morgan; Theodore Roosevelt, of New York; Richard Olney, and Right Rev. William Lawrence, of Massachusetts; James D. Porter, of Tennessee; Henderson M. Somerville, of New York; George Peabody Wetmore, of Rhode Island; Charles E. Fenner, of Louisiana; Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Right Rev. William C. Doane; Graiville L. Winthrop, of New York, and Governor M. E. Amsel, of South Carolina; Prof. Wickliffe Rose is general agent of the fund, with headquarters at 927 Stahlman Building, Nashville, Tenn., and has charge of the distribution of the fund in the several Southern States. In its earlier history the chief aim of the fund was to encourage and secure the establishment of public school systems for the free education of all children. That having been accomplished, the income of the fund was for some years used for the training of teachers through normal schools and teachers' institutes. The fund is now used in aid of normal schools and in the interest of better supervising of rural schools. In the year ending October 1, 1908, the amount distributed was $80,000. Power was conferred by the deed of trust on the trustees to distribute the fund at the expiration of thirty years, which period ended in 1897. In January, 1905, the trustees decided, by a vote of 11 to 2, to dissolve the trust. It was expected to take several years to wind it up. The corporation will then cease to exist.

THE JOHN F. SLATER FUND.

In 1882 Mr. John F. Slater, of Connecticut, placed in the hands of trustees the sum of $1,000,000, for the purpose of "uplifting the lately emancipated population of the Southern States and their posterity." For this patriotic and munificent gift the thanks of Congress were voted, and a medal was presented. Education in industries and the preparation of teachers are promoted in institutions believed to be on a permanent basis. The board consists of William A. Slater, President; Melville W. Fuller, Vice-President; John A. Stewart, Alexander E. Orr, Cleveland H. Dodge, Seth Low, Wallace Buttrick, Richard H. Williams, Wickliffe Rose, David F. Houston. The Treasurer is the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York. Correspondence may be addressed to either of the Field Agents: G. S. Dickerman, 2 Rector Street, New York, and W. T. B. Williams, Hampton, Va. Schools established by States, denominations, and individuals are helped by annual donations. Among the more prominent are the Hampton Normal and Industrial, Spelman Seminary, Claflin University, Fisk University, Tuskegee Institute, and schools at Tougaloo, Miss.; Raleigh, N. C.; New Orleans, etc.

THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD.

The General Education Board was organized in New York February 27, 1902, and incorporated by act of Congress, signed January 12, 1903. The following are members of the Board: Frederick T. Gates, Chairman; George Foster Peabody, Treasurer; Wallace Buttrick, Secretary; Charles W. Eliot, Andrew Carnegie, Robert C. Ogden, Walter H. Page, J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., Albert Shaw, Starr J. Murphy, Hugh H. Hanna, E. Benjamin Andrews, Edwin A. Alderman, Hollis B. Frissell, Harry Pratt Judson, Edgar L. Marston. The purposes of the Board are to promote education in the United States, without distinction of race, sex, or creed, and especially to promote, systematize, and make effective various forms of educational beneficence. Office, 2 Rector Street, New York City.

THE SOUTHERN EDUCATION BOARD.

The Southern Education Board of the Conference for Education in the South—the outcome of the Capon Springs and Winston-Salem Conferences—has been organized with these officers and members: Chairman, Robert C. Ogden, New York; Treasurer, George Foster Peabody, New York; Secretary and Executive Secretary, Wickliffe Rose, Nashville, Tenn.; Associate Secretary, G. S. Dickerman, New Haven, Ct.; Campaign Committee, P. P. Claxton, Knoxville, Tenn., Chairman; Edwin A. Alderman, H. B. Frissell, Edgar Gardner Murphy, D. F. Houston, H. E. Fries, S. J. Bowie, S. C. Mitchell, J. H. Kirkland, Wickliffe Rose, J. H. Dillard. The object of this organization is to awaken and inform public opinion and secure additional legislation and revenues for the betterment of the public schools, "the supreme public need of our time."

The Carnegie Institution of Washington.

THE Carnegie Institution of Washington was founded by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, January 28, 1902, when he gave to a board of trustees $10,000,000, in registered bonds, yielding 5 per cent. annual interest. In general terms, he stated that his purpose was to "found in the City of Washington an institution which, with the co-operation of institutions now or hereafter established, there or elsewhere, shall in the broadest and most liberal manner encourage investigation, research and discovery, show the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind, and provide such buildings, laboratories, books, and apparatus as may be needed." Mr. Carnegie added $2,000,000 to his gift in 1907.

By an act of Congress, approved April 28, 1904, the institution was placed under the control of a board of twenty-four Trustees, all of whom had been members of the original board referred to above.

The Trustees meet annually, and during the intervals between such meetings the affairs of the Institution are conducted by an Executive Committee, chosen by and from the Board of Trustees, acting through the President of the Institution as chief executive officer.

The Administration Building is situated on the S. E. corner of 16th and P Streets N. W., Washington, D. C.

Trustees of the Institution—Chairman, John S. Billings; Vice-Chairman, Elihu Root; Secretary, Cleveland H. Dodge; John D. Cadwalader, William N. Frew, Lyman J. Gage, Henry L. Higginson, Charles L. Hutchinson, Seth Low, D. O. Mills, S. Weir Mitchell, Andrew J. Montague, William W. Morrow, Wm. Barclay Parsons, Henry S. Pritchett, Martin A. Ryerson, William H. Tait, William H. Welch, Andrew D. White, Robert S. Woodward. (Two vacancies.)

President of the Institution—Robert S. Woodward.

Executive Committee—Chairman, William H. Welch; John S. Billings, Cleveland H. Dodge, S. Weir Mitchell, William Barclay Parsons, Elihu Root, Charles D. Walcott, Robert S. Woodward.

UNITED CHAPTERS OF PHI BETA KAPPA.

The Phi Beta Kappa Society was founded at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., December 5, 1776, and now consists of 71 chapters located in as many of the leading colleges and universities in the land. The total living membership is nearly 17,000. Until 1883 the growth of the Society was comparatively slow, but since the organization of the United Chapters the development has been rapid, 47 chapters having been organized. At the ninth triennial council, held September 12, 1907, at William and Mary College, eight charters were granted, as follows: Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wesleyan and Virginia Universities, and Oberlin, Iowa and Franklin and Marshall Colleges. Women were first admitted in 1875, and the first charter to a woman's college, Vassar, was granted in 1898. Since then Smith, Wellesley, Mt. Holyoke and the Woman's College of Baltimore have received charters. At the recent Council President Mary E. Woolley, of Mt. Holyoke, was chosen to the Senate, the first woman to be thus honored. The officers for the term, 1907-1910 are: President, Prof. Edwin A. Grosvenor, LL.D., Amherst, Mass.; Vice-President, Hon. John J. McCook, LL.D., New York, N. Y.; Secretary and Treasurer, Rev. Oscar M. Voorhees, A.M., 350 East 146th Street, New York, N. Y.

Tau Beta Pi Fraternity.—An engineering honorary society founded at Lehigh University in 1885. It now has 22 chapters. R. C. Mathews, University of Tennessee, at Knoxville, is the national secretary.

Alpha Omega Alpha.—An honorary medical society in which scholarship is the membership qualification, and which admits women on the same basis as men. It was founded by William W. Root at College of Physicians and Surgeons at Chicago in 1902. It now has 14 chapters and 900 members. William W. Root, of Detroit, Mich., is the national secretary.

Acacia Fraternity.—An intercollegiate organization for Master Masons founded at the University of Michigan in 1904, now has a membership of 1,217 and 22 active chapters. The National Secretary is Harry E. Kilmer, 728 Rialto Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The Professional Fraternities now number 52, with a membership exceeding 38,000. They are located in both technical and professional schools. With the exception of Theta Xi (Engineering Scientific), members of professional fraternities may also belong to the general college fraternities.

Local or "One-College" Fraternities exist in nearly all colleges, and some date back as early as 1825. There are about 75, with a membership approximating 8,000. The women's local fraternities number about 50, with a total membership of about 3,000.

Beginnings of Famous Universities.

The University of Oxford has the reputation of having been founded by King Alfred in 872.

The first college of the University of Cambridge was founded by Hugo, Bishop of Ely, in 1257.

The University of Paris was founded by King Philip II, about 1200.

The first university in the German Empire was at Prague, Bohemia, 1348.

The Czar Alexander I. founded the Universities of St. Petersburg and Moscow in 1802.

The oldest Spanish University is that of Salamanca, founded in 1240.

The University of Copenhagen, Denmark, was founded in 1479.

The University of Upsala, Sweden, was founded in 1477.

The oldest Italian universities are Bologna, founded 1200; Padua, 1222; Naples, 1224; Genoa, 1243; Perugia, 1276; Macerata, 1290. There were nine more founded between 1300 and 1550. Italy was the greatest resort of students for the higher education in the Middle Ages.

Trinity College, Dublin, was incorporated by royal charter in 1591.

The University of Edinburgh was founded in 1582 by a charter granted by King James VI., of Scotland.

Harvard University had its beginning at Newtown, afterward Cambridge, Mass., in 1636.

Yale University had its beginning at Saybrook, Ct., in 1700, and was removed to New Haven in 1716.

Columbia University was chartered as King's College in 1754. The name was changed to Columbia College in 1754 and Columbia University in 1896.

Princeton University, founded in 1746, was chartered as the College of New Jersey, and did not assume its present name officially until its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary in 1896.

William and Mary College (first steps taken toward establishing it in 1617) erected at Williamsburg, Va., and charter granted in 1693.

The first common schools established by legislation in America were in Massachusetts, 1645; but the first town school was opened at Hartford, Ct., prior to 1642.

The University of Pennsylvania had its beginning at Philadelphia, Pa., in 1740. It was chartered in 1753 as the Academy and Charitable School in the Province of Pennsylvania, and received a further charter as a college in 1755. Its present title dates from 1791.

The University of Jagiello, of Cracow, Poland, where Copernicus received his education, was founded in 1364 by the Polish King Kazimiers the Great, and endowed by a later Polish King, Jagiello, in 1400.

The "New Thought" is said by its leaders to be "a science, a philosophy, a religion." Their theory of the universe—which they hold to be real—is that it is composed of two essential elements—one, the Creator (spirit), and the created (matter); that the creative force consists or is manifested in vibrations of a "Spiritual Ion," which acts and reacts upon the objects of the material world; that these creative Spiritual Ions pervade everything, and that man can so grade the vibrations of his being as to draw different qualities and use different degrees from the storehouse (as it is called) of "Spiritual Ion."

Faith they regard as one of the chief instruments through which the Ions of the individual can be brought to a condition where they may draw most largely and of the best from the Universal Storehouse. Other instrumentalities are reason, illumination and emanation. They recognize the dual character of the mind and define the so-called subjective mind—the subconscious intelligence—as the home in man of the Spiritual Ion. Whatever, then, is done to increase the efficiency of the subjective mind is of benefit to the individual, as he can thereby draw more largely upon the inexhaustible reservoir of the Creative Spiritual Ion.

The doctrines are those of a progress toward perfection through the instrumentalities above suggested, and others. They believe in the power of the Creative Spirit to cure disease, and in the last analysis to cure without drugs or surgery. They do not, however, put this extreme of belief in practise, but restrict their efforts to cases that are curable through the instrumentality of the subconscious mentality of the subject. The movement differs from Christian Science in that it carries no negation of matter nor of pain, but affirms that that which is can be cured through the progression of the individual toward perfection. The system of cure, as practised, does not essentially differ from that adopted by the Christian Scientists, and within the sphere of their self-imposed limitations, by Dr. Worcester and the practitioners of the Emmanuel Movement, and consists largely of putting the patient into a receptive or a hypnotic condition, and while he is in such condition controlling the functional reactions by suggestion or auto-suggestion.

The leaders of New Thought use the word God as synonymous with the "Creative Spiritual Ion," the "Great First Cause," "Universal Intelligence," "Absolute Substance," "Cosmic Consciousness;" the Bible they accept as a history of the spiritual man, of individuals, and of the nations whom it depicts. They do not allow its inspiration nor to Jesus Christ divinity. The New Thought has "churches" in Boston, New York, Newark, Buffalo and in many other centres. Schools for the advancement of its propaganda are also to be found in these cities, and a quite extensive literature sets forth its theories and its claims.

The Alfred B. Nobel Prizes.

The Swedish scientist, Alfred B. Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, died in 1896, bequeathing his fortune, estimated at $9,000,000, to the founding of a fund, the interest of which should yearly be distributed to those who had mostly contributed to "the good of humanity." The interest is divided in five equal shares, given away, "One to the person who in the domain of physics has made the most important discovery or invention, one to the person who has made the most important chemical discovery or invention, one to the person who has made the most important discovery in the domain of medicine or physiology, one to the person who in literature has provided the most excellent work of an idealistic tendency, and one to the person who has worked most or best for the fraternization of nations, and the abolition or reduction of standing armies, and the calling in and propagating of peace congresses."

The prizes for physics and chemistry are awarded by the Swedish Academy of Science, that for physiological or medical work by the Caroline Institute (the faculty of medicine in Stockholm), that for literature by the Swedish Academy in Stockholm, and the peace prize is awarded by a committee of five persons, elected by the Norwegian Storting.

In accordance with these statutes the awarders of the prizes (the four above named institutions) elect fifteen deputies for two consecutive years, the Academy of Science electing six, and the other prize awarders three each. These deputies elect for two consecutive years four members of the Board of Directors of the Nobel Institute, which Board, exclusively consisting of Swedes, must reside in Stockholm. A fifth member, the President of the Board, is nominated by the Government. The Board of Directors has in its care the funds of the institution, and hands yearly over to the awarders of the prizes the amount to be given away. The value of each prize is on an average $40,000. The distribution of the prizes takes place every year on December 10, the anniversary of Mr. Nobel's death. Full information can be obtained from "Nobelstiftelsens Styrelse" (The Board of Directors of the Nobel Institute), Stockholm, Sweden.

The awards made until now have been: Physics, 1901, W. C. Röntgen, German; 1902, H. A. Lorentz and P. Zeeman, Hollanders; 1903, H. A. Becquerel, P. Curie, and Marie Curie, all French; 1904, Lord Rayleigh, English; 1905, Prof. Philipp Leonard, of Kiel University, German; 1906, Prof. J. J. Thomson, of the University of Cambridge, English; 1907, Prof. Albert A. Michelson, of the University of Chicago, American; 1908, Professor Gabriel Lippman, University of Paris, French; 1909, William Marconi, Italian, and Professor Ferdinand Braun, of Strassburg, German.

Chemistry: 1901, J. H. van Hoff, Professor of the Berlin University, Hollander; 1902, E. Fischer, German; 1903, S. A. Arrhenius, Swede; 1904, Sir William Ramsay, English; 1905, Adolph von Baeyer, German; 1906, Prof. Henri Moissan, French; 1907, Prof. Edouard Buchner, of the Berlin University, German; Sir William Crookes, English; 1908, Professor Ernest Rutherford, University of Manchester, English; 1909, Professor Wilhelm Ostwald, German.

Medicine: 1901, E. A. von Behring, German; 1902, R. Ross, English; 1903, N. R. Finsen, Dane; 1904, Pavloff, Russian; 1905, Prof. Robert Koch, German; 1906, Prof. Ramon y Cajal, Spanish; Professor Golzi, French; 1907, Dr. Laveran, of Paris, French; 1908, Dr. Paul Ehrlich, of Berlin, German; and Professor Elie Metschnikoff, Pasteur Institute, Paris, Russian; 1909, Professor Theodor Kocher, of Berne, Swiss.

Literature: 1901, R. F. A. Sully-Prudhomme, French; 1902, Th. Mommsen, German; 1903, Björnsterne Björnson, Norwegian; 1904, Frederic Mistral, French, and José Echegaray, Spaniard; 1905, Henry Sienkiewicz, Pole; 1906, Professor Carducci, Italian; 1907, Rudyard Kipling, English; 1908, Professor Rudolf Eucken, Jena University, German; 1909, Selma Lagerlof, Swede.

Peace: 1901, Henri Dunant, Swiss, and Fr. Passy, French; 1902, E. Ducommun and A. Gobat, both Swiss; 1903, W. R. Cremer, English; 1904, The Institution of International Law, the first award to an institution; 1905, Baroness von Suttner, Austrian; 1906, President Theodore Roosevelt, American; 1907, Ernesto Teodoro Moneta, Italian, and Louis Renault, French; 1908, K. P. A. Arnoldson, Swede, and M. F. Bajer, Dane; 1909, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, French, and M. Beernaert, Belgian.

Smithsonian Institution.

FOR THE INCREASE AND DIFFUSION OF KNOWLEDGE AMONG MEN.

OFFICERS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

Ex-Officio Presiding Officer of the Institution, William H. Taft, President of the United States; Chancellor of the Institution, Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the United States; Secretary of the Institution, Charles D. Walcott; Assistant Secretary in Charge of United States National Museum, Richard Rathbun.

Board of Regents, Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the United States, Chancellor; James S. Sherman, Vice-President of the United States; Shelby M. Cullom, Member of the Senate; Henry Cabot Lodge, Member of the Senate; A. O. Bacon, Member of the Senate; John Dalzell, Member of the House of Representatives; James R. Mann, Member of the House of Representatives; William M. Howard, Member of the House of Representatives; James B. Angell, citizen of Michigan; Andrew D. White, citizen of New York; John B. Henderson, citizen of Washington, D. C.; Alexander Graham Bell, citizen of Washington, D. C.; Charles F. Choate, Jr., citizen of Massachusetts; George Gray, citizen of Delaware.

The Institution at Washington, D. C., was established by statute in 1846, under the terms of the will of James Smithson, who bequeathed his fortune in 1826 to the United States for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." From the income of the fund a building, known as the Smithsonian Building, was erected on land given by the United States. The Institution is legally an establishment having as its members the President of the United States, the Vice-President, the Chief Justice, and the President's Cabinet. It is governed by a Board of Regents consisting of the Vice-President, the Chief Justice, three members of the United States Senate, three members of the House of Representatives, and six citizens of the United States appointed by joint resolution of Congress. It is under the immediate direction of the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who is the executive officer of the Board and the director of the Institution's activities.

For the increase of knowledge, the Institution aids investigators by making grants for research and exploration, supplying books, apparatus, laboratory accommodations, etc. It occasionally provides for lectures, which are published. It has initiated numerous scientific projects of national importance, some of which have been turned over to the Government and resulted in the creation of independent Government bureaus. It advises the Government in many matters of scientific importance, especially in those that have an international aspect. It co-operates with scientific bodies of national importance, like the National Academy of Sciences, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Historical Association, etc. It issues three regular series of publications: Annual Reports, containing papers of general interest intended to keep the ordinary reader abreast of the progress of science; Contributions to Knowledge, the distinct feature of which is that each memoir constitutes an original contribution to knowledge; Miscellaneous Collections, which contain bibliographies, reports of expeditions, standard tables, and a scientific quarterly. All these publications are distributed gratuitously to important libraries throughout the world.

THE INSTITUTION LIBRARY.

The Institution maintains a library, in co-operation with the Library of Congress, which numbers 250,000 volumes, and consists mainly of the transactions of learned societies and scientific periodicals. While the body of the library is deposited in the Library of Congress and accessible to all its readers, a working library is maintained at the Institution. Lists, bibliographies, rules for cataloguing and library work have been published. It supports a table at the Naples Zoological Station. All these and numerous other activities may be carried on solely from the income of the Smithsonian fund. The Regents are empowered to accept gifts without action of Congress, in furtherance of the purposes of the Institution, and to administer trusts in accord therewith.

The parent Institution has the administrative charge of several branches which grew out of its early activities and which are supported by Congressional appropriations. These are the National Museum, including the National Gallery of Art; the International Exchange Service, the Bureau of American Ethnology, the National Zoological Park, the Astrophysical Observatory, and the Regional Bureau for the International Catalogue of Scientific Literature.

THE UNITED STATES NATIONAL MUSEUM is the depository of the national collections. It is especially rich in the natural history, geology, paleontology, archaeology and ethnology of America, and has unique collections of American history, as well as many series relating to fine arts and the industrial arts. It is both an educational and a research museum, and issues numerous technical and popular scientific publications. The National Gallery of Art consists largely of the collections of etchings and engravings of George P. Marsh, the collections of Charles L. Freer, containing numerous paintings and etchings by Whistler, and examples of Chinese and Japanese art; the Harriet Lane Johnston collection, including a number of the greatest English portrait painters, and the collection of William T. Evans, of one hundred paintings, representing some of the best work of American artists.

THE INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE SERVICE, carried on in accordance with the terms of a treaty entered into between the United States and various foreign nations, is for the free interchange of Governmental and scientific publications between the Government of the United States and foreign governments and institutions, and investigators in the United States and foreign lands. At present it has 62,630 correspondents, and since its establishment more than 3,378,000 packages have been handled by it.

THE BUREAU OF AMERICAN ETHNOLOGY, for the study of the North American Indian; THE ASTROPHYSICAL OBSERVATORY, for the investigation of solar phenomena; THE NATIONAL ZOOLOGICAL PARK at Washington, containing about 1,400 animals, and the Regional Bureau of the INTERNATIONAL CATALOGUE OF SCIENTIFIC LITERATURE, for the preparation of a classified index to the current scientific literature of the United States, are also departments of the work of the Institution.

The Japanese National Exposition of 1917.

The following statement has been prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC by the Japanese Embassy at Washington:

The Exposition which will be held in 1917 in Tokio is a national exposition, and is to be maintained and administered by the Imperial Government of Japan. It was planned to have the exposition held during the year 1912, but early in 1908 it was decided that owing to world wide financial disturbances during 1907 it would be advisable to postpone the exposition until 1917. That will be the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of the present Emperor during whose reign Japan has made such wonderful strides in commerce, manufactures and, in fact, in every field of human endeavor. While it is a national exposition, the participation of the governments and peoples of foreign countries is cordially invited and the Japanese Government will make the plan on such a scale as not only to render it the largest exposition ever held in Japan, but give it a positively international character. This has been communicated to several countries, and many of them, appreciating the desire of the Japanese Government, have already shown their readiness to render their assistance.

It is expected that the national appropriation alone in connection with the projected exposition will amount to about $5,000,000. Added to this, the local government and municipality of Tokio, as well as the various local governments throughout the Empire of Japan and the Government of Formosa, and so forth, will make appropriations in their respective budgets so that the total governmental and municipal appropriation covering the direct expenditures of the exposition will aggregate at least more than $10,000,000.

The grounds of the exposition will occupy about 250 acres of land, of which about thirty acres will be covered by buildings already decided upon. Special buildings will be set apart for exhibits representative of arts and science, including those relating to education and also of machineries and electrical appliances.

The period during which the exposition is to be held is determined to be from April 1 to October 31, so as to include both the cherry blossom and the chrysanthemum seasons, of which so much has been written by writers on Japan, and talked of by foreign visitors who have been there.

From these facts it can be easily seen that the Japanese Government desires to offer an unexcelled opportunity for foreigners to take a trip to Japan and to be entertained with attractions and amusements which even the natives may not often witness except on such an occasion.

Being a national exposition, the primary object of the enterprise is to widen the knowledge of the Japanese people as regards the industrial development attained within their own country as well as in the whole world; but, nevertheless, no better opportunity will be found in the near future than this exposition for one who entertains the desire to know the Japanese people better and to study deeper the natural and industrial resources of the country, no less than the present state of civilization and industrial achievement of her people.

Brussels Universal and International Exhibition of 1910.

A Universal and International Exhibition will open at Brussels, Belgium, in the month of April, 1910, and continue six months. Its palaces and halls will be erected in the new quarter of the Avenue Louise, in the Bois de la Cambre, a favorite resort of the Brussels people.

The exhibition will include, in broad lines, artistic, scientific, industrial, commercial and colonial sections. The artistic section will consist of an international saloon of fine arts. The scientific section will embrace, with the various degrees of education, the instruments and general methods connected with letters, sciences and arts. The industrial section will be made up of all the products, methods and materials, both industrial and agricultural. Steps will be taken to render fully complete the special groups connected with fancy trades, mines, metallurgy, machinery, electricity, arm manufacturing and mechanical locomotion. The programme further contains special exhibitions, temporary agricultural and horticultural shows, congresses, conferences, artistic and sportive fetes.

The Executive Committee also proposes to organize during the exhibition popular games and competitions. Furthermore, like other exhibitions, national compartments will be formed wherein the works and productions of a same country will be divided into groups and classes, according to a system of general classification. The exhibition will cover a total area of about two hundred acres, a large portion of which will be reserved to the foreign sections. The installations will be connected with the Belgian State Railway, so as to bring all exhibits up to the required spot on rail tracks laid down in the halls and grounds.

An international jury of awards has been instituted, to operate under the control of the Commissioner-General of the Belgian Government. The members of the jury have been designated by the Government of their respective countries. Foreign Governments have been advised of the organization of the Brussels Universal and International Exhibition, in which they will be invited to take part and to be officially represented by accredited Commissioners; these Commissioners, representing their respective nationalities and having the charge of their interests, will arrange with the Executive Committee of the exhibition company, through the Government Commissioner-General, all questions relating to the distribution of space reserved to their respective country and installation of each national section.

Although an undertaking solely due to private initiative, the Brussels Exhibition has insured the effective co-operation of the Belgian Government, and also the support of the city of Brussels and province of Brabant. It is placed under the high patronage of His Majesty the King of the Belgians and under the honorary presidency of His Royal Highness Prince Albert of Belgium. The Duke d'Ursel has been invested with the functions of Government Commissioner-General to the Brussels Exhibition, and M. J. Gody is Deputy Commissioner-General and John B. Storme Secretary.

All communications connected with the exhibition are to be addressed by prepaid letter to the President of the Executive Committee, 34 Rue des XII Apotres, Brussels.

The New York office is at 389 Fifth Avenue.

American Exposition in Berlin in 1910.

AN "American Exposition" will be held in Berlin, Germany, in the months of April, May and June, 1910. It is proposed that it shall contain practically everything that the United States has to offer to the rest of the world in the form of natural products and manufactured wares. A large number of American business and manufacturing concerns of the first importance have secured space for their exhibits.

The exposition will be held in the permanent exhibition hall of the Berlin Zoological Gardens. The originator of the enterprise was Baron Rudolph von Brandenstein, who is its chief promoter. Prince Henry of Prussia has accepted the Presidency of the German Committee of the Exposition and J. Pierpont Morgan is President of the American Committee, with David R. Francis, of Missouri, as first Vice-President; Prof. George F. Atwood, Secretary of the American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin, is the European manager. American representative in New York City, Max Vieweger, Hudson Terminal Buildings.

Turin International Exposition of 1911.

An International Exposition of Industry and Labor will take place at Turin, Italy, from April to October, 1911, under the patronage of the King of Italy, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the proclamation of the Italian kingdom. In the same year Rome will hold an exhibition of historical archaeological and artistic character to celebrate the same event, but the Turin Exposition will be devoted to a world's industrial display.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce of New York has appointed a committee for the United States and has opened an office in the International Exposition Bureau, 116 Produce Exchange, New York, to which intending exhibitors may apply for information. An exceptional opportunity will be offered to Americans to show the quality of their products to the people of Italy.

Exposition in 1913 Celebrating Perry's Victory.

The one hundredth anniversary of the victory of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry over the British fleet under command of Capt. Barclay in the battle of Lake Erie, September 10, 1813, will be celebrated by an historical and educational exposition at Put-in-Bay Island during the summer of 1913 and a dedication of a national memorial to Commodore Perry and the American seamen who perished in that conflict, the remains of many of whom have reposed in unmarked graves on Put-in-Bay Island for nearly a hundred years.

The State of Ohio took the initiative in the project by necessary legislation providing for the appointment of commissioners to carry forward such plans as they deemed advisable, and since that time the States of Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, by legislation and the appointment of commissioners, have joined in the enterprise. The other States which will be invited to participate are New York, Indiana, Minnesota, Kentucky and Rhode Island. Legislation will be introduced in the Sixty-first Congress, at the instance of the Ohio delegation in behalf of national aid for the memorial and exposition.

The officers of the Ohio Commission are: President, William H. Reinhardt, Sandusky; Vice-President, George H. Worthingham, Cleveland; Secretary, Webster P. Huntington, Columbus; Treasurer, S. M. Johannsen, Put-in-Bay.

The exposition will open on July 4, 1913, and close September 10. Its historical and educational interests will be under the direction of the historical societies and the universities and colleges of the States participating. The only industrial feature will relate to an exhibit for the promotion of the shipping interests of the Great Lakes. In conjunction with the permanent memorial to Commodore Perry the exposition will commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of Gen. William Henry Harrison's Northwestern campaign.

International Exposition in Buenos Ayres in 1910.

An International Railways and Transportation Exposition will open at Buenos Ayres, Argentine, in May, 1910, and continue until November. Several nations, particularly Germany, are making efforts to be largely represented. Consul-General Jose V. Fernandez, of the Argentine Republic, 80 Wall street, New York, represents the exposition in the United States.

Celebration of the Opening of the Panama Canal.

Plans are being matured both at San Francisco and San Diego, Cal., to hold international expositions in celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal for traffic, which is expected to take place January 1, 1915. That at San Francisco is being promoted by Julius Kahn, Representative in Congress from California. The San Diego Panama Canal Exposition is in charge of a committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce of that city, of which John Spreckels is the head, assisted by ex-Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage, U. S. Grant, jr., G. A. Davidson, A. G. Spalding, and others of prominence. A company with $1,000,000 capital has been organized.

World's Fair at Denver in 1912.

It is proposed to hold a world's fair at Denver, Col., in 1912 to cost about $3,000,000, and Congress will be asked to contribute $1,000,000. Thomas F. Walsh is to be President of the Board of Directors, and among other Colorado men of prominence who are interested are Dennis Sheedy and D. H. Moffat, of Denver, and James H. Peabody, of Canon City. The exposition is expected to make particular efforts to exploit the industries of the great West.

Mexican Centenary Celebration.

The Centenary of the Republic of Mexico will be celebrated in the City of Mexico in September, 1910. Among the features will be a great international aeroplane meet.

Boston Ter-Centennial Exposition of 1920.

The landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock and the founding of New England took place in 1620, and it is proposed to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the event by a great world's exposition at Boston, Mass., in 1920. The Boston Herald broke ground for the movement in April, 1909, and it has met with a ready and warm support from all classes of business men. The plans will be matured at an early day.

Good Roads.

BY ARTHUR C. JACKSON, PRESIDENT NATIONAL GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION.

Fifty years ago Charles Sumner declared that "the two greatest forces for the advancement of civilization are the schoolmaster and good roads." There is an increasing multitude of people who believe that it is a matter of tremendous import that in the United States bad roads are directly responsible for the loss of over a billion dollars a year and that the saving of this stupendous sum constitutes an economic question of vast importance.

In the year 1890 the foundation of the National Good Roads Association was laid in a State Good Roads Convention held at Kansas City, Mo. The subject of "Charities, Correction and Good Roads" was discussed by delegates from several States. The sentiment and resolution of that convention recommended to the Governors of all States "That the increasing demands of charity for the defective classes and the tremendous increase of criminal arrests in the nation call for stringent vagrancy laws and their vigorous enforcement." Another resolution urgently requested "the co-operation of municipal, county and State authorities to utilize the labor of able-bodied tramps, vagrants, paupers and short term prisoners in public improvements."

It has been shown that such labor can be used economically and with good results on quarries, gravel pits and rock piles in preparing the materials and loading it upon work trains or wagons and in the actual construction of roads and streets. Many States are now making substantial progress in road-building with convicts. It is the aim of the National Good Roads Association to continue its agitation of the question until every commonwealth, municipality and district community shall be awakened to its importance, enact suitable laws providing for this public work and then see that these laws are enforced. At all times, and more especially during stringent periods, there is a large army of itinerant men who drift from State to State and who live by begging or stealing. They commit nearly every crime in the criminal calendar. Hundreds of thousands of this class are arrested annually, housed and fed and kept in idleness in jails or prisons at the expense of the honest toilers and taxpayers. This is a senseless crime against the State.

During the last nineteen years the Good Roads Associations have held over two thousand county, State and national good roads conventions. Vast quantities of literature have been distributed. The public press has printed thousands of pages, ever educating communities while advocating and urging good roads as a substantial asset and as a social and commercial necessity in the nation's expansion, contentment and prosperity.

The Interstate Association was merged into the National Good Roads Association in convention at Chicago, November 21, 1900. Its objects were and are, first, to associate all who are in sympathy with the good roads movement in a universal demand for the permanent improvement of public roads and streets; second, to secure better results from the millions of dollars annually expended upon the public roads and streets; third, to have established in all States and Territories highway departments with practical engineering supervision; fourth, to secure thorough teaching of highway engineering in all universities and agricultural colleges; fifth, to utilize all able-bodied tramps, vagrants, paupers, prisoners and convicts in preparing materials and building public roads and streets; sixth, to secure State and national aid for the construction and maintenance of permanent public roads for this and future generations.

On November 17, 1909, the following officers of the National Association were elected: President, Arthur C. Jackson, President National Good Roads Congress; Vice-President, F. A. Delano, President of the Wabash Railroad; Secretary, H. W. McAfee, President of the Kansas State Good Roads Association; Treasurer, Anna M. Grady, Secretary and Treasurer of the Illinois State Good Roads Association.

On May 23, 1908, the National Good Roads Congress was incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois to associate all interested in a national movement for good roads, and the following call was signed by the Governors of forty States and the Mayors of more than one hundred leading cities, convening the Congress at Chicago June 15, 1908, and Denver July 6, 1908: "Recognizing a well-nigh universal sentiment in favor of better public highways, and believing that a general discussion of this great problem from every point of view will prove timely and effective, the undersigned join in urging all interested to attend the National Good Roads Congress at Chicago June 15, 1908, and Denver July 6, 1908, that the results of its deliberations may be presented for the consideration of the coming national conventions, all legislative bodies and the public in general."

As a result of the congress the Republican National Convention at Chicago adopted the following good roads plank in its platform: "We recognize the social and economic advantages of good country roads, maintained more and more largely at public expense and less and less at the expense of the abutting owner," and the Democratic National Convention at Denver declared, "We favor Federal aid to State and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads."

The second National Good Roads Congress was held at Johns Hopkins University May 18, 19, 20 and 21, 1908, and in Washington, D. C., May 22, 1909. It was opened by Cardinal Gibbons and addressed by Vice-President Sherman, Speaker Cannon, Gov. Grothens and many of the most prominent men in public life. Among the resolutions adopted by this Congress was one urging the construction by the National Government of a system of permanent national highways connecting the capital at Washington with the capitals of every State and Territory, and urging the several States to supplement these highways by another system of State roads to connect the several State capitals with the county seats of each State. It also favored the annual appropriation by the National Government of a certain percentage of the internal revenue receipts for road construction and the loaning to States by the National Government, upon the application of the proper authorities, of money without interest for road building, the same to be repaid in annual instalments. It also urged the immediate adoption of a postal savings bank bill in the confident belief that such a measure would yield abundant funds for a complete system of State and national highways.

The officers of the Congress are the same as the National Association, and the headquarters of both organizations are at Chicago, Ill.

State Legislation Regulating Railroad Rates.

THERE were numerous minor changes by the State Legislatures during 1909. A disposition was evident to compromise between the State and the railways in most instances. The courts, both Federal and State, were kept busy with the adjudication of disputes between the State Railway Commissions and the railways. There is a general indication throughout the country that in the working out of the Hepburn law material improvement in the railway situation is to be noted.

The condition of the country having improved by leaps and bounds since the panic season of 1907-8, the disapproval of the claims that the railways were to become the sufferers through the operations of the National Railway Rebate act and the various State rate provisions has been effected. In most instances the stocks of the great trunk lines are now selling at a higher point than before the campaign for a revision of the national railway law.

The important legislation and judicial acts of 1909 are as follows:

Arkansas—Principal lines of the State obtained in Federal court a temporary injunction against the State Railway Commission's standard freight distance tariff. The Legislature this year appropriated $50,000 for use of the Railway Commission in defending its position.

California—California's State Railway Commission has but one law of importance regarding rates. It provides that the Commission may set maximum tariffs on all grades of freight, a maximum rate may be charged, but if it is a reduction of rate must require in all instances thirty days' notice.

Colorado—The State Commission in its annual report made a list of recommendations for changes in the law, none of which was passed by the Legislature. These recommendations were: (1) Elimination of exemption of roads less than twenty miles long from operation of State law; (2) Increase salary of Chairman of Commission and requirements to devote all of his time to official duties; (3) Give Commission power to hear any and all complaints and transmit interstate matters to the Interstate Commerce Commission; (4) Amendment of State law creating the Commission to make it conform more closely to Interstate Commerce Commission; (5) A State anti-pass statute similar to Federal act.

Florida—By a decision of the Supreme Court the railroad commissioners of Florida have under their general power the right to fix reciprocal demurrage.

Kansas—An act reducing commodity rates was passed after an order for that purpose by the State Railway Commission had appealed to the Federal Court. The new law has been in effect some months.

Louisiana—The Railway Commission has adopted the form of annual report prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission for the use of common carriers in making their annual report.

Michigan—The Legislature added to the powers of the Railway Commission at the 1909 session authority to order railroads to construct spur tracks on their own premises where deemed reasonable at the expense of the shipper requesting such spur; to investigate claims for irregular or erroneous freight charges, to determine the amount of refund in such cases; to establish through routes and joint rates and to determine maximum charge. The power to postpone for forty-five days the date of a new rate becoming accepted. The Commission is also given jurisdiction over the rates charged by electric power companies for their service.

Montana—Additional powers were given the State Railroad Commission regarding the enforcement of rules and regulations for the use of safety appliances by railroads, to enforce the construction of commercial spurs and granted to the District courts power to enforce by proper decree the injunction rulings and orders of the Commission. The law also gives the railroad companies the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the State from judgment of the District courts and gives precedence to railway business over all other court proceedings except criminal cases and original proceedings in the Supreme Court.

Nebraska—Certain changes in the State Railway law regarding the details of administration were passed. The issuance of stocks, bonds and notes payable at a greater period than twelve months is forbidden the railroads without the consent of the Railway Commission. The two-cent fare law and the maximum freight law have been made the subject of attacks in the courts. Suits to test their validity are still pending.

Oregon—An adjustment has just been effected between the State and the Pacific Express Company by which express rates are reduced one-fifth. There are inter-alia proceedings pending relative to grain rates charged by the railroads throughout the State.

International Bureau of the American Republics.

THE International Bureau of the American Republics was established under the recommendation of the First International American Conference, held in the city of Washington in 1890 for the purpose of maintaining closer relations between the several Republics of the Western Hemisphere. It was reorganized by the Second International American Conference, held in the city of Mexico in 1901, and its scope widened by imposing many new and important duties. A prominent feature of the new arrangement was the foundation of the Columbus Memorial Library. The International Bureau corresponds, through the diplomatic representatives of the several governments in Washington, with the executive departments of these governments, and is required to furnish such information as it possesses or can obtain to any of the Republics making requests. It is the custodian of the archives of the International American Conference, and is especially charged with the performance of duties imposed upon it by these conferences. The International Bureau is sustained by contributions from the American Republics in proportion to their population, and is governed by a board composed of the diplomatic representatives at Washington from the several countries composing the Union, and the Secretary of State, who is ex-officio its chairman. It publishes a monthly bulletin containing the latest official information respecting the resources, commerce, and general features of the American Republics, as well as maps and geographical sketches of these countries, which publications are considered public documents, and as such are carried free in the mails of all the Republics of the Union.

National Conservation Association.

ORGANIZED October 27, 1909. Membership is open to every American citizen. The general object of the Conservation Association is the practical application, through legislative and administrative measures by the States and by the National Government, of the conservation principles adopted by the Governors of the United States at their conference with President Roosevelt at the White House, in May, 1908. Referring to these principles, the Conservation Association makes this announcement:

"We therefore form this association to advocate and support the adoption by the people themselves and by their representatives of definite and practical measures to carry the foregoing principles into effect, and to oppose in all appropriate ways all action which is in conflict with these principles, whether such action is attempted by individual citizens, members of Legislatures or administrative officers."

President—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, of Cambridge, Mass.; Vice-President—Walter L. Fisher, of Chicago, Secretary—Thomas R. Shipp, of Indianapolis.

The New York office is at Broadway and 23d Street, in the Fifth Avenue Building.

Aeronautic Records.
AEROSTATION.

FREE SPHERICAL BALLOONS.

World's record distance: Count Henry de la Vaulx and Comte Castillon de Saint Victor, Vincennes, France, to Korostychev, Russia, 1,925 kilometres (1,193 miles) in 35¼ hours, October 9-11, 1900.
United States record distance: Oscar Erbsloh and H. H. Clayton, St. Louis, Mo., to Bradley Beach, N. J., 872¼ miles, October 21-23, 1907, in 41 hours, winning the Gordon Bennett International Aeronautic Cup.
World's record duration, seventy-two hours, made by Colonel Schaeck, a Swiss military officer, from Berlin, Germany, on October 11, 1908, in the Gordon Bennett International Balloon Race, landing in the sea off the coast of Norway. The old record of 52 hours was held by Drs. Kurt and Alfred Wegener.
United States record duration: Clifford B. Harmon and Augustus Post, St. Louis, Mo., to Edina, Mo., 48 hours, 26 minutes, in St. Louis Centennial Balloon Race, October 4, 1909.
World's record altitude: James Glaisher, September 5, 1862, claims to have reached 37,000 feet. This is now doubted. Professors Berson and Surin, of the Berliner Verein für Luftschiffahrt, have reached an altitude of 34,000 feet.
United States altitude record: 24,200 feet, reached by Clifford B. Harmon and Augustus Post, St. Louis, Mo., to Edina, Mo., October 4, 1909. Not official.
Lahn Cup record (United States): 697 miles, A. Holland Forbes and Col. Max C. Fleischmann, St. Louis, Mo., to near Beach, Va., October 12, 1909.

DIRIGIBLES (STEEERABLE BALLOONS).

World's record duration and distance: German military dirigible, "Zeppelin II." covered 900 miles in 37 hours 40 minutes, on May 29-30, 1909. Trip without a landing.
World's height record: French dirigible, "Clement Bayard," bought by Russia, 1,550 metres, August 23, 1909.

AVIATION.

World's record one-man distance and duration, Henry Farman at Mourmelon, France, November 3, 1909, 4 hours 17 minutes 53 seconds, covering 232 kilometres (144 miles) and may be considered to have won the Michelin cash prize and trophy, for 1909, unless this is beaten by December 31.
World's two-man duration and distance record: Orville Wright and passenger, Captain Englehardt, September 18, 1909, at Berlin, Germany, 1 hour 35 minutes 47 seconds.
World's two-man speed record: Henry Farman, with one passenger, Rheims, France, August 28, 1909, 10 kilometres in 9 minutes 52 1-5 seconds.
World's altitude record: Louis Paulhan in a Farman machine at Mourmelon, France, November 25, 1909, reached 1900-2000 feet.
World's three-man duration, distance and speed record: Henry Farman, with two passengers, Rheims, France, August 28, 1909, 10 kilometres in 10 minutes 39 seconds.
World's quick starting: Santos Dumont 70 metres, September 15, 1909, Dr. William Greene, Morris Park, New York, 30 feet, November, 1909. Unofficial as yet.
World's fastest average speed: Leon Delagrangé, 49.99 miles per hour, at Doncaster (England) aviation meet, October 26, 1909.
 Unverified—Santos Dumont made 59.61 miles per hour at St. Cyr, France, September 13, 1909.
World's longest time cross-country flight: Col. S. F. Cody, at Laffans Plain, England, September 8, 1909, 1 hour 3 minutes, covering about forty miles.
World's most spectacular feats: Count de Lambert in a Wright aeroplane, October 18, 1909, from Juvisy Aerial Race Course (near Paris) over Paris, around the Eiffel Tower and return, thirty miles distance; time, 49 minutes 39 2-5 seconds. Wilbur Wright, from Governor's Island, N. Y., October 4, 1909, up the Hudson to Grant's Tomb and return, twenty miles distance; time 33 minutes 33 seconds. Louis Bleriot's flight across the English Channel from Calais to Dover, July 25, 1909, distance about thirty-one miles, in 37 minutes.

AERONAUTIC TERMINOLOGY.

Aerostation—Transportation or locomotion through the air by means of using gas as a sustaining force.
Aviation—Transportation or locomotion through the air without gas as a sustaining force. Aviation is the art of mechanical or dynamic flight.
Spherical Balloon—Ordinary round balloon.
Dirigible (or dirigible balloon or steerable balloon)—An elongated gas bag equipped with a power plant and propellers.
Aeroplane—Commonly a machine having large surfaces, held in the air by its planes being forced against air by a power plant and propellers revolving in a vertical plane. Types of aeroplanes: monoplanes, biplanes, triplanes, quadropplanes.
Helicopter—A "direct lift" machine, a machine with but a power plant and horizontal propellers. The propellers "screw" their way up into the air.
Ornithopter—A "flapping wing" machine, a close imitation of a bird.

United States Census of Religious Bodies.

ABSTRACT OF THE FIRST REPORT OF THE 1906 STATISTICS.

THE Bureau of the Census issued August 29, 1909, the following abstract of the first report of the statistics of religious bodies in the United States in 1906.

There were in the United States in 1906, the period of the fifth United States Census of the Religious Bodies in this country, 186 religious denominations, 212,230 local religious organizations, 32,936,445 church members, and $1,257,575,867 invested in church edifices.

The bulletin is in the nature of an abstract of the comprehensive report, in press, prepared under the supervision of Chief Statistician William C. Hunt, of the population division of the Census Bureau, and contains the results of the last census, which was preceded by those of 1850, 1860, 1870, and 1890.

A glance at the proof sheets shows that males formed but 43.1 per cent. of the total church membership; that eight new churches were erected every day during the sixteen years from 1890 to 1906; that in sixteen States the Roman Catholics formed a majority of the church membership; that the percentage which church members formed of the population was larger by 6.4 per cent. in 1906 than in 1890; and that of the total number of church members reported, 61.6 per cent. were returned by the Protestant bodies and 36.7 per cent. by the Roman Catholic Church.

THE INCREASE IN DENOMINATIONS.

The bulletin enters upon an analysis of the 186 denominations making up the grand total for 1906, as against 145 in 1890, an increase of forty-one. Between 1890 and 1906, twelve denominations ceased to exist, four were consolidated with others, and four disappeared through changes in classification, leaving 125 denominations reported both in 1890 and 1906.

The denominations added by division of denominations numbered thirteen, and forty-eight other new denominations brought the total new ones up to sixty-one, making 186 the grand total of all denominations reported in 1906. Of the forty-eight new denominations, eleven are the result of immigration, and most of the remainder, the result of the organization of entirely new cults. The 186 denominations are subdivided into families, 154 being grouped into twenty-seven families and thirty-two being classed as unrelated. Another classification of the 186 bodies embraces the distinctively Protestant, numbering 164; the Roman Catholic Church, one; the Jewish congregations, one; the Latter-Day Saints, two; the Eastern Orthodox churches, four; and fourteen others, including the Armenian Church, the Bahais, the Buddhists, the Shakers, the Amarna Society, the Polish National Church, the Society for Ethical Culture, the Spiritualists, the Theosophical societies, and the Vedanta Society.

THE NUMBER OF ORGANIZATIONS.

It is pointed out in the bulletin that the statistical unit employed in the presentation of religious bodies is the organization, meaning a church, a congregation, a society, or a meeting, and embraces not only a church proper, but also each mission, station, or chapel, when separately organized.

The total number of organizations covered by the 1906 census was 212,230. This is an increase since 1890 of 47,079, or 22.5 per cent. The Protestant bodies increased 42,564, or 27.8 per cent.; the Roman Catholic Church, 2,243, or 21.9 per cent.; the Jewish congregations, 1,236, or 231.9 per cent.; and the Latter-Day Saints, 523, or 28.3 per cent. The Eastern Orthodox churches increased from two organizations in 1890 to 41 in 1906. "All other" bodies increased 299, or sixty-four per cent. Of the 212,230 organizations in 1906, the 164 Protestant bodies reported 195,618, or 92.2 per cent.; the Roman Catholic Church, 12,482, or 5.9 per cent.; and the remaining bodies, 4,130, or about two per cent. In 1890 there were 165,151 organizations, the Protestant bodies controlling 153,054, or 92.7 per cent.; the Roman Catholic Church, 10,239, or 6.2 per cent.; and the remaining bodies, 1,858, or a little over one per cent.

RANK OF RELIGIOUS BODIES.

The general order or rank of the principal religious bodies in 1906 with respect to organizations was: Methodists, 64,761 organizations; Baptists, 54,880; Presbyterians, 15,506; Lutherans, 12,703; Roman Catholics, 12,482; Disciples or Christians, 10,942; Protestant Episcopalians, 6,845; Congregationalists, 5,713; United Brethren, 4,304; Evangelical Association, 2,738; Reformed, 2,585; Adventists, 2,551; Jewish congregations, 1,769; Christians (Christian connection), 1,379; German Evangelical Synod, 1,205; Latter-Day Saints, 1,184; Friends, 1,147 and Dunkers, 1,097.

The Methodist bodies reported 30.5 per cent. of the entire number of organizations, and the Baptist bodies, 25.9 per cent. Thus these two families together embraced considerably more than one-half of the organizations in the United States.

The number of members reported by the various bodies for 1906 and 1890, together with the actual and relative increase, are shown in a table in the bulletin. It is stated that in all Protestant bodies the membership is practically adult membership. In the Roman Catholic Church all baptized persons, including infants, are returned as members. In order to render the figures more nearly comparable, fifteen per cent. has been deducted from the membership returned for the Roman Catholic Church to cover those under nine years of age. Among the Jewish congregations only heads of families are reported as members, so that the strength of this religious body was greatly understated in the report.

CHURCH MEMBERS NUMBERED 32,936,445.

All denominations reported a grand total numbering 32,936,445 communicants or members in 1906 and 20,597,954 in 1890, an increase of 12,337,530, or 60.4 per cent. The Protestant bodies reported 20,287,742 in 1906 and 14,007,187 in 1890, an increase of 6,280,555 or 44.8 per cent.; the Adventist bodies reported 92,735 in 1906, 60,491 in 1890, an increase of 32,244 or 53.3 per cent.; the Baptist bodies reported 5,692,234 in 1906, 3,712,468 in 1890, an increase of 1,949,766 or 52.5 per cent.; the Christians (Christian connection) reported 110,117 in 1906, 103,722 in 1890, an increase of 6,395 or 6.2 per cent.; the Church of Christ, Scientist, reported 85,717 in 1906, 8,724 in 1890, an increase of 76,993 or 882.5 per cent.; the Congregationalists reported 700,490 in 1906, 512,771 in 1890, an increase of 187,709 or 36.6 per cent.; the Disciples or Christians reported 1,142,359 in 1906, 641,051 in 1890, an increase of 501,308 or 78.2 per cent.; the Dunkers reported 97,144 in 1906, 73,795 in 1890, an increase of 23,349 or 31.6 per cent.; the Evangelical bodies reported 174,780 in 1906, 133,313 in 1890, an increase of 41,467 or 31.1 per cent.; the Friends reported 113,772 in 1906, 107,208 in 1890, an increase of 6,564 or 6.1 per cent.; the German Evangelical Synod reported 293,137 in 1906, 187,432 in 1890, an increase of 105,705 or 56.4 per cent.; the independent churches reported 73,673 in 1906, 13,360 in 1890, an increase of 60,313 or 451.4 per cent.; the Lutheran bodies reported 2,112,494 in 1906, 1,231,073 in 1890, an increase of 881,422 or 71.6 per cent.; the Mennonite bodies reported 54,798 in 1906, 41,541 in 1890, an increase of 13,257 or 31.9 per cent.; the Methodist bodies reported 5,749,338 in 1906, 4,342,281 in 1890, an increase of 1,407,057 or 32.4 per cent.; the Presbyterian bodies reported 1,830,553 in 1906, 1,277,831 in 1890, an increase of 552,724 or 43.3 per cent.; the Protestant Episcopal Church reported 886,042 in 1906, 522,043 in 1890, an increase of 364,999 or 69.7 per cent.; the Reformed bodies reported 449,514 in 1906, 309,458 in 1890, an increase of 140,056 or 45.3 per cent.; the Unitarians reported 70,542 in 1906, 67,749 in 1890, an increase of 2,793 or 4.1 per cent.; the United Brethren bodies reported 296,050 in 1906, 225,281 in 1890, an increase of 70,769 or 31.4 per cent.; the Universalists reported 44,158 in 1906, 49,194 in 1890, an increase of 14,964 or 30.4 per cent.; other Protestant bodies reported 226,703 in 1906, 129,374 in 1890, an increase of 97,329 or 75.2 per cent.; the Roman Catholic Church reported 12,019,142 in 1906, 6,241,708 in 1890, an increase of 5,837,434 or 93.5 per cent.; the Jewish congregations reported 101,457 in 1906, 130,496 in 1890; the Latter-Day Saints reported 253,647 in 1906, 166,125 in 1890, an increase of 90,522 or 54.5 per cent.; and the Eastern Orthodox churches reported 129,606 in 1906, 600 in 1890, an increase of 129,006 or 21,501 per cent.; all other bodies together reported 81,851 in 1906, 51,838 in 1890, an increase of 30,013 or 57.9 per cent.

The total increase noted, 12,367,530, is exclusive of Jewish congregations. As to the latter, it is shown that the 1906 total represents heads of families only, while the 1890 total includes all members. As the figures for the two censuses are not comparable, neither increase nor percentage can be shown.

PROTESTANTS OUTNUMBERED ROMAN CATHOLICS.

Of the total number of members reported, 61.6 per cent. were returned by the Protestant bodies; 36.7 per cent. by the Roman Catholic Church; and 1.7 per cent. by all other bodies together. In 1890 the Protestant bodies reported sixty-eight per cent. of the total membership; the Roman Catholic Church, 30.3 per cent.; and "all other" bodies together, 1.7 per cent. The rate of increase shown for the Roman Catholic Church was 93.5 per cent., more than twice that for all Protestant bodies taken together, 44.8 per cent.

Among the Protestants, the Methodist bodies ranked first in number of members, with 17.5 per cent. of the total for all religious denominations, and the Baptist bodies came next, with 17.2 per cent. These two families together constituted somewhat more than one-third of the entire Protestant membership of the country. If to these be added the Lutheran bodies, Presbyterian bodies, and the Disciples, the five denominational families combined included 16,497,480 members, a little more than one-half of the total membership of the country, and more than four-fifths of all the Protestant membership.

The rank of the five Protestant families named, in respect to relative increase in membership, was as follows: (1) Disciples, 78.2 per cent.; (2) Lutheran bodies, 71.6 per cent.; (3) Baptist bodies, 52.5 per cent.; (4) Presbyterian bodies, 43.3 per cent.; and (5) Methodist bodies, 25.3 per cent. Noteworthy increases reported are those of the Lutheran bodies, 71.6 per cent.; the Protestant Episcopal Church, 66.7 per cent.; and the Christian Scientists, 88.5 per cent. The actual increase for this latter body, however, was probably much smaller, for the reason that, in accordance with the practice of this body, many are counted as members of the "Mother Church" in Boston who are also members of branch churches. It is probable, as learned from an authoritative source, that the duplication thus resulting amounted to nearly, if not quite, one-half of the membership (41,634) of the Mother Church.

In the increase of some of the religious bodies, immigration has had a large share, especially in the case of the Lutheran bodies, German Evangelical Synod, the Roman Catholic Church, and the Eastern Orthodox churches.

The Roman Catholic Church reported the highest number of members per organization, 969. For the Protestant bodies as a whole, the average number of members per organization was only 104.

MALES CONSTITUTED ONLY 43.1 PER CENT.

The census of 1906 collected for the first time statistics of the membership of sex. Of the total number of members returned by sex, 43.1 per cent. were male and 56.9 per cent. female.

For the Protestant bodies as a whole the difference was greater, 39.3 per cent. being male and 60.7 per cent. female. For the Roman Catholic Church the membership was nearly equally divided between the sexes, 49.3 per cent. being male and 50.7 per cent. female. This is true also for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, which reports 48.6 per cent. male. The largest percentage of males shown for any denomination was that for the Greek Orthodox Church, 53.9, which is due to the fact that practically all the Greek immigrants have been males. The Lutheran bodies showed 46.1 per cent. males; Disciples, 40 per cent.; Methodist and Baptist bodies, 38.5 per cent. each; Presbyterian bodies, 37.9 per cent.; and Protestant Episcopal Church, 35.5 per cent. The denominations showing the smallest percentage of males were the Christian Scientists, 27.6, and the Shakers, 21.3.

EIGHT NEW CHURCHES EACH DAY.

The number of church edifices reported was 192,795, an increase since 1890 of 50,308, or 25.3 per cent. This represents approximately sixty new church edifices each week, or eight each day, for the sixteen-year period.

SEATING CAPACITY OF CHURCHES.

The total seating capacity of church edifices reported in 1906 was 58,536,830, an increase over 1890 of 14,976,767, or 34.4 per cent. The seating capacity reported for the Protestant bodies was 53,282,445; for the Roman Catholic Church, 4,494,377; and for the remaining bodies, 700,008. The rate of increase was practically the same for both the Protestants and the Roman Catholics, being 33.6 per cent. for the former, and 33.3 per cent. for the latter. The increase in the seating capacity of churches has kept pace with the increase in population, the seating capacity being 69.2 per cent. of the population in 1890, compared with 69.5 per cent. in 1906.

The average seating capacity per organization for the Protestant bodies taken together was 317, and for the Roman Catholic Church, 436. With the single exception of the Roman Catholic Church, all the denominations showed an average seating capacity considerably in excess of the average membership. For the Protestant bodies the average seating capacity was three times the average membership per organization, while for the Roman Catholic Church the average membership was almost two and one-fourth times the average seating capacity.

$1,257,575,867 INVESTED IN CHURCH EDIFICES.

The value of church property reported includes only that of the buildings owned and used for worship by the organizations reporting, together with the value of their sites, and of their furniture, organs, bells, etc. The total value of such church property reported in 1906 was $1,257,575.867, of which $935,942.578 was reported for Protestant bodies, $292,638.787 for the Roman Catholic Church, and $28,994.502 for all the remaining bodies. The total increase from 1890 to 1906 was $578,149,378, of which $336,246,871 represents the increase in the value of Protestant churches and $114,515,441 the increase in the value of Roman Catholic churches.

The total amount of debt on church property reported in 1906 was $108,050,946, or 8.6 per cent. of the value of the church property reported. Of the total amount of debt, $53,301,254 was reported by Protestant bodies, $49,488,655 by the Roman Catholic Church, $4,556,571 by the Jewish congregations, and $705,066 by the remaining bodies. For the Protestant bodies, the debt represents 5.7 per cent. of the total value of church property, and for the Roman Catholic Church, 16.9 per cent.

ROMAN CATHOLIC MAJORITY IN SIXTEEN STATES.

The figures show that in twenty-nine States a majority of the members belonged to Protestant bodies; in sixteen States, to the Roman Catholic Church, and in one State, Utah, to the Latter-Day Saints. The States and Territories for which a majority of Roman Catholic members were reported, with their respective percentages, are: New Mexico, 88.7; Rhode Island, 74; Montana, 73.1; Massachusetts, 69.2; Nevada, 66.7; Arizona, 66.2; New York, 65.9; New Hampshire, 63; Louisiana, 61.3; Connecticut, 59.6; California, 58; Vermont, 55.9; Maine, 53.3; New Jersey, 51.5; Wisconsin, 50.5; and Michigan, 50.1. In two States, Wyoming and Colorado, the largest proportion, although not a majority, of the members, were Roman Catholics, and in one State, Idaho, the largest proportion were Latter-Day Saints.

In only five States did a majority of the members belong to one of the subclasses of Protestants. In Georgia 57.9 per cent. belonged to Baptist bodies; in Mississippi, 56.5; in Alabama, 54.9; in Virginia, 52.4; and in South Carolina, 51.3. The highest percentage shown for Methodist bodies is for Delaware, 45.5; for Lutheran bodies, North Dakota, 37.7; for Presbyterian bodies, Tennessee, 11.4; for the Disciples, Kentucky, 15.9; for the Protestant Episcopal Church, the District of Columbia, 10; and for the Congregationalists, Vermont, 15.

In connection with the statistics for membership, it should be explained that the rules of the Protestant bodies are such that a considerable number of persons who regard themselves as affiliated with these bodies were not included because they have not seen fit to fulfil the requirements of membership, whereas the figures for the Roman Catholic Church include practically all adherents over nine years of age. Thus in comparison with the Roman Catholic Church, the strength of the Protestant bodies was considerably understated.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP HAS INCREASED MORE RAPIDLY THAN THE POPULATION.

Of the total estimated population of continental United States in 1906, 39.1 per cent. were reported as church members. The corresponding percentage for 1890 was 32.7, so that the percentage of the population who were church members was larger by 6.4 in 1906 than in 1890. The relative gain as represented by this difference was divided among the three main classes of members as follows: Protestant bodies, 1.8; Roman Catholic Church, 4.4; and all other bodies together, one-tenth of one per cent.

The membership of Protestant bodies was least important relatively in Utah, where it represented only 2.6 per cent. of the total population, and most important in South Carolina, where it represented forty-five per cent. of the total population. The corresponding percentages for the Roman Catholic Church varied from two-tenths of one per cent. in North Carolina to 56.2 per cent. in New Mexico. The Baptist bodies showed the highest percentage of the population in Georgia, 24.4; the Methodist bodies, in South Carolina, 17.1; and the Lutheran bodies, in Minnesota, 13.2. No other of the subclasses of Protestants showed a strength of as much as ten per cent. of the population of any State. The membership of the Church of the Latter-Day Saints represented 47.9 per cent. of the population of Utah.

Universalist General Convention.

THE Universalist General Convention has jurisdiction over the ecclesiastical organizations of the Universalist Church in the United States and Canadian provinces. It meets biennially, the next meeting being ordered for October, 1909, at Detroit, Mich. The Convention is composed of the presidents, vice-presidents, and secretaries of the State conventions, and of clerical and lay delegates from the State conventions. All laws relating to fellowship, ordination, and discipline originate in the General Convention, and it is the final court of appeal in all cases of dispute or difficulty between State conventions. It has funds to the amount of over $380,000, the income of which, with the contributions of its constituency, is used for missionary and educational objects. The officers of the Convention are: President, C. L. Hutchinson, Chicago; Vice-President, George B. Wells, Philadelphia, Pa.; Secretary, Rev. I. M. Atwood, D. D., Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Eugene F. Endicott, Boston, Mass.

The Young People's Christian Union of the Universalist Church was organized October 22, 1889, "to foster the religious life among the young people, to stimulate to all worthy endeavor, to train the young in the work of the Universalist Church, in the promulgation of its truth, and the increase of its power and influence." It has about 8,000 members, and its general officers and executive board are: President, Harry Russel Childs, New York City; Secretary, Robert W. Hill, 361 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Arthur J. Edwards, Minneapolis, Minn.; Rev. O. Howard Perkins, Brockton, Mass.; Miss Florence M. French, Portland, Me.; Rev. John Van Schaik, Jr., Washington, D. C.; Miss Genevieve Bishop, Chicago, Ill.

The National Council of Congregational Churches

Is composed of delegates from Congregational conferences and associations, and was organized November 17, 1871. It meets once in three years, and the next triennial meeting will be held in Boston, Mass., October, 1910. The officers are: Moderator, T. C. MacMillan, Chicago, Ill.; Secretary, Rev. Asher Anderson, D. D., 614 Congregational House, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer and Registrar, Rev. Joel S. Ives, Hartford, Ct.

OFFICERS.—President, Rev. Francis C. Kelly, D. D., LL. D.; General Secretary, Rev. E. B. Ledvina; Treasurer, William P. Freon, LL. D. Headquarters, The Rookery, Chicago, Ill.
The objects of this society are to develop the missionary spirit in the clergy and people of the Catholic Church in the United States. To assist in the erection of parish buildings for poor and needy places. To support priests for neglected and poverty-stricken districts. To send the comfort of religion to pioneer localities. In a word, to preserve the faith of Jesus Christ to thousands of scattered Catholics in every portion of our own land, especially in the country districts and among immigrants.

American Unitarian Association.

THIS Association was organized in Boston, Mass., May 25, 1825, and incorporated in 1847. Its objects, as defined in the report of the Committee on Organization, are as follows:

1. To collect and diffuse information respecting the state of Unitarian Christianity in our country.
2. To produce union, sympathy, and co-operation among liberal Christians.
3. To publish and distribute books and tracts, inculcating correct views of religion, in such form and at such price as shall afford all an opportunity of being acquainted with Christian truth.
4. To supply missionaries, especially in such parts of our country as are destitute of a stated ministry.
5. To adopt whatever other measures may hereafter seem expedient—such as contributions in behalf of clergymen with insufficient salaries, or in aid of building churches.

President—Rev. Sam'l A. Eliot, D. D., Boston, Mass. Secretary—Rev. Lewis G. Wilson, Boston, Mass.

Christian Science.

THE Christian Science Publication Committee, for the State of New York, contributes the following statement:

There are many institutes for teaching Christian Science, and upward of 4,000 practitioners of Christian Science mind-healing. Organizations can now be found in almost every city in the United States, and there are branches in Canada, Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Mexico, the Bahamas, British West Indies, the Hawaiian Islands, Cuba, Philippine Islands, Sandwich Islands, British Isles, France, Germany, Norway, Switzerland, Italy, Australia, New South Wales, India, China, South Africa, South America and many other countries.

All Christian Science churches, other than the Mother Church in Boston, are branches of that church. In all of these the Sunday services are uniform, and consist of correlative passages read from the Bible and the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. On Wednesday evening a meeting is held in every church of this denomination.

Mrs. Eddy says in her book, "Retrospection and Introspection:" "I claim for healing scientifically the following advantages: 1. It does away with all material medicines and recognizes the antidote for all sickness, as well as sin, in the immortal mind; and mortal Mind as the source of all the ills which befall mortals. 2. It is more effectual than drugs, and cures when they fail, or only relieve, thus proving the superiority of metaphysics over physics. 3. A person healed by Christian Science is not only healed of his disease, but he is advanced morally and spiritually. The mortal body being but the objective state of the mortal mind, this mind must be renovated to improve the body." The absence of creed and dogma in the Christian Science Church, its freedom from materialism, mysticism, and superstition, also the simplicity, uniformity, and impersonality of its form of worship and organization, are among the distinguishing features which characterize this modern religious movement. Hypnotism, mesmerism, spiritualism, theosophy, faith-cure, and kindred systems are foreign to true Christian Science. Those practicing these beliefs are denied admission to the Christian Science Church.

The Theosophical Society.

MR. WELLER VAN HOOK, General Secretary of the American section, contributes the following statement:

The Theosophical Society was founded in New York City on November 17, 1875, by Mme. H. P. Blavatsky and Col. Henry S. Olcott, but its headquarters were removed in 1879 to Adyar, Madras, India. Its objects are three: (a) To form a nucleus of the Universal Brotherhood of Humanity, without distinction of race, creed, sex, caste, or color; (b) to encourage the study of comparative religion, philosophy, and science; (c) to investigate unexplained laws of nature and the powers latent in man. It has now eleven territorial sections, each presided over by a general secretary: America, Great Britain, India, Scandinavia, Holland, Hungary, France, Italy, Germany, Australia, and New Zealand. During the 34 years of its existence it has admitted about 28,000 members and chartered over 750 branches. The membership at present of the American section is about 2,800; there are 93 branches. Reincarnation and Karma are the basic stones of the Theosophical system. The president, Mrs. A. P. Besant, resides at the Adyar headquarters; the general secretary of the American section is Weller Van Hook, 103 State Street, Chicago, Ill. Some organizations using the name "Theosophical" have been formed since 1875, but they are distinct from and unaffiliated with the original Theosophical Society.

The Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society.

MR. J. H. FUSSELL, Secretary of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society, Point Loma, Cal., contributes the following statement:

The Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society, founded by Mme. H. P. Blavatsky in New York, 1875, continued after her death under the leadership of the co-founder, William Q. Judge, and now under the leadership of their successor, Katherine Tingley, has its international headquarters at the World's theosophical centre, Point Loma, Cal.

This organization declares that brotherhood is a fact in nature. The principal purpose of the organization is to teach brotherhood, demonstrate that it is a fact in nature, and make it a living power in the life of humanity, establishing Raja Yoga schools throughout the world, and creating a new literature. Its subsidiary purpose is to study ancient and modern religion, science, philosophy, and art, to investigate the laws of nature and the latent divine powers in man. It declares in its constitution that every member has a right to believe or disbelieve in any religious system or philosophy, each being required to show that tolerance for the opinions of others which he expects for his own. The head of this organization is Katherine Tingley, and the secretary-general is Frank M. Pierce.

There are 7,942 associations in the world, of which 1,939 are in North America. The total membership of these American associations is 456,927; they occupy 681 buildings of their own, valued at $46,872,630, and have 784 libraries, containing 619,772 volumes. They have 44,831 young men as students in evening educational classes, and 199,366 in their physical departments, and 52,852 different students in Bible classes. They employ 2,687 general secretaries and other paid officials, and expended last year for current expenses—local, State, and international—$7,610,553.

The World's Young Women's Christian Association.

The World's Young Women's Christian Association was formed in 1894. Seventeen National Associations are now affiliated: Great Britain, United States, Canada, Germany, Italy, France, Australasia, Finland, Holland, Japan, Portugal, South Africa, Sweden, India, Denmark, and Hungary. The headquarters are in London. Office, 26 George Street, Hanover Square, West. The Executive Committee is composed of a resident membership in London and two representatives from America and other countries. Miss Morley is President; Miss Clarissa Spencer, General Secretary. The Third World's Conference was held in Paris, France, 1906, and the fourth will be held in Berlin, Germany, 1910.

The Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America was formed in December, 1906, the object being stated thus: "To unite in one body the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States; to establish, develop and unify such associations; to advance the physical, social, intellectual, moral and spiritual interests of young women; to participate in the work of the World's Young Women's Christian Association." 189 city associations and 601 student associations are members of the national organization. There are 21 territorial and State organizations. Each year nine Summer conferences are held to train volunteer workers in Bible study and Association work. The National Training School to prepare young women for executive positions is located at 3 Gramercy Park, New York. The official organ is The Association Monthly. The national organization is a member of the World's Association; the Student Committee of the Home Department is a member of the World's Student Christian Federation, and is connected with the Student Volunteer Movement. National headquarters, 125 East Twenty-seventh Street, New York. President of National Board, Grace H. Dodge; General Secretary, Mabel Cratty.

American Tract Society.

The Society was founded in 1825. Its work is interdenominational and international in scope, and is commended by all the evangelical churches. It has published the Gospel message in 174 languages, dialects and characters. Its total issues of books, tracts, and periodicals at the Home Office amount to 767,844,534 copies. It has made foreign cash appropriations to the value of $768,713.25, by means of which millions of books and tracts have been published at mission stations abroad. Its colporteurs have made 18,875,841 family visits, largely among the immigrants, and have circulated 16,951,050 volumes. The grand total of its gratuitous distribution has been to the value of $2,472,126.05. The society depends upon donations and legacies for the support of its work. Offices, 150 Nassau Street, New York. President, William Phillips Hall; General Secretary, Judson Swift, D. D.

American Bible Society.

The American Bible Society was founded in 1816. It is a charitable institution, whose sole object is to encourage a wider circulation of the Scriptures without note or comment. It invites the contribution and co-operation of all. The officers are a president, Theophilus A. Bronwer, and twenty-seven vice-presidents, headed by J. L. Chamberlain, Maine. There are thirty-six managers, divided into four classes as to terms of office. The Corresponding Secretaries are: Rev. John Fox, D. D., and Rev. W. I. Haven, D. D.; Recording Secretary, Rev. H. O. Dwight, L. L. D. The Treasurer is William Foulke. The issues for the year ending March 31, 1909, were 2,153,028 volumes, and for the ninety-three years of the existence of the Society, 84,439,531 volumes. This includes Bibles in many foreign tongues, and the languages of several American Indian tribes. (The British and Foreign Bible Society, established in 1804, has distributed to March 31, 1909, 215,535,000 volumes.) The offices of the Society are at the Bible House, Astor Place, New York.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ IN AMERICA.

FIVE hundred officially appointed delegates of thirty denominations at Carnegie Hall, New York City, met in November, 1905, and recommended a Plan of Federation, which has since been adopted by the official action of National Assemblies of Churches, representing an aggregate membership of about fifteen millions:

"II. The following Christian bodies are represented in this Federal Council: Baptist Churches (North), Free Baptist Churches, Negro Baptist Churches, Christian Connection, Congregational Churches, Disciples of Christ, Evangelical Association, Evangelical Synod, Friends, Evangelical Lutheran Church, General Synod, Methodist Episcopal Church, Methodist Episcopal Church (South), Primitive Methodist Church, Colored Methodist Episcopal Church of America, Methodist-Protestant Church, African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Meunonite Church, Moravian Church, Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Welsh Presbyterian Church, Reformed Presbyterian Church, United Presbyterian Church, Protestant Episcopal Church, Reformed Church in America, Reformed Church in the U. S. A., Reformed Episcopal Church, Seventh Day Baptist Churches, United Brethren in Christ, United Evangelical Church.

"III. The object of this Federal Council is: (1) To express the fellowship and catholic unity of the Christian Church. (2) To bring the Christian bodies of America into united service for Christ and the world. (3) To encourage devotional fellowship and mutual counsel concerning the spiritual life and religious activities of the Churches. (4) To secure a larger combined influence for the Churches of Christ in all matters affecting the moral and social condition of the people, so as to promote the application of the law of Christ in every relation of human life. (5) To assist in the organization of local branches of the Federal Council to promote its aims in their communities.

"IV. This Federal Council has no authority over the constituent bodies adhering to it; but its province is limited to the expression of its counsel and the recommending of a course of action in matters of common interest to the churches, local councils and individual Christians. It has no authority to draw up a common creed, or form of government or of worship, or in any way to limit the full autonomy of the Christian bodies adhering to it."

The first meeting of the Federal Council was held in Philadelphia, Dec. 2-8, 1908.

The officers of the Council are: President, Bishop E. R. Hendrix, D. D., LL. D.; Secretary, E. B. Sanford, D. D. Office, 81 Bible House, New York

Religious Education Association.

THE Religious Education Association was organized on February 12, 1903, at the close of a three days' convention held in Chicago, called to consider the improvement of moral and religious education. Its object is the promotion of moral and religious training in existing educational agencies, in homes and through the press. It has no theological platform. It now enrolls over 2,300 members, including laymen, college presidents and professors, pastors, teachers and parents, interested in the problem of reverent, scientific, effective character training.

The officers are: President, George Albert Coe, LL. D., New York; Secretary, Henry Frederick Cope, 72 E. Madison Street, Chicago, Ill.

Brotherhood of the Red Diamond.

BROTHERHOOD of the Red Diamond (organized 1898). Organizations for boys in churches, twelve to fifteen years; inter-denominational. National headquarters, No. 150 E. 23d Street, New York City. William Albert Whiting, General Superintendent.

The Anti-Saloon League of America.

President—Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Philadelphia, Pa. Recording Secretary—Rev. S. E. Nicholson, Harrisburg, Pa. Corresponding Secretary—James L. Ewin, 900 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Treasurer—Foster Copeland, Columbus, Ohio.

The Anti-Saloon League of America was organized at Washington, D. C., Dec. 18, 1895, and is installed in practically every State of the Union.

The League throughout the nation employs about 500 persons, who give their entire time to the work of this institution, and it has over 120 offices from which were distributed during the year 1909 more than 100,000,000 pages of anti-saloon literature. The annual income is about $600,000.

National Purity Federation.

THE following statement is contributed to THE WORLD ALMANAC by B. S. Steadwell, president of the Federation:

The object of this Federation is to unite in national co-operation all those forces in America that are striving to promote purity in the life of the individual and in social relations through preventive, educational, reformatory, rescue, law enforcement, legislative and sanitary lines of effort. It is in every sense non-sectarian, and is open to all who are sincerely and seriously striving to promote its object. Many of the leaders in religious, philanthropic and reform movements in the United States are officially connected with this Federation. Each year a largely attended national purity congress is held under the auspices of the Federation.

The officers are: President, B. S. Steadwell, La Crosse, Wis.; First Vice-President, Dr. Howard A. Kelly, Baltimore, Md.; Second Vice-President, Judge B. B. Lindsey, Denver, Col.; Secretary, Miss Julia E. Morrow, Cincinnati, Ohio; Treasurer, Charles A. Mitchell, Cherokee, Okla.

The Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip.

THIS organization, founded in 1888, held its first federal convention in the City of New York in 1893. It is composed of members of twenty-four evangelical denominations—the Reformed Church in America, the Reformed Church in the United States, the Congregational, Presbyterian (North, South, Canadian, and United), Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, Baptist, United Brethren, Lutheran, Reformed Episcopal, Church of Christ, Progressive Brethren, Friends, United Evangelical, Free Baptist, Federal, African Methodist Episcopal, and Evangelical Association. It has chapters in Australia and Japan, China and England. Its objects are embodied in the statement that "Any man can belong to the Brotherhood who will promise to pray daily for the spread of the kingdom of Christ among men, and to make an earnest effort each week to bring at least one man within the hearing of the Gospel." The number of chapters of the Brotherhood in the United States is 1,267, and the membership 44,780; 102 boys' chapters enrolling 1,972 members. The Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Miller, the founder, Fifteenth and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., is President of the Federal Council, and Rev. Wm. H. Pheley, Ph. D., Fifteenth and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., General Secretary.

International Order of The King's Daughters and Sons.

HEADQUARTERS, 156 5th Ave., New York City. Officers: President, Miss Kate Bond; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson.

The Order is an interdenominational, religious and philanthropic society, working locally in Circles, County and City Unions, Chapters, State and National organizations. Branches are established in twenty-nine States and in nine Canadian provinces.

The objects of the Order are "the development of spiritual life and the stimulation of Christian activities." Its membership is very large and extends all over the world. The Order has established or supported several hundred institutions of different kinds in different localities. The badge is a small silver cross, which is also the corporate seal of the society. A monthly magazine, "The Silver Cross," is the official organ of the Order.

Luther League of America.

President—William C. Stoeber, Philadelphia, Pa. General Secretary—Luther M. Kuhns, Omaha, Neb. Chairman National Executive Committee, Mr. E. P. Eilert, New York.

The first National Convention of the Luther League of America was held at Pittsburgh, Pa., October 30 and 31, 1895. The League is a Lutheran organization, linking together the Lutheran young people who are laboring for the good of the Church by means of many individual societies of various names and styles of organization, each within its own immediate church. The constitution declares that its objects shall be "to encourage the formation of the young people's societies in all Lutheran congregations in America, to urge their affiliation with their respective State or Territorial leagues, and with this league to stimulate the various young people's societies to greater Christian activity and to foster the spirit of loyalty to the Church." The fundamental principles are federation and co-operation. The aggregate enrolled membership of the various local organizations represented in the national organization is over 100,000. These are comprised in twenty-five States, fourteen of which already have permanent State organizations. The first local organization adopting the title of "The Luther League" was organized by delegates of six Lutheran Church societies in the City of New York, April 19, 1888. The next convention will be held October, 1910, in Pittsburgh.

The Daughters of the King.

THE Order of the Daughters of the King was organized on Easter evening, 1885. It is desired by its promoters that a careful distinction shall be made between the Daughters of the King and the King's Daughters. This is the older society, and differs from the King's Daughters in many important particulars. In the first place, it is more of an order than a society, and is distinctively Episcopal. Its work is definite, and is "for the spread of Christ's kingdom among young women," and the "active support of the rector's plans in the parish in which the particular chapter may be located." Its badge is a cross of silver, a Greek cross fleury, and its mottoes are "Magnanimiter Crucem Sustine" and "For His Sake." Its colors are white and blue—white, the old royal color of Israel, and blue, the color of the Virgin Mary, the "blessed daughter of Israel's King, the Mother of the King of Kings." Its constitution is framed, as far as is possible, in the terms of that of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the work of the two organizations being similar. The officers of the Council are: President, Mrs. Adam Denmead, Baltimore, Md.; General Secretary, Miss Sara D. Bluxome, New York. Office of the Council, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

The Epworth League.

OFFICERS OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—President—Bishop W. A. Quayle, Oklahoma City, Okla., General Secretary—Edwin M. Randall, D.D., 57 Washington Street, Chicago, Ill. Treasurer—Rev. Paul C. Curmeck, D. D., South Bend, Ind. The Central Office of the Epworth League is located at 57 Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

The Epworth League was organized at Cleveland, Ohio, May, 1889, by the union of five societies then existing in the Methodist Episcopal Church. These several societies held under their jurisdiction 1,500 local societies, with a membership of about 6,000. It spread rapidly throughout the denomination until it is now organized in nearly every church, and has become the largest denominational society of young people in the world. Its official organ, the Epworth Herald, has a circulation of 100,000.

OFFICERS OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.—President—Bishop W. A. Candler, D. D., LL. D. General Secretary—Rev. H. M. Du Bose, D. D. Assistant Secretary and Treasurer—Rev. F. S. Parker, D. D., Nashville, Tenn. The general organ of the League is the Epworth Era, published weekly by the publishing agents of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Nashville, Tenn., and Dallas, Tex.; H. M. Du Bose, Editor; F. S. Parker, Assistant Editor. The League in the Methodist Episcopal Church South was provided for by the General Conference of 1890, and in January of the following year its organization was effected. It came under the supervision of the Sunday-School Board. The General Conference of 1894 created it a separate connectional board and elected a General Secretary. It has now 3,951 chapters, with a total membership of 138,542.

The Vedanta Society.

THE following statement of the purposes of this Society has been prepared by the Secretary, Mrs. C. G. Kelley:

The Vedanta Society of New York was established in 1884 by Swami Vivekananda of India, delegate to the Parliament of Religions at Chicago, and was regularly incorporated in 1898 by Swami Abhedananda, now at its head. The object of the Society is to explain through logic and reason the spiritual laws that govern our lives; to show that the True Religion of the Soul is not antagonistic to, but in harmony with, philosophy and science; to establish that Universal Religion which underlies all the various sects and creeds of special religions; to propagate the principles taught by great seers of Truth and religious leaders of different countries and illustrated by their lives; and to help mankind in the practical application of those principles in their spiritual, moral, intellectual and physical needs.

The present headquarters of the Society with its Circulating Library, Reading Room and Chapel, are at 135 West Eighth Street, New York City. Here throughout the Winter season a service with lecture by Swami Abhedananda is held every Sunday morning at 11, and a class lecture on Tuesday evening at 8. There are Yoga classes for practical training in the Science of Breathing, in Concentration, Meditation and Self-Control every Thursday evening at 8, and on Saturday morning at 10.30. Among the honorary members are Rev. R. Heber Newton, D. D.; Charles R. Lanman, Ph. D., LL. D., Professor of Sanskrit at Harvard University; Hiram Corson, A. M., LL. D., Litt. D., Professor of English Literature Emeritus at Cornell University; Professor Franklin W. Hooper, M. A., Director of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

The officers of the Society are: President—Professor Herschel C. Parker. Vice-President—
Secretary—Mrs. Christina G. Kelley. Treasurer—Charles Baumann.

The Society has a large publishing department and issues a catalogue containing nearly forty titles of works on the Philosophy and Religion of Vedanta. Within the last five years it has sent out from its headquarters 39,876 books and pamphlets written by Swamis of India. It also issues a monthly Bulletin. The Vedanta Society of New York has a Summer school called the "Vedanta Ashrama." It is situated in West Cornwall, Ct., on a farm of 250 acres. There are also centres in Pittsburgh, San Francisco and Los Angeles, besides a Peace Retreat in the mountains of Santa Clara County, Cal. These organizations in America are affiliated with hundreds of Vedanta Societies throughout India and Ceylon.

The Latter-Day Saints.

THE Mormons, or Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, were organized April 6, 1830, with six members, by Joseph Smith, at Fayette, Seneca County, N. Y. After being driven by mobs from various places in Missouri, Ohio, and Illinois, they settled at Great Salt Lake, Utah, under the leadership of Brigham Young, in 1847. The total church membership is 450,000, and the number of missions, 2,000. The present President of the Church is Joseph Fielding Smith.

The following are their articles of faith as formulated by their prophet Joseph Smith:

1. We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost.
2. We believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgression.
3. We believe that through the atonement of Christ all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel.
4. We believe that these ordinances are: First, Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; second, Repentance; third, Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins; fourth, Laying on of hands for the Gift of the Holy Ghost.
5. We believe that a man must be called of God, by "Prophecy, and by the laying on of hands," by those who are in authority to preach the Gospel and administer in the ordinances thereof.
6. We believe in the same organization that existed in the Primitive Church, viz.: Apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, etc.
7. We believe in the gift of tongues, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, interpretation of tongues, etc.
8. We believe the Bible to be the word of God, as far as it is translated correctly; we also believe the Book of Mormon to be the word of God.
9. We believe all that God has revealed, all that He does now reveal, and we believe that He will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the Kingdom of God.
10. We believe in the literal gathering of Israel and in the restoration of the Ten Tribes; that Zion will be built upon this continent; that Christ will reign personally upon the earth, and that the earth will be renewed and receive its paradisiacal glory.
11. We claim the privilege of worshipping Almighty God according to the dictates of our conscience, and allow all men the same privilege, let them worship how, where or what they may.
12. We believe in being subject to kings, presidents, rulers and magistrates, in obeying, honoring and sustaining the law.
13. We believe in being honest, true, chaste, benevolent, virtuous, and in doing good to all men; indeed, we may say that we follow the admonition of Paul, "We believe all things, we hope all things, we have endured many things, and hope to be able to endure all things. If there is anything virtuous, lovely, or of good report, or praiseworthy, we seek after these things."

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is a separate body, having its headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa. It claims to be the church in true succession to the one founded by Joseph Smith, a claim which, it is said, has been sustained by the courts. The reorganization was effected in 1851, and is presided over by Joseph Smith, Independence, Mo., son of the Prophet. Membership 60,000. It has 1,600 active ministers and a Sunday-school membership of 25,000. The Brooklyn, N. Y., branch is at Park Place and Schenectady Avenue. B. R. McGuire, Pastor.

American Sunday-School Union.

THE American Sunday-School Union is the offspring of the old First Day Society, which was founded in Philadelphia in 1791. In 1817 this organization became the Philadelphia Sunday and Adult School Union, and in 1824 it assumed its present title. Its objects are to "concentrate the efforts of Sabbath-school societies in different portions of our country to disseminate useful information; to circulate moral and religious publications in every part of the land, and endeavor to plant a Sunday-school wherever there is a population."

Some idea of the Society's work and growth may be obtained from the following facts: The Philadelphia Union began with one juvenile book in 1817, and with one missionary in 1821. Now the American Sunday-school Union's publications are numbered by the thousands, and it has distributed over $10,000,000 worth of religious literature; it maintains more than 150 permanent missionaries and it has organized an average of more than 1,300 new Sabbath-schools a year—nearly four a day for every day of the last eighty years. Its present officers are: President—
Vice-Presidents—John H. Converse, William N. Ashman, Richard Ashhurst and Isaac Sharpless. Recording Secretary—J. M. Andrews. The headquarters of the Society are at No. 1816 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

OFFICERS OF THE UNITED SOCIETY OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.—Office, Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass. President, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., LL. D.; Treasurer, Hiram N. Lathrop; General Secretary, William Shaw.

Each society is in some local church, and in no sense outside. It exists simply to make the young people loyal and efficient members of the Church of Christ. It is the Church training the young. Its motto is, "For Christ and the Church." In September, 1909, there were 71,789 societies, with a membership of 3,551,100, chiefly in the United States and Canada, and in Australia, Great Britain, China, India, Japan, and in all missionary lands. It is found in about the same proportions in all the great evangelical denominations and in all their subdivisions.

The United Society is simply the bureau of information for all the societies. It prints the literature, supports one general secretary, and is the general headquarters of the work. It levies no taxes, however, and assumes no authority, but every society manages its own affairs in its own way. It is supported by the sales of its literature, badges, etc. It is managed by a board of trustees, representing the great evangelical denominations. The executive committee of the board of trustees meets quarterly to consult concerning the best interests of the society.

American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

The head office of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions is at the Congregational House, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. There are three district offices: (1) at the United Charities Building, Twenty-second Street and Fourth Avenue, New York City; (2) 153 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill., Rev. A. N. Hitchcock, Ph. D., District Secretary; (3) Berkeley, California, Barker Block, Rev. H. M. Tenney, District Secretary. Its officers are: President, Samuel B. Capen, LL. D., Boston, Mass.; Vice-President, Henry C. King, D. D., Oberlin, O.; Corresponding Secretaries, James L. Barton, D. D., Cornelius H. Patton, D. D.; Treasurer, Frank H. Wiggin; Recording Secretary, Henry A. Stinson, D. D.

The American Board, which is the oldest foreign missionary society in the United States, was organized June 29, 1810. During the past ninety-nine years of its history it has sent out over 2,600 missionaries, of whom 581 are now in service. Into the 600 churches which have been organized by these missionaries there have been received from the first nearly 200,000 members. The total receipts from the beginning have been over $39,500,000.

The mission fields now occupied by the Board are: Mexico; Micronesian Islands; Philippine Islands; Japan; North China; Shansi, in Northwestern China; Foochow and Hong Kong, in Southern China; Ceylon; Madras, in Southern India; the Marathi field of Western India; East Central Africa; Southern Africa; West Central Africa; European and Asiatic Turkey; Austria, and Spain.

United Society of Free Baptist Young People.

A GENERAL society representing the local societies of young people of the Free Baptist Denomination. The officers are as follows: President, —; Vice-President, Rev. J. H. Wolfe, Tecumseh, Neb.; Recording Secretary, Miss Agnes Collins, South Danville, N. H.; General Secretary, Harry S. Myers, 156 Fifth Ave.; Treasurer, Rev. Arthur Given, D. D., Providence, R. I. There are 400 societies, with a membership of 15,000.

Baptist Young People's Union of America.

THE Union is a federation of young people's societies connected with Baptist churches in all the States and Canada. The following are the international officers: President, E. Y. Mullins, D. D., Louisville, Ky.; Vice-Presidents, C. M. Carter, D. D., Muncie, Ind.; Charles Senior, Toronto, Ont.; W. J. Williamson, D. D., St. Louis, Mo.; General Secretary, George F. Webb, 1761 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Recording Secretary, Rev. H. W. Reed, Ph. D., Rock Island, Ill.; Treasurer, H. B. Osgood, Chicago, Ill. The Union was organized July 7 and 8, 1891. It holds annual meetings. Next meeting will be held at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July, 1910.

Silver Bay Association.

President—William D. Murray. Vice-President—J. S. Cushman. Treasurer—D. H. McAlpin. General Secretary—E. M. Willis. Recording Secretary—R. L. Wensley, 125 East Twenty-seventh Street, New York.

The Silver Bay Association is incorporated under the New York Legislature, and holds the property on Lake George for the use of Summer Christian conferences. The property consists of 1,400 acres, including a large main building, fifteen cottages, auditorium and athletic field.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

THE following was prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC by the General Secretary: "The Brotherhood of St. Andrew is an organization of men in the Protestant Episcopal Church. Its sole object is the spread of Christ's kingdom among men. It works under two rules, known as (1) The Rule of Prayer: To pray daily for the spread of Christ's kingdom among men, especially young men, and for God's blessing upon the labors of the Brotherhood, and (2) The Rule of Service: To make at least one earnest effort each week to lead some man nearer to Christ through His church." There are now 1,300 active chapters with a membership of about fifteen thousand men.

The Brotherhood idea has also taken root in Canada, and the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Church of England in the Dominion of Canada has been formed, with five hundred chapters and forty-five hundred men. A similar organization has been formed in the Scottish Episcopal Church. In the West Indies there is a membership of 1,000 men, and there is also a national organization in Japan. June 12, 1896, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Church of England was formed, and now has a membership of 1,200.

The Brotherhood in the United States includes a Junior Department to train young men and elder boys for Christian work. It has 500 chapters in the United States, with about six thousand members.

The officers are: President, Robert H. Gardiner; Editor of St. Andrew's Cross and General Secretary, Hubert Carleton, Broad Exchange Building, Boston, Mass.

National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The following statement of the purposes of the society was prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC by an officer of the Union:

The National W. C. T. U. was organized in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1874, and is the sober second thought of the great woman's crusade. It is now regularly organized in every State of the Union.

There are about 10,000 local unions, with a membership and following, including the children's societies, of about half a million. The W. C. T. U. has forty distinct departments of work, presided over by as many women experts, in the National Society, and in nearly every State. All the States in the Republic have laws requiring the study of scientific temperance in the public schools, and all these laws were secured by the W. C. T. U.; also the laws forbidding the sale of tobacco to minors. The first police matrons and most industrial homes for girls were secured through the efforts of this society, as were the refuges for erring women. Laws raising the age of consent and providing for better protection for women and girls have been enacted by many Legislatures through the influence of the Union.

The World's W. C. T. U. was founded through the influence of Frances E. Willard in 1883, and already has auxiliaries in more than fifty countries and provinces. The white ribbon is the badge of all the W. C. T. U. members, and is now a familiar emblem in every civilized country.

The headquarters of the National organization is The Willard Rest Cottage, Evanston, Ill. The following are the officers: President, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, Portland, Me.; Vice-President-at-Large, Miss Anna A. Gordon, Evanston, Ill.; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Frances P. Parks, Evanston, Ill.; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Preston Anderson, Valley City, N. D.; Treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Hutchinson, Evanston, Ill.

Church Temperance Society.

GENERAL OFFICERS.—President, Rt. Rev. Frederick Courtney, D. D., New York; Treasurer, Irving Grinnell; General Secretary, Robert Graham. The Society was organized within the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1831. Its adult membership combines those who temperately use and those who totally abstain from intoxicating liquors as beverages. It works on the lines of moral as well as of legal suasion, and its practical objects are: 1. Training the young in habits of temperance. 2. Rescue of the drunkard. 3. Restriction of the saloon by legislation. 4. Counteractive agencies, such as iced water fountains, lunch wagons, coachmen's and firemen's coffee vans, coffee-houses, workingmen's clubs, reading-rooms, and other attractive wholesome resorts. The Church Temperance Legion (comprising the Knights of Temperance, Young Crusaders, and Vet-ran Knights) deals with boys, seeking to induce them to keep sober, pure, and reverent from the earliest years of manhood, and it endeavors to perpetuate those habits in men. Headquarters, the Church Mission House, New York.

Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

THIS great Roman Catholic organization, founded in Paris, France, in which its head office is located, has branches in every part of the civilized world. Its principal mission is the care of the poor in their homes to the end that the unity of the family may be preserved, but it conducts many other works of charity, such as free employment bureaus, Summer homes, boys' clubs, hospital and prison visitation committees, etc.

The local or parish branches of the Society are known as conferences; these conferences are grouped in sections under the jurisdiction of Particular and Central Councils, and the latter, in the United States, are under the jurisdiction of three Superior Councils. The office of the Superior Council of New York is located at No. 375 Lafayette Street, New York City. New Orleans, La., and St. Louis, Mo., also have Superior Councils.

The officers of the Superior Council are as follows: Spiritual Director, The Rt. Rev. Denis J. McMahon, D. D.; President, Thomas M. Muiry; Secretary, Edmond J. Butler; Treasurer, Michael J. Scanlan.

Christian and Missionary Alliance.

OFFICERS.—President and General Superintendent, Rev. A. B. Simpson, 692 Eighth Avenue, New York City; Secretary, A. E. Funk; Treasurer, David Crear.

The Christian Alliance was founded in 1837. It combined with the International Missionary Alliance in 1897, and the present title was adopted. Membership consists of all professing Christians who shall subscribe to the principles of the order and enroll their names. The objects of the Alliance are stated to be "Wide diffusion of the Gospel in its fulness, the promotion of a deeper and higher Christian life, and the work of evangelization, especially among the neglected classes in distant and especially in heathen countries." Its income in 1906-7 was over a quarter of a million dollars. State auxiliary and local branches are being rapidly formed. Connected with the Alliance are the Missionary Training Institute, Institute for the Training of Home Workers, Berachah Home. The headquarters of the Alliance are at 690 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

United Brethren Christian Endeavor Union.

THE Union was organized June 5, 1890. It is a union of all forms of young people's societies within the Church, of the United Brethren in Christ. There are now 2,151 societies, of which 573 are junior societies. The total membership is 56,930. Each conference is called a Branch and holds its annual conventions, when a review of the year's work is made and new plans are laid. At present there are about forty Branches or Districts, and nearly every one is doing something special in missions, either at home or abroad. The Watchword is the organ of the Union. Single subscription, $1.00; club rates, 75 cents. Its circulation is nearly 46,000. H. F. Shupe, D. D., Dayton, Ohio, is editor. Last year, 1909, $1,600 were raised for frontier work in America. The Junior work is one of the strong departments, superintended by Mrs. G. W. Kitzmiller, New Madison, Ohio. The principal officers are: President, Rev. J. G. Huber, D. D., Dayton, Ohio; Corresponding Secretary, H. F. Shupe, Dayton, Ohio; General Secretary, Col. E. Cowden, Dayton, Ohio.

The Salvation Army.

THE following statement is contributed to THE WORLD ALMANAC by direction of the Commander: The Salvation Army is a religious body organized on military principles, with a view of reaching the non-churchgoers of the world. It was first started in July, 1865, in the East End of London as a Christian mission. Thirteen years later, on Christmas, 1878, it received the name of the Salvation Army. Since then its growth throughout the world has been remarkable.

The father and founder, Gen. William Booth, was born in Nottingham, England, on April 10, 1826. In 1852 he entered the ministry of the Methodist Church, and became a powerful evangelist, attracting immense crowds and witnessing thousands of conversions. Finding, however, that the churchless masses could not be reached by ordinary methods, he resigned his pastorate and established the Army.

As a temperance movement it is stated that the Salvation Army has been the means of converting hundreds of thousands of confirmed drunkards. Total abstinence is a condition of membership. The international headquarters are at 101 Victoria Street, London, England. Its world-wide operations are carried on in 54 countries and colonies, embracing 8,455 posts, under the direction of 20,722 officers and employes, with 55,930 local officers, 21,411 bandsmen. 73 periodicals are published with a weekly circulation of about 1,033,966. There are 891 Social Relief Institutions in the world, under the charge of 2,334 officers and employes. About 6,292 fallen women annually pass through the 115 rescue homes, and 80 per cent. of these are permanently restored to lives of virtue. Slum settlements and posts are established in the slum districts of great cities, the worst dives, saloons, and tenements being regularly visited.

The real estate owned by the Army in the United States amounts to about $4,000,000, its personal property over $300,000, and its annual trade turnover in the United States close upon $400,000. The Salvation Army is incorporated in the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

The following statistics refer to the United States and are for one year's work: Corps and out-posts 889, indoor services conducted 235,123, attendance 10,105,122; open air services conducted, 190,361; local officers and bandsmen 5,825, company attendance 795,283; junior meetings 50,373, attendance 1,591,076; War Crys published 4,516,370; 79 workingmen's hotels supplied 2,240,251 beds and 431,584 meals; 89 industrial homes supplied 1,731,331 meals and 664,148 beds.

In 24 slum posts 3,284 sick cases were visited, 27,089 families visited, 69,458 persons temporarily assisted, and 53,361 meals supplied.

24 rescue homes for fallen women admitted 1,678 girls, supplied 413,894 meals and 113,594 beds, 55,564 prisoners were prayed with and advised, 5,183 assisted on discharge, and 1,556 situations found.

In a children's homes, 96,240 beds and 271,985 meals were supplied. 383,500 Christmas and 12,985 Thanksgiving dinners were given free to the poor. Outside of industrial homes and hotels 266,760 persons were afforded temporary relief, 2,392 mothers and 19,276 children were given Summer outings; 66,942 men, and 3,045 women found employment outside our institutions.

The headquarters of the Salvation Army in America are at 120 West Fourteenth Street, New York City, where information may be obtained.

The Volunteers of America.

THIS statement of the inauguration, purposes and advance of the Volunteers of America has been prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC in the office of Gen. Ballington Booth, its President.

The Volunteers of America is a philanthropic, social and Christian movement. It was inaugurated in March, 1896, in response to a number of requests on the part of American citizens. It was subsequently incorporated on November 6, 1896, under the membership act of New York. It is organized in military style, having as its model the United States Army, but in conjunction with military discipline and methods of work it possesses a thoroughly democratic form of government. Its constitution and by-laws are framed by a Grand Field Council, who represent the minor councils of officers throughout the country annually. Though only thirteen years old, the Volunteers have representatives and branches of their benevolent cause in almost all the principal centres of the United States.

The Volunteers have some 35 principal homes and institutions of benevolence, most of which are Volunteer property, and are open for poor and deserving people in different sections of the country.

During the past year no less than 44,771 beds have been provided for all classes of women in the Volunteer women's homes, and 6,396 have been received under the care of, and permanently aided by the Volunteers.

The Volunteer commissioned workers in their visitation called upon and aided, in one form or another, no less than 33,338 families. This was primarily in the poorer sections of the large cities.

In the different permanent philanthropic homes and institutions no less than 425,908 lodgings have been given, while 350,719 free meals were given, and 148,112 meals were distributed to persons who paid for them, many doing so by work.

In their latest undertaking, which has proved a large responsibility, i. e., the Volunteer hospital work, which hospital is located at No. 93 Gold Street, New York City, in the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge, there have been 640 separate admissions to wards, 1,113 ambulance calls; 81 X ray examinations; 82 major operations; 7,844 patients admitted to surgical and medical wards; 13,000 new cases treated; 22,843 old cases treated; and a total during the year of not less than 47,679 cases of all kinds, surgically and medically, treated in the institution.

The Volunteer Prison League has embraced some 60,000 members since its inauguration. It has leagues in nearly twenty (20) State prisons, and over seventy per cent. of those having left the prisons through our hope halls or halls of hope institutions are living reformed and honest lives.

Through the fresh air branch of work 32,063 mothers and children alone have been taken from crowded cities for a change in the open air amid the scenes of hills and lakes, rivers and dales.

Through the regimental reports from Volunteer centres, it is carefully calculated that 1,008,690 persons were gathered from Volunteer fields to our indoor services, while 2,695,367 persons were listeners in God's natural cathedral, our open air stands. Through these services nearly 6,000 persons were led to testify that they would lead a new life.

In addition to the Volunteer reading rooms, thousands of copies of Christian literature are circulated in State prisons, jails, hospitals, soldiers' homes and children's homes. In connection with the Volunteers there are also sewing classes, hospital nursing, temporary financial relief departments, fresh air camps, Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, and many other worthy undertakings. The headquarters of the Volunteers of America are at No. 34 West 28th Street, New York City.

The Emmanuel Movement.

BY THE REV. SAMUEL M'COMB, D.D.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF THE EMMANUEL MOVEMENT.

THE second century of our era witnessed a remarkable outburst of spiritual and intellectual life. The old gods and cults lost their attractions and new divinities claimed the homage of the Roman world. Theosophic speculation imported from the East revealed to the prosaic Roman unsuspected psychical energies, and out of this revelation new worship arose.

Our own time is witnessing also a spiritual revival. The materialism which threatened belief in the soul thirty years ago is now dead. The spirit is coming to its rights, and the philosophy that is attracting the best minds is idealistic. Psychology is revealing to us the workings of personality, is showing us a self within a self, is giving us a vision of potentialities which we may hope, under the new environment that awaits us beyond the grave, will develop into abiding actualities. It has also demonstrated the profound unity of soul and body, the solidarity of brain and mind; so that every process of consciousness, whether it be a sensation, a feeling, or an idea, has its counterpart in the physical organism.

In the sphere of religion, too, men are conscious of a new atmosphere. The tide of faith is returning. The great critical movement of the nineteenth century has done its work, and Christianity is being reduced to its simplest and most intelligible form, and everywhere there is the feeling that in the religion of Christ, thus freed from all the accretions that have gathered round it through its history, there are healing and reconciling forces. Many are convinced that religion is something grander and simpler and more vital than has been suspected. There is a return to the great idea of Christ and of the Apostolic Age, that the whole kingdom of evil, of which disease forms a part, is opposed to the Divine Will, and that God is on the side of health, mental, moral and physical.

One of the most notable manifestations of the new spirit is to be seen in the extraordinary growth of mental healing cults. These cults for the most part rest on a very precarious metaphysic, know little or nothing of the Bible as the trained scholar knows it, and regard medical science as little better than an elaborate illusion. Their essence is a kind of crazy idealism, which defies the obvious facts of experience and conceives of the body as living plastic at the will of the spirit. In spite, however, of their theological and metaphysical sins, these movements have done great service in recalling both physicians and sufferers to such facts as these: that many persons are sick because they and their friends think that they are sick; that many others are sick because they violate law moral and law physiological; that the idea of sickness has a tendency to realize itself and to create an atmosphere in which the sickness is perpetuated. Nor can any one doubt that these healing cults effect many cures; do, as a matter of fact, dissipate fear, worry, anger; uplift the soul above the things that harass it; and put upon their feet, morally and physically, many who have been a burden to themselves and to their families.

Now, the Emmanuel Movement, while having a point of contact with these systems in that it utilizes consciously what they utilize unconsciously, yet in all essential features stands over against them by way of contrast. The fundamental idea underlying it may be expressed thus: It is an effort to unite in friendly alliance a simple New Testament Christianity as modern Biblical scholarship corroborates it and the proved conclusions of modern medicine, and more especially of modern psychological medicine, in the interests of suffering humanity. It imposes no new dogma, philosophical or theological. It claims to be the possessor of no new revelation except that which is the product on the one hand of the growing Christian consciousness, and that which on the other hand comes through the revelation God makes of Himself in the discoveries of science. Its great aim is to give to faith the things of faith and to science the things of science. Because scientific, it distinguishes between those forms or types of nervous suffering which are functional in character and those which are organic. This distinction, it is true, cannot be in the ultimate resort defended, but for all practical purposes it is valid and well recognized. Hence, one of the fundamental principles of the Emmanuel plan, and one which distinguishes it sharply from all systems of metaphysical healing—Christian Science, Mental Science, Faith Healing, etc.—is that there is first of all a thorough medical examination of the patient before any psychic treatment is entered upon. This examination is necessary not only in order to rule out any organic disease or distinctly organic complications of a seemingly pure functional disorder, but also in order to obtain an intelligent comprehension of the functional disorder itself, if functional disorder it be. From another point of view, the same necessity becomes obvious. Patients, for example, have come to us who have been treated by physicians for organic diseases by means of drugs and special diet, and upon examination it has been found that the disorders were purely functional in character. Now, of these functional disorders the nomenclature is constantly changing, but, roughly speaking, we may say that they fall under the following five great groups:

1. Neurasthenia, or, as it is popularly called, nervous prostration, which has an infinite number of shades from a slight sense of depression or fatigue to the profoundest exhaustion of the nervous system.

2. Hysteria. This is an abnormal disposition of the nervous system, in which the sufferer is peculiarly amenable to suggestion and self-suggestion.

3. Hypochondria. The main feature of this disorder is fear of disease.

4. Psychasthenia. This word is only two years old and is used to cover the large group of nervous troubles in which the psychical element is predominant.

5. Drug addictions. Here we have those moral staveries, such as alcoholism, cocaineism, morphinism, which, while they affect profoundly physiological processes, are now recognized as rooted in psychical and moral tendencies.

The Emmanuel Movement believes that minister and doctor should unite their forces, should come to a common understanding and should thus solve the difficulty presented by so many semi-moral and semi-nervous disorders by attacking them simultaneously from the spiritual as well as from the physical side. Hence, the remedies applied in the Emmanuel clinic are mainly psychological, moral and religious, but not without regard to any physical needs that may be evident. The psychic remedies are those which have been used for some time past with singular success in the great psycho-therapeutic clinics of Europe and to a much less extent in some of the hospitals of this country. We have taken advantage of the fruitful union which has been consummated between medicine and psychology.

The Harmony Club of America.

The following statement has been prepared for THE WORLD ALMANAC by the Rt. Rev. Samuel Fallows, D. D., LL. D., of Chicago, Ill.

THE Harmony Club of America is a philanthropic, educational and social institution, composed of men and women everywhere who want to make the most of life and to attain happiness through personal growth and service.

It is thoroughly non-sectarian, non-political and non-partisan. It aims to serve as a clearing house through which members may learn to extract all the good possible from the lives of each other and to give as much as they can in return.

The central teaching is a rational optimism based on a scientific knowledge of human nature, and an intuitive perception of human needs, physical, mental, emotional, psychic and spiritual. It is not a cult imposing rules and obligations. Simple loyalty to its fundamental principles is all that is required. The utmost freedom is allowed for individual thought and expression. Its members can come together along the lines of a common interest peculiar to themselves in their professions, pursuits or aims. It adapts itself to the circumstances and places and conditions where its members may reside.

The origin of the club has a peculiar interest for those who like to watch the progress of humanitarian movements. Two years ago, after twelve years of instruction on mental physiology and psychotherapeutics, in one of the prominent Chicago Medical Colleges, Bishop Fallows began to apply the teachings he had given to hundreds of graduate physicians, to the needs of ailing people as they came to the parlors of St. Paul's Church for help. The announcement of his purpose brought an overwhelming number of letters from all parts of the country and from other lands. As the church clinics were continued with the aid of neurologists, psychologists, and physicians, the applications for relief and instruction continually increased. It was simply impossible to respond to the urgent requests which were pouring in upon him.

This renewed and wide-spread demand for more knowledge, practical help and greater efficiency in life, prompted the son of Bishop Fallows, Mr. Edward H. Fallows, of New York, of his own accord, to found the Harmony Club, to undertake this work in the most inexpensive manner and on the broadest possible scale. He has done it in a purely philanthropic spirit, as no financial recompense will ever come to him in return.

In April, 1909, the club was established in New York City, and, as will be seen, its scope is far more comprehensive than the original idea Bishop Fallows was endeavoring to carry out. It is nothing less than to promote the all round development of human nature and the full enjoyment of all the good things of life provided by the God and Father of us all. The club has already enrolled members from every State of the Union and from Canada, South America, Europe, Asia and Australia. There is no bar to its membership on account of age, sex, position, creed or color. Over two hundred occupations are represented, from that of a bricklayer to the position of a corporation president.

The management of the Club is co-operative. Teachers, lawyers, clergymen, physicians, business men, and housewives are working together for the expansion of the organization. Suggestions will be heartily welcomed by those in charge of its affairs.

The officers for the current year are as follows: President—Edward H. Fallows; Secretary—Helen M. Fogler; Editor—Edward Earle Purinton; Treasurer—Charles E. Selover. Information about meetings, dues, local centres, and related matters, may be had on request. The club manual, "How to Be Happy," prepared by Edward Earle Purinton, is a crystallization of the teachings of the world's greatest philosophers. A copy of this book is given to each member. The club monthly, The Center, amplifies the principles on which the club rests, and by means of a question box adapts the truths of self-harmonization to the individual problems of members. The club literature is all made pocket size, for everyday convenience. Other publications will follow at intervals.

A comprehensive idea of the platform may be gained from the following statement which appears in the club monthly:

"The aim and object of the Harmony Club is: To harmonize people with themselves, their surroundings, and each other; to prove the efficient value of a smile and song in everyday life; to establish the perfect unity of body, mind, heart and spirit; to investigate, formulate and demonstrate the scientific laws of happiness; to enunciate the principles of wholesome, triumphant, sincere living; to present the discoveries of modern psychology in simple, attractive guise; to put to ease who want vital knowledge in touch with those who have it; to maintain a brotherhood of individuals, where sympathy is the only bond; to impart the secrets of self-help, as the highest form of altruism; to promote free discussion of every subject that makes for clear understanding of life." Literature will be mailed on receipt of postage at the headquarters, 30 Church Street, New York City.

Supplementing this general statement, the expression of individual purpose is voiced in the club resolve: "To create happiness in myself and others I will keep a strong body for the work I have to do; a loving heart for those about me; a clear mind for all truth, whose recognition brings freedom; a poised, unconquerable soul for the ideal whose champion I declare myself, and I will possess a faith mighty enough to rout anxiety, ride over difficulty, challenge hardship, smile through grief, deny failure, see only victory, looking to the end; by which hopeful assurance now attained, I am at peace with myself, the world, and the Infinite."

The American Peace and Arbitration League.

THE corporate purposes of the organization favor "adequate armament and effective arbitration as correlative agencies for national security and for international peace and justice." Honorary Presidents—William H. Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and George Dewey. President—James B. McCreary, Kentucky. Vice-Presidents—William A. Clark, Richmond P. Hobson and Gen. James Grant Wilson. Treasurer—Henry Clews. Recording Secretary—Alfred L. M. Bullock. General Secretary—Andrew B. Humphrey. Headquarters, 31 Nassau Street, New York City.

International Polar Commission.

ORGANIZED at Brussels, Belgium, May 29, 1908. President—Capt. Umberto Cagni, R. N., Italy. Vice-President—Dr. Otto Nordenskjöld, Sweden. Secretary—Prof. Georges Lecointe, Uccle, Belgium. Members—Capt. M. Gruz, Austria; Capt. A. de Gerche de Gomery, Brussels, and Prof. Georges Lecointe, Uccle, Belgium; Rear Admiral Louis A. Gou, Chile; Capt. Holt, Capt. Koch and Capt. Andrup, Denmark; Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., United States; Dr. Kepes and Prof. De Kovszigethy, Hungary; Capt. Cagni, R. N., Prof. G. Cora, Capt. Roncagli Giovanni and Cavalier Molinelli Pietro, Italy; Dr. Van der Stok, Capt. Phaff, Dr. Van Everdingen and Baron Van Asbeck, Netherlands; Prof. Mehedinți, Prof. Căculesco and Prof. Stefan Popescu, Roumania; Dr. Baron de Geer, Dr. de Nordenskjöld, Dr. Hamberg and Dr. Anderssen, Sweden; Prof. Von Drygalsky, Prof. Albrecht, Dr. Supaa and Dr. Wiechert, Germany.

Soldiers' Homes.

NATIONAL HOME FOR DISABLED VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.

President of the Board of Managers... Maj. James W. Wadsworth, 346 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.
Secretary..... Col. W. P. Brownlow, Jonesboro, Tenn.

There are branches of the National Home at Dayton, O.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Togus, Me.; Hampton, Va.; Leavenworth, Kan.; Santa Monica, Cal.; Marion, Ind.; Danville, Ill.; Johnson City, Tenn., and Hot Springs, S. Dak. The aggregate number of members cared for is about 35,000.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

1. An honorable discharge from the United States service during a war in which it was engaged.
2. Disability which prevents the applicant from earning his living by labor.
3. Applicants for admission will be required to stipulate and agree to abide by all the rules and regulations made by the Board of Managers, or by its order; to perform all duties required of them, and to obey all the lawful orders of the officers of the Home. Attention is called to the fact that by the law establishing the Home the members are made subject to the Rules and Articles of War, and will be governed thereby in the same manner as if they were in the Army of the United States.
4. A soldier or sailor must forward with his application for admission his Discharge Paper, and when he is a pensioner, his Pension Certificate, which papers will be retained at the branch to which the applicant is admitted, to be kept there for him, and returned to him when he is discharged. This rule is adopted to prevent the loss of such papers and certificates, and to hinder fraudulent practices; and no application will be considered unless these papers are sent with it. If the original discharge does not exist, a copy of discharge, certified by the War or Navy Department, or by the Adjutant-General of the State, must accompany the application.

There are State Homes for disabled volunteer soldiers provided by the States of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

UNITED STATES HOME FOR REGULAR ARMY SOLDIERS.

The United States Soldiers' Home in the District of Columbia receives and maintains discharged soldiers of the regular army. All soldiers who have served twenty years as enlisted men in the army (including volunteer service, if any) or who have served in any war, and all soldiers of less than twenty years' service who have incurred such disability, by wound, disease, or injuries in the line of duty while in the regular army, as unfit them for further service, are entitled to the benefits of the Home.

A pensioner who enters the Home may assign his pension, or any part of it, to his child, wife, or parent, by filing written notice with the agent who pays him. If not so assigned, it is drawn by the treasurer of the Home and held in trust for the pensioner, to whom it is paid in such sums as the governor of the Home deems proper while he is an inmate of the Home, the balance being paid in full when he takes his discharge and leaves the Home.

Inmates are subject to the Rules and Articles of War, the same as soldiers in the army. They are comfortably lodged, fed, and clothed, and receive medical attendance and medicine, all without cost to them. There are 1,313 men now receiving the benefits of the Home.

Applications for admission to the Home may be addressed to the "Board of Commissioners, Soldiers' Home, War Department, Washington City, D. C.," and must give date of enlistment and date of discharge, with letter of company and number of regiment for each and every term of service, and rate of pension, if any, and must be accompanied by a medical certificate showing nature and degree of disability if any exists.

Society of the Cincinnati.

GENERAL OFFICERS.

President-General.....Hon. Winslow Warren, Mass.
 Vice-President-General.....Hon. James Simons, LL.D., S. C.
 Secretary-General.....Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, LL.D., L.H.D., R.I.
 Assistant Secretary-General.....Mr. John Collins Daves, N. C.
 Treasurer-General.....Vacant.
 Assistant Treasurer-General.....Mr. Charles Isham, New York.

The historic and patriotic Order of the Cincinnati was founded by the American and French officers at the cantonments of the Continental army on the Hudson at the close of hostilities in the War of the Revolution for American Independence, May 10, 1783.

In forming the society it was declared that, "To perpetuate, therefore, as well the remembrance of this vast event as the mutual friendships which have been formed under the pressure of common danger, and, in many instances, cemented by the blood of the parties, the officers of the American army do hereby, in the most solemn manner, associate, constitute, and combine themselves into one Society of Friends, to endure as long as they shall endure, or any of their eldest male posterity, and in failure thereof the collateral branches who may be judged worthy of becoming its supporters and members."

For convenience, thirteen State societies were formed, and one in France, under the direct patronage of Louis XVI., which was dispersed at the Reign of Terror in 1793. Upon the roll of original members appeared the names of all the great historic military and naval characters of the Revolution, and upon the roll of honorary members, elected for their own lives only, appeared many of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

THE RIGHT TO MEMBERSHIP.

All Continental officers who had served with honor and resigned after three years' service as officers, or who had been rendered supernumerary and honorably discharged, in one of the several reductions of the American army, or who had continued to the end of the war, and all French officers who had served in the co-operating army under Count d'Estaing, or auxiliary army under Count de Rochambeau, and held or attained the rank of colonel for such services, or who had commanded a French fleet or ship of war on the American coast, were entitled to become original members, and upon doing so were required to contribute a month's pay.

STATE SOCIETIES.

The Cincinnati is organically one society in membership, but for convenience in admission of members and in its charitable and patriotic objects is subdivided into State societies, there being thirteen. Four dormant societies were restored to membership at the triennial meeting of 1902.

Membership descends to the eldest lineal male descendant, if judged worthy, and, in failure of direct male descent, to male descendants through intervening female descendants.

The general society when legislating for the good of the Order is composed of the general officers and five delegates from each State society, and meets triennially. In 1854 it ruled that proper descendants of Revolutionary officers who were entitled to original membership, but who never could avail themselves of it, are qualified for hereditary membership, if found worthy, on due application.

The society of the "Sons of the Revolution" was originated in New York in 1875 by John Austin Stevens, in conjunction with other patriotic gentlemen of Revolutionary ancestry. The New York Society was instituted February 22, 1876; reorganized December 3, 1883, and incorporated May 3, 1884, to "keep alive among ourselves and our descendants the patriotic spirit of the men who, in military, naval, or civil service, by their acts or counsel, achieved American independence; to collect and secure for preservation the manuscript rolls, records, and other documents relating to the War of the Revolution, and to promote intercourse and good feeling among its members now and hereafter." Eligibility to membership is confined to male descendants, above the age of twenty-one years, from an ancestor who as either a military, naval, or marine officer, soldier, sailor, or marine, or official in the service of any one of the thirteen original Colonies or States, or of the National Government, representing or composed of those Colonies or States, assisted in establishing American independence during the War of the Revolution between the 19th day of April, 1775, when hostilities commenced, and the 19th day of April, 1783, when they were ordered to cease. The next triennial meeting of the general society will be held in the City of Washington, April 19, 1911.

The officers of the New York Society Sons of the Revolution are as follows: President—Edmund Wetmore. Vice-Presidents—John Hone, William W. Ladd. Secretary—Henry Russell Drowne, Frances' Tavern, corner Broad and Pearl Streets, New York. Treasurer—Arthur Melvin Hatch. Registrar—Prof. Henry Phelps Johnston.

There are thirty State societies and a society in the District of Columbia. The aggregate membership is 7,560, that of the New York Society being over 2,000, and the Pennsylvania Society over 1,000.

Sons of the American Revolution.

President-General—Morris B. Beardsley, Ct. Treasurer-General—John H. Burroughs, N. Y.

Vice-Pres.-Gen.—George C. Sargent, Cal.
Vice-Pres.-Gen.—Moses Veale, Pa.

The National Society of "Sons of the American Revolution" was organized in New York April 30, 1839, and was incorporated by act of Congress, June 9, 1906. State societies exist in forty-two States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and France. A California society of descendants of Revolutionary patriots, entitled "Sons of Revolutionary Sires," organized July 4, 1875, became a part of the National Society in 1889. The total membership of the organization is about 12,000.

The New York or Empire State Society was organized February 11, 1890. The following are the officers: President—C. A. Pugsley. Secretary—Louis Annin Ames, 220 Broadway, New York. Registrar—Leunis D. Huntington. Historian—Josiah C. Pumpelly.

Aztec Club of 1847.

President—Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Munfordsville, Ky. Vice-President—Rear-Admiral Stephen B. Luce, U. S. Navy, Newport, R. I. Secretary—William M. Sweeny, Astoria, N. Y. Treasurer—William Turnbull, New York City. Vice-Treasurer—Edward H. Floyd-Jones, New York City.

This society, originally composed of officers of the United States Army who served in the war with Mexico, was formed in the City of Mexico in 1847, and has been continued, "with a view to cherish the memories and keep alive the traditions that cluster about the names of those officers who took part in the Mexican War." Membership is confined to officers of the army, navy, and marine corps who served in the war, or their male blood relatives. Each primary member may nominate as his successor his son or a male blood relative, who during the life of the primary member is known as associate-member, and on the death of the former is entitled, as his representative, to full membership. There are 228 members.

Societies of the War of 1812.

THE VETERAN CORPS OF ARTILLERY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, CONSTITUTING THE MILITARY SOCIETY OF THE WAR OF 1812.

INSTITUTED as a military society by the officers of the War of 1812 on January 3, 1826, in the City of New York, and incorporated under the laws of the State of New York by the surviving veteran members, January 8, 1892. Consolidated January 8, 1848, with the Veteran Corps of Artillery (instituted by officers of the Revolutionary War November 25, 1790). Cfiram Cronk, last surviving Veteran member War of 1812, born April 29, 1800, died May 13, 1905.

The officers are: Commandant—Asa Bird Gardiner, Lt. D., L. H. D. Adjutant—Charles E. Warren, 32 East 42d Street, New York. Paymaster—Charles Isham. Quartermaster—Chas. Augustus Sch. pierhorn. Commissary—Clarence H. Eagle. Chaplain—F. Landon Humphreys, S. T. D.

The original members comprise those who actually served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the War of 1812, or on vessels other than merchant ships which sailed under commissions of letters of marque and reprisal from the United States in that war.

Eligibility to hereditary membership is confined by law to descendants of those who actually served in the War of 1812, and to descendants of former members.

THE GENERAL SOCIETY OF THE WAR OF 1812.

Composed of federated State societies, in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Ohio, Illinois, District of Columbia, New York, New Jersey, and Delaware, the members of each of which State Societies are borne upon the membership roll of the General Society. Any male person above the age of twenty-one years who participated in, or who is a lineal descendant of one who served during the War of 1812-14 in the army, navy, revenue marine, or privateer service of the United States, offering satisfactory proof to the State Society to which he makes application, and is of good moral character and reputation, may become a member. In case of failure of lineal descendants of an actual participant in said war, one collateral representative who is deemed worthy may be admitted to membership. President-General—John Cadwalader, Pennsylvania. Secretary-General—Calvin Lord, 141 Purchase Street, Boston, Mass. Registrar-General—Henry Harmon Noble, Essex, N. Y. Treasurer-General—George H. Richards, Orange, N. J. Assistant Treasurer-General—James Malcolm Henry, Washington, D. C. Surgeon-General—George Horace Burgin, M. The American Flag Association.

President—Col. Ralph E. Prime, Yonkers, N. Y. Secretary—Theodore Fitch, 120 Broadway, New York; Treasurer, A. Noel Blakeman, 140 Nassau Street, New York. The American Flag Association was organized February 17, 1893, its motto being, "One Flag, One Country, God over all." Its object is to secure National and State legislation for the protection of the flag from degrading and desecrating uses, and to secure a general observance of June 14 as "Flag Day," because on that day in 1777 Congress adopted the United States flag. The Association is composed of individual members and also the members of the Flag Committees of patriotic societies for the purpose of fostering public sentiment in favor of honoring the flag of our country and preserving it from desecration. It aims to co-ordinate the efforts of all flag committees.

COLONIAL DAMES OF AMERICA.

OFFICERS.

President—Mrs. Edward King. First Vice-President—Mrs. Paul Dana. Second Vice-President—Miss J. J. Boudinot. Treasurer—Mrs. George Augustus Lung. Secretary—Mrs. Timothy Matlack Cheesman, 109 University Place, New York City. Historian—Miss Julia Livingston Delafield. Advisory Council—Joseph H. Choate, Louis V. Bright.

The Society of the Colonial Dames of America was organized in the City of New York May 23, 1890, and was the first society of women for this patriotic purpose founded in this country. It was incorporated April 23, 1891. The Society is purely patriotic and educational in its objects, which are: (1) To collect and preserve relics, manuscripts, traditions, and mementoes of the founders and builders of the thirteen original States of the Union, and of the heroes of the War of Independence, that the memory of their deeds and achievements may be perpetuated. (2) To promote celebrations of great historic events of National importance, to diffuse information on all subjects concerning American history, particularly among the young, and to cultivate the spirit of patriotism and reverence for the founders of American constitutional history. This Society has already a large membership and chapters in many States. It is a distinct organization from that which follows.

COLONIAL DAMES OF AMERICA.

OFFICERS OF THE NATIONAL SOCIETY.

Naval Order of the United States.

The Naval Order of the United States is composed of a General Commandery and commanderies in the States of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York, California, and Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. The General Commandery meets triennially on October 5, and the State Commanderies meet annually in the month of November. The Massachusetts Commandery is the parent Commandery, and was organized at Boston on July 4, 1830. The General Commandery was established three years later, on June 19, 1833. The Companions of the Order are officers and the descendants of officers who served in the navy and marine corps, in any war or in any battle in which the said naval forces of the United States have participated. The membership clause, as adopted at the triennial congress held at Boston, October 5, 1895, provides for two classes of members: First, veteran officers and their male descendants; and, second, enlisted men who have received the United States naval medal of honor for bravery in the face of the enemy.

The officers of the General Commandery elected at the triennial meeting October 5, 1907, are: General Commander—Admiral George Dewey, U. S. N., Washington, D. C.; Rear-Admiral H. W. Lyon, U. S. Military Order of Foreign Wars.

The Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States was instituted in the City of New York December 27, 1894, by veterans and descendants of veterans of one or more of the five foreign wars which the United States had been engaged in, to wit: The war of the Revolution, the war with Tripoli, the war of 1812, the Mexican war, and the war with Spain, "to perpetuate the names and memory of brave and loyal men who took part in establishing and maintaining the principles of the Government" in said wars, and "to preserve records and documents relating to said wars, and to celebrate the anniversaries of historic events connected therewith." Since the establishment of the order the United States has fought its fifth foreign war. By an amendment to the constitution all American officers who participated in the war with Spain, or any future foreign campaign recognized by the United States Government as "war," are rendered eligible to membership as veteran companions.

Members are entitled "companions," and are either "veteran companions" or "hereditary companions." The former are commissioned officers of the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States who participated in any of the foreign wars of the United States. The latter are direct lineal descendants, in the male line only, of commissioned officers who served honorably in any of the said wars. Commanderies may be established in each of the States, and State commanderies now exist in the States of New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Illinois, California, Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio, Missouri, Vermont, Virginia, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Texas, Georgia, Colorado, New Jersey, and the District of Columbia.

The National Commandery was instituted March 11, 1896, by the officers of the New York, Pennsylvania, and Connecticut commanderies. The following are the officers of the National Commandery: Commander-General—Major-Gen. Alexander S. Webb, U. S. A. Secretary-General—James H. Morgan, Bogota, N. J. Treasurer-General—Col. Oliver C. Bosbyshell. Registrar-General—Rev. Henry N. Wayne. Judge-Advocate-General—Col. Henry A. Axline, U. S. V. Present membership, about 1,800 companions. There are Vice-Commanders-General representing each State commandery.

General Society of Mayflower Descendants.

The Society of Mayflower Descendants was organized in the city of New York December 23, 1894, by lineal descendants of the Mayflower pilgrims, "to preserve their memory, their records, their history, and all facts relating to them, their ancestors, and their posterity." Every lineal descendant over eighteen years of age, male or female, of any passenger of the voyage of the Mayflower which terminated at Plymouth, Mass., December, 1620, including all signers of "The Compact," are eligible to membership. The initiation fee is $10 and the annual dues are $5. The Triennial Congress is held in September at Plymouth, Mass. Societies have been organized in New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, District of Columbia, Ohio, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Michigan, Minnesota, Maine, Colorado, and California. The officers of the General Society are: Governor-General, Samuel B. Capen; Deputy Governors-General, Richard Henry Greene, Charles E. Gross, Chas. A. Hopkins, J. Granville Leach, Frederick M. Steele, Solomon E. Faunce, Charles D. Standish, William Howard Doane, Archie Lee Talbot, George Corlis Nightingale; Secretary-General, Clarence Etienne Leonard, 443 E. 23d St., New York; Treasurer-General, James M. Rhodes; Historian-General, Edward H. Whorf; Elder-General, Rev. John Lewis Ewell; Captain-General, Miles Standish, M. D.; Surgeon-General, Dr. Abiel W. Nelson; Assistants-General, Howland Davis, Edwin S. Crandon, Herbert Jenney, William Waldo Hyde, Walter M. Howland, and George C. Mason.

Society of Veterans of Indian Wars.

Commander—Brig.-Gen. Judson D. Bingham, U. S. A., retired, Historian—Brig.-Gen. Charles King, U. S. A. Assistant Recorder—Major G. A. Bingham, U. S. A., Philadelphia, Pa. This society was instituted by officers of the United States Army at Philadelphia, April 23, 1896.

The objects are "to perpetuate the faithful services, heroism, and privations of the officers and soldiers of the Army of the United States of America, as well as of the auxiliary forces of the several States of the Union, in their successive campaigns conducted against a savage foe on our frontiers, in the interests of civilization and for the settlement and defence of our Territories, at different periods in the history of our common country since the close of the war of the Revolution; and also to collect and preserve for publication a record of these services and other historical data relating thereto, as well as to unite in a fraternal bond of union all those who are entitled to membership therein."

Society of the Army and Navy of the Confederate States.

President—Capt. George W. Booth. Vice-President—Major W. Stuart Symington. Secretary—Capt. William L. Ritter, 541 Carrollton Avenue, Baltimore, Md. Treasurer—Capt. F. M. Colston. There are twelve vice-presidents and an executive committee of seven members. The Society of the Army and Navy of the Confederate States in the State of Maryland was organized in 1871, "to collect and preserve the material for a truthful history of the late war between the Confederate States and the United States of America; to honor the memory of our comrades who have fallen; to cherish the ties of friendship among those who survive, and to fulfil the duties of sacred charity toward those who may stand in need of them." The membership is 925.

Order of Indian Wars of the United States.

Commander—Major-General Alfred E. Bates, U. S. A., retired, Metropolitan Club, Washington, D. C. Recorder and Treasurer—Major Lloyd M. Brett, 1st U. S. Cavalry, Washington, D. C. Historian—Brig.-Gen. Charles King, U. S. A.

This order was organized at Chicago, Ill., June 10, 1896, and received its charter from the State of Illinois. The order consists of two classes of companions: First, commissioned officers of the army, navy and marine corps, and of State and Territorial organizations, which have been, or may hereafter be, engaged in conflicts, battles or actual field service against hostile Indians in the United States; second, sons of living members of the first class. The object of the Association is to perpetuate the history of the services rendered by the American military forces in their conflicts and wars within the territory of the United States, and to collect and secure for publication historical data relating to the instances of brave deeds and personal devotion by which Indian warfare has been illustrated.

Colonial Society of America.

President—Stephen M. Newman, A. M., D. D. Vice-Presidents—Herman W. Booth and George S. Goodrich. Treasurer—Benjamin F. Buck. Secretary—Theodore W. Compton, No. 160 Fifth Avenue, New York. Advisory Committee—Edward Everett Hale, D. D., LL. D.; Levi P. Morton, Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, George G. DeWitt, Charles W. Dayton, Gen. Henry E. Treman.

The object of this Society is to advance historic research, and particularly to arouse and sustain widespread interest in the perpetuation of the memory of the chief historic events, places and scenes in the colonial and revolutionary periods of our country.

The Society consists of members, patrons and fellows. They are persons interested in American history and the preservation of the memory of historic scenes and places in the colonial and revolutionary periods.

The Society prepares each year etchings of historic scenes, buildings and places of America, and India proofs printed from the etching plates, signed by the artist, are sent to all members, patrons and fellows of the Society, together with the Memorial Book of the Society, which contains a complete history of the subjects represented in the etchings. It also issues reproductions of rare documents, relics, etc., of historic value pertaining to the period.

The American Cross of Honor.

THIS life-saving order was organized A. D. 1898, and is composed of persons upon whom the United States Government has conferred the life-saving medal of honor. May 1, 1906, Congress incorporated the order, and the following officers were elected: Thomas H. Herndon, President; John J. Delaney, New York, Vice-President; Harry A. George, Secretary, and Richard Stockton, Treasurer. All persons who have received the life-saving medal of honor under any act of Congress are eligible to membership in the order. No membership fees or annual dues are collected from any member of this order, only voluntary contributions being received to assist in paying the current expenses.

The cross of the order will be conferred annually upon the person who has rendered the most heroic services in saving life and who, also, has received the medal of honor of the United States Government.

The Confederate Veteran, Nashville, Tenn., established by S. A. Cunningham, is the official organ. This Association was organized at New Orleans, June 10, 1889. Its avowed purpose is strictly social, literary, historical, and benevolent. Its constitution says that it "will endeavor to unite in a general federation all associations of Confederate veterans, soldiers, and sailors now in existence or hereafter to be formed; to gather authentic data for an impartial history of the war between the States; to preserve relics or mementoes of the same; to cherish the ties of friendship that should exist among men who have shared common dangers, common sufferings, and privations; to care for the disabled and extend a helping hand to the needy; to protect the widows and the orphans, and to make and preserve a record of the resources of every member, and, as far as possible, of those of our comrades who have preceded us in eternity." State organizations are authorized, and are called Divisions. The permanent headquarters of the Association are at New Orleans, La. Number of Camps, 1,703. Number of members, according to last report, about 75,000. The last reunion of the veterans was at Memphis, Tenn., June 8-10, 1909, and the next will be held at Mobile, Ala., at a date not yet named.

United Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Poe, Baltimore, Md. Recording Secretary—Mrs. Andrew L. Dowdell, Opelika, Ala. Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. R. C. Cooley, Jacksonville, Fla. Treasurer—Mrs. L. Eustace Williams, Anchorage, Ky.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy was organized at Nashville, Tenn., September 10, 1894. It is composed of the widows, wives, mothers, sisters, and lineal female descendants of men who served honorably in the army and navy of the Confederate States, or who served in the civil service of the Confederate States or one of the Southern States, or who gave personal services to the Confederate cause. The objects of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, as stated in the constitution of the society, are "social, literary, historical, monumental, benevolent, and honorable in every degree, without any political signification whatever." It will endeavor: (1) To unite in the federation all bodies of Southern women now organized or that may hereafter be formed. (2) To cultivate ties of friendship among our women whose fathers, brothers, sons, and, in numberless cases, mothers, shared common dangers, sufferings, and privations; and to perpetuate honor, integrity, valor, and other noble attributes of true Southern character. (3) To instruct and instill into the descendants of the people of the South a proper respect for and pride in the glorious war history, with a veneration and love for the deeds of their forefathers which have created such a monument of military renown, and to perpetuate a truthful record of the noble and chivalric achievements of their ancestors. All with the view of furnishing authentic information from which a conscientious historian will be enabled to write a correct and impartial history of the Confederate side during the struggle for Southern independence. The organization now has 1,200 chapters in the United States, North and South, with 80,000 members.

Arlington Confederate Monument Association.

During the administration of President McKinley the Confederate dead buried in the city of Washington, D. C., and vicinity were removed to the National Cemetery at Arlington, Va., the old home of Robert E. Lee, where they were reinterred in a plot of ground set apart by the President for that purpose, and designated "The Confederate Section."

The Arlington Confederate Monument Association was formed for the purpose of erecting in this section a suitable monument to the dead there buried, and to stand, in a larger sense, as a memorial to all those who lost their lives in defense of the Confederacy, as well as to the cause they represented.

The association is formed as a committee of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the President-General of which is the President of the association. It is composed of an Executive Committee, elected by the Confederate organizations of the District of Columbia; an Advisory Committee, appointed by the President, and a Director from each State or Territory within which there is a chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The active management of the affairs of the association is confided to the Executive Committee.

The officers of the association are: President, Mrs. Virginia Faulkner McSherry, Martinsburg, W. Va.; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Drury C. Ludlow, Washington, D. C.; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Arthur E. Johnson, Washington, D. C.; Treasurer, Wallace Streater, 3160 Eighteenth Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C.

Society of Tammany, or Columbian Order.

Grand Sachem—Daniel F. Cohalan, Sachems—Louis F. Haffen, Thomas F. McAvoy, Thomas E. Rush, John J. Scannell, Charles F. Murphy, Julius Harburger, John F. Ahearn, Asa Bird Gardiner, George W. Plunkitt, Timothy D. Sullivan, John Fox, William Dalton, Secretary—Thomas F. Smith, Treasurer—William Sohmer, Sagamore—Bryan P. Henry, Wiskinuk—John A. Boyle.

This organization was formed in 1789, being the effect of a popular movement in New York having primarily in view a counterweight to the so-called "patronage" Society of the City. It was essentially anti-Federalist or democratic in its character, and its chief founder was William Mooney, an upholsterer and a native-born American of Irish extraction. It took its first title from a noted ancient, wise and friendly chief of the Delaware tribe of Indians, named Tammany, who had, for the want of a better subject, been canonized by the soldiers of the Revolution as the American patron saint. The first meeting was held May 12, 1789. The act of incorporation was passed in 1805. The Grand Sachem and thirteen Sachems were designed to typify the President and the Governors of the thirteen original States. William Mooney was the first Grand Sachem. The Society is nominally a charitable and social organization, and is distinct from the General Committee of the Tammany Democracy, which is a political organization, and cannot use Tammany Hall without the consent of the Society.

The Huguenot Society of America.

Lawton; Executive Committee, the officers of the society, the chairmen of the committees on pedigrees, publication, library, and finance, and Henry B. Dominick, William Mitchell, Edward O. Flagg, William D.utton, Chaplain—Rt. Rev. Bishop J. H. Darlington. Descent from Huguenot ancestors is the qualification necessary for membership.

Society of Colonial Wars.

Governor-General—Arthur J. C. Sowdon, Boston. Vice-Governor-General—Howland Pell, New York. Secretary-General—Clarence Storm, Room 62, 45 William Street, N. Y. Treasurer-General—Wm. Macpherson Hornor, Philadelphia, Pa. Registrar-General—George Norbury Mackenzie, Baltimore. Historian-General—T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, N. Y. Chaplain-General—Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, St. Louis. Surgeon-General—Dr. Justin E. Emerson, Detroit. Chancellor-General—Henry Sockbridge, Baltimore.

The Society of Colonial Wars was instituted in 1892 to "perpetuate the memory of these events and of the men who, in military, naval, and civil positions of high trust and responsibility, by their acts or counsel assisted in the establishment, defence, and preservation of the American Colonies, and were in truth the founders of this nation. With this end in view it seeks to collect and preserve manuscripts, rolls, and records; to provide suitable commemorations or memorials relating to the American Colonial period, and to inspire in its members the paternal and patriotic spirit of their forefathers, and in the community respect and reverence for those whose public services made our freedom and unity possible." Eligibility is confined to an adult male descendant of an ancestor who fought in battle under Colonial authority, from the settlement of Jamestown, Va., in 1607, to the battle of Lexington, in 1775, or who served as Governor, Deputy-Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Member of the Council, or as a military, naval, or marine officer in the service of the Colonies, or under the banner of Great Britain, or was conspicuous in military, official, or legislative life during that period.

Mount Vernon Ladies' Association.

The Washington Estate at Mount Vernon, Va. (237 of the 8,000 acres owned by Washington), is under the care and direction of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union. The founder of the Association in 1853 was Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham, of South Carolina. She was the first Regent, and her successors have been Mrs. Lily M. B. Loughton, 1874-1891; Mrs. Justine Van Rensselaer Townsend, 1891-1900, and Miss Harriet C. Comegys, 1900, the present Regent. There are Vice-Regents for thirty States.

The present officers are: Regent—Miss Harriet C. Comegys. Recording Secretary—Mrs. Henry W. Rogers. Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. John J. Pringle, Plantersville, S. C. Treasurer—E. Francis Riggs, D. C. Resident Superintendent—Harrison H. Dodge. Assistant Superintendent—James Young. Advisory Committee—Lewis Cass Ledyard, N. Y., and Chief Justice Fuller.

The Order of the Founders and Patriots of America.

Governor-General—Col. Rollin Summons Woodruff, New Haven, Ct. Deputy Governor-General—Gen. Edward Franc Jones, Binghamton, N. Y. Chaplain-General—Joseph F. Falsom, D. D., Newark, N. J. Secretary-General—Clarence E. Leonard, New York. Treasurer-General—William Alexander N. Doreland, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa. Attorney-General—Robert Hinckley, Philadelphia, Pa. Registrar-General—Wm. Edward Fitch, M. D., New York. Genealogist-General—George Franklin Newcomb, New Haven, Ct. Historian-General—Wm. White Knapp, Flushing, N. Y.

The Order was founded in 1896, its object being "to bring together and associate congenial men whose ancestors struggled together for life and liberty, home and happiness, in the land when it was a new and unknown country, and whose line of descent from them comes through patriots who sustained the Colonies in the struggle for independence in the Revolutionary War; to teach reverent regard for the names and history, character and perseverance, deeds and heroism of the founders of this country and their patriot descendants; to teach that the purpose of the founders could have had no lasting result but for their patriot sons; to inculcate patriotism; to discover, collect, and preserve records, documents, manuscripts, monuments, and history relating to the first colonists and their ancestors and their descendants, and to commemorate and celebrate events in the history of the Colonies and the Republic." Eligibility—Any man above the age of twenty-one years, of good moral character and reputation, and a citizen of the United States, who is lineally descended, in the male line of either parent, from an ancestor who settled in any of the Colonies now included in the United States of America prior to May 13, 1657, and whose intermediate ancestors in the same line during the Revolutionary period adhered as patriots to the cause of the Colonies, shall be eligible for membership. There are State Societies in New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. The Governor of the New York Society is Edward Hagaman, Hall, Tribune Building, New York. The Secretary is William White Knapp, Flushing, N. Y.

Prisoners in the United States.

The Census Office published in 1907 a special report on prisoners and juvenile delinquents in institutions in the United States. The enumerations are for 1904, when the census was taken. The following is a summary from the report:

The number of institutions in the United States June 30, 1904, was 1,327, classified as follows: United States civil prisons, 4; State prisons and State and County penitentiaries, 67; reformatories for adults, 14; County jails and workhouses, 1,181; municipal prisons and workhouses, 71.

Exclusive of the juvenile delinquents in special institutions for that class, and exclusive of persons imprisoned for the non-payment of fines, 81,772 sane persons at least five years of age were serving sentences in civil prisons on June 30, 1904. Out of every million persons in the estimated population of that date 1,006 were prisoners.

Possibly the greater leniency in the present treatment of the criminal affects the female offenders more than the male, for the proportion of women among prisoners has constantly decreased. In 1880 women formed 8.5 per cent. of the prisoners; in 1890, 7.8 per cent.; and in 1894, 5.5 per cent. The decrease between 1880 and 1904 is common to all sections of the country.

Colored persons were more common among the prisoners on June 30, 1904, than they were on June 1, 1890. In 1904 the percentage of colored was 32.6, while in 1890 it was 30.4. This increase in the proportion of colored prisoners is shown by all the geographic divisions of the country except the South Atlantic and the Western States. It was particularly notable in the North Central States, where 14.2 per cent. of the prisoners enumerated in 1890 were colored as contrasted with 20.5 per cent. in 1904.

MINOR OFFENCES MOST COMMON.

In the country as a whole 34,753 persons were sentenced for drunkenness, 28,339 for vagrancy, and 17,264 for disorderly conduct. In other words, more than one-half of the total number of prisoners committed during the year were sentenced for some one of these three closely allied offences. No less than 25,698 prisoners (16.8 per cent. of the total number) were sentenced for larceny; 10,877 (7.3 per cent.) for assault, and 7,161 (4.8 per cent.) for burglary. Of the remaining offences homicide showed the largest number—2,444, or 1.6 per cent. of the total.

SHORT SENTENCES IMPOSED.

Since such a large proportion of the total number of prisoners had been committed for minor offences, it naturally follows that a large proportion were committed for short terms. In continental United States 42,785, or 28.6 per cent. of the total number, were sentenced to imprisonment for less than thirty days, and 97,759, or 65.4 per cent., for less than four months. The proportion of short sentences varies widely in different States, but this variation does not stand in as close relation to the proportion of minor offenders as might be expected. The figures, in fact, indicate wide divergences between different States in the length of sentence imposed for similar offences.

DEATH SENTENCES.

Of the 106 persons committed to prison under death sentence 99 had been convicted of homicide, 4 of assaults, 2 of rape, and 1 of a double crime, murder being one of them. Two women paid the death penalty for homicide.

Life sentences were imposed upon 640 prisoners, of whom 586 were convicted of homicide, 28 of rape, 12 of burglary, 4 of robbery, 3 of larceny, 2 of arson, 1 of assault, 1 of the crime against nature, 1 of perjury, 1 of an unclassified crime against property, and 1 of a crime not stated. Twenty women were committed during 1904 on a life sentence.

CRIMINALITY OF COLORED.

Among the 149,691 prisoners committed during 1904, 125,093 were white and 24,598 colored, of whom 186 were Mongolians and 714 Indians. In other words, 16.4 per cent. of the total number of prisoners committed during the year were colored. Of the general population in 1900 the colored formed only 12.1 per cent. Since it cannot be presumed that the proportion of colored in the population increased materially between 1900 and 1904, it is evident that the colored contributed to the prison class in excess of their representation in the general population. The condition is not confined to any one section of the country, for the figures show that it obtained in every State and Territory, except North Dakota and Arizona, where the colored population is composed chiefly of Indians.

The colored, moreover, formed a larger percentage of the prisoners convicted of the more serious crimes than they did of those who had been sentenced for the lesser offences. They formed 31.5 per cent. of the major offenders and only 13 per cent. of the minor.

CRIMINALITY OF FOREIGN BORN.

Of the white prisoners of known nativity 35,093, or 23.8 per cent., were foreign born. The figures for the separate nationalities of foreign born show that persons born in Austria, England, and Wales, Ireland, Italy, Mexico and Scotland formed a larger proportion of the foreign born prisoners committed during 1904 than of the total foreign born population in 1900. This was not true of the persons born in Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Hungary, Norway, Poland, Russia, Sweden, and Switzerland. The last mentioned group of countries furnished 58.8 per cent. of the foreign born population of 1900, but only 36.5 per cent. of the foreign born prisoners committed during 1904, while the first mentioned group included 35.3 per cent. of the population and 59.3 per cent. of the prisoners.

Newfoundland Fisheries Agreement.

A SPECIAL agreement was concluded between the United States and Great Britain in January, 1909, to submit to the International Bureau at The Hague the controversy over the Newfoundland fisheries. Their statements of the case by both Governments were filed with each other in October, 1909. On February 4, 1910, counter briefs are to be filed on both sides, and printed arguments are to be ready in two months thereafter, or by April 4, 1910. The present understanding is that early in the succeeding month, that is, May, 1910, the arbitrators will meet to hear the final arguments and to render a decision upon the points involved in the controversy, and the hope is entertained that the decision will be rendered in time for the opening of the fishing season this year.

THE MARINE CORPS.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps is responsible to the Secretary of the Navy for the general efficiency and discipline of the corps; makes such distribution of officers and men for duty at the several shore stations as shall appear to him to be most advantageous for the interest of the service, furnishes guards for vessels of the Navy, according to the standard scale of allowance, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy; issues orders for the movement of officers and troops, and such other orders and instructions for their guidance as may be necessary, and has charge and exercises general supervision and control of the recruiting service of the corps and of the necessary expenses thereof, including the establishment of recruiting offices.

Principal Battleships of Naval Powers.

(Compiled from the latest authentic sources of official information. Only the principal and more modern battleships are given. Most of the principal powers possess powerful armored cruisers equal to or in greater number than battleships, and in addition many vessels of smaller and older types.)

Following Great Britain, the first naval power, the United States now ranks second, Germany third, Japan fourth and France fifth; Russia, once the third naval power, has now declined to the eighth place.

Polar Explorations in 1909.

BY GILBERT H. GROSVENOR, EDITOR NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY.

Nineteen hundred and nine will always rank as the most eventful year in Polar history. An American placed the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole, while a British expedition gained a position almost within sight of the South Pole. The scientific discoveries made during the year at each end of the earth are extremely important and have dissipated the mystery that for many centuries has enwrapped the top and bottom of the globe.

September 1, 1909, Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn telegraphed from Shetland Islands that he had discovered the North Pole April 21, 1908. Cook had been landed by John K. Bradley's yacht at Annotok, nearly 800 miles from the Pole, in August, 1907. Cook's assertion is that on February 19, 1908, with eleven men and 103 dogs, he left Annotok, crossed Smith Sound, traversed Ellesmere Land to Nansen Sound, which he followed to Land's End. On March 19, with two Eskimos and 26 dogs, he left Cape Thomas Hubbard for the Pole, 460 miles distant, which he claims to have reached on April 21. The return route was considerably to the west of the upward march. Open water compelled him to keep to the west of Axel Heberg Land, and other circumstances detained him at Cape Sparbo, North Devon, during the winter of 1908-09. On February 18 he started for Annotok, where he arrived on April 15, and thence at Upernavik May 21, 1909.

Five days after Cook's announcement was received came word from Indian Harbor that Commander Robert E. Peary, United States Navy, had reached the Pole April 6, 1909. And a few hours later the assertion followed that Cook had not been within 450 miles of the North Pole. Scientists and geographers throughout the world have asserted that before the conclusions of either Commander Peary or Dr. Cook that the North Pole had been discovered could be accepted it would be necessary that the original records and data of each explorer be carefully examined by a scientific commission. At the date of this writing, November 25, 1909, Commander Peary's records have been examined by an expert commission of the National Geographic Society and his claim of having reached the Pole has been sustained. Dr. Cook's records on this date are en route to Denmark, where they will be examined by the University of Copenhagen.

The Peary expedition went north in July, 1908, on the steamer Roosevelt, which had been specially constructed on plans by Peary several years before and which had enabled him to make the furthest north, 87 deg. 6 min., in 1906. At Etah 39 Eskimo men and women, 10 children and 226 dogs were taken on board. The Roosevelt then proceeded up Kane Basin through Robeson Channel to Cape Sheridan, where on September 5 the winter base was reached. During the remaining days of daylight the supplies and equipment were transferred to different caches as far west as Cape Columbia, while hunting parties secured many bear, musk oxen and deer, which gave fresh meat during the winter. After the Polar night set in the men were kept in condition by sledging trips when the moon was up. On February 15, twenty days before sunrise, the march from Cape Sheridan to Cape Columbia began. February 28 and March 1 the North Pole party left Cape Columbia in five detachments. Capt. Bartlett, skipper of the Roosevelt, headed the first detachment, which was lightly equipped, to break the trail. Peary brought up the rear. The detachments were sent back one after another, the fourth, in command of Capt. Bartlett, leaving Peary near the 88th parallel. From here Peary, Mat Hensen and four Eskimos made the final dash of 140 miles to the Pole in five days, which they reached on April 6. Thirty hours were spent at the Pole taking observations, in going ten miles beyond the camp and then eight miles to the right of it, in depositing records and studying the horizon and searching for a place to make a sounding. During twenty of the early hours at the Pole the weather was cloudless. The lowest temperature recorded was 33 degrees below zero, the maximum 12 below. On the afternoon of April 7 they started back. During the first three days the party made 130 miles, which is the record for Arctic traveling. The return trip to Cape Columbia required only 16 days, which is a wonderfully quick trip for 400 odd miles. The journey from Cape Columbia to the Pole had required 36 days, 14 of which were lost because of delays at open leads in the ice.

Aside from the attainment of the Pole itself, the most important results were a series of soundings taken by Peary. The first, made about 50 miles north of Cape Columbia, showed a depth of 110 fathoms. Another sounding about 90 miles from the coast gave a depth of 325 fathoms. This was just after the great lead had been crossed. Peary believes that this great open lead, which had caused him so much trouble in his previous expeditions, marks the edge of the continental shelf. Five miles from the Pole a sounding of 1,500 fathoms, or one and three-quarter miles, gave no bottom, showing the enormous depth of the sea at the top of the globe—quite a contrast from the lofty plateau at the other end of the world.

On July 18 the Roosevelt left her winter quarters, and a month later landed the Eskimos at Etah. On September 5 Indian Harbor was reached and the world notified that the Pole had been discovered by an American.

Peary's success in reaching the goal which had been sought for three centuries was made possible by long experience and a thorough knowledge of the difficulties to be overcome. The planning of his supporting parties was so admirably conceived that when the last supporting party left him, 140 miles from the Pole, his sledges were full and his dogs and men in first-class condition.

His attainment of the North Pole crowns a life devoted to the exploration of the icy North. In 1892 he crossed the ice cap of Greenland in a sledging trip of 1,200 miles, and proved that Greenland is an island instead of a continent extending to the Pole. Next to the discovery of the Pole itself, this feat is the most important piece of exploration accomplished in the North. Since 1891 not only all his energies, but every dollar he could spare, have been devoted to the cause. Aside from the late Morris K. Jesup and possibly one other, Peary himself has contributed more dollars to his expeditions than any other individual. His successive expeditions have not only mapped thousands of miles of the coast line of Greenland, Grant Land and Ellesmere Land, but they have brought back valuable tidal and meteorological data, immense geological collections obtained all the way from Cape Thomas Hubbard to Cape Morris Jesup, the greatest known meteorite and many specimens of the Arctic reindeer and other Arctic fauna which he discovered. Incidentally Peary has shown that animal life extends almost to the Pole itself. The importance of his previous scientific work has been recognized by special gold medals from the National Geographic Society, the American Geographical Society of New York, the Royal Geographical Society of London, the Paris Geographical Society, the Geographical Society of Berlin, and many scientific organizations.

Americans have a right to be proud of their record in North Polar exploration. Every forward step to the top of the world along the Greenland route has been made by an American. In 1853 Elisha Kent Kane, of Philadelphia, discovered the passage to the Kane Basin; in 1870 Charles Francis Hall discovered the passage to the Polar Ocean; Greely, U. S. A., in 1882 pushed the Stars and Stripes to 83 deg. 24 min.; and now Peary has broken the trail to the Pole itself.

Walter Wellman in August made a third attempt to reach the North Pole in a dirigible balloon. He failed, but probably in a few years his plan of getting to the Pole in a flying machine will be the usual method of Polar exploration.

News of the success of Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton in the far south first reached the world when the Nimrod, bringing back his party, put in at Half Moon Bay, Stuart Island, New Zealand, March 23, 1909. Nothing had been heard from Shackleton since he was landed in January, 1908, at Cape Royds, near the base of the active volcano Mount Erebus. Here he had made his headquarters at the same spot used by the previous very successful British Antarctic expedition of 1901-04, which was headed by Capt. Robert F. Scott, R. N., and of which Shackleton himself was a member. Shackleton's equipment contained several features novel in South Polar work—eight ponies which had been brought all the way from Manchuria, China, and a motor car. The motor car proved of little value on the rough ice, but the ponies showed remarkable endurance of cold, and it was owing to their great pulling power that Shackleton reached 88 deg. 23 min. on January 9, 1909.

Shackleton's main party, consisting of himself, Adams, Marshall and Wild, with four ponies, left Cape Royds October 29, 1908. For four weeks they headed up the great ice barrier, reaching November 26 latitude 82 deg. 18 1-2 min, longitude 168 deg. E. They had now travelled 400 miles almost due south, and passed the "furthest south" record made by Scott, Shackleton and Wilson in 1902. The high range of mountains which had been visible on the west during the entire journey now began to trend more to the southeast and east, and threatened to obstruct the direct route to the Pole. Shackleton therefore changed his course and headed directly toward the mountains. They discovered a glacier 130 miles long and approximately 40 miles wide, by means of which they were able in spite of treacherous snow and crevasses to ascend the mountain range. At the foot of a wonderful granite cliff, polished by the winds and snows of ages, on December 5 they left their fourth depot. The following day it took the party six hours to pass about 600 yards of crevassed ice. Their surviving pony (the others had been killed and cached for the return) on the same day dropped through a crevasse and was lost, but happily the swingle tree snapped and the sledge was saved. This accident left the party with two sledges and the weight of about 250 pounds per man to haul. In latitude 85 deg. Wild, who had climbed the slope of the mountain in order to look ahead, found six seams of coal ranging from four inches to eight feet in thickness. Near this point Shackleton also found fossil carboniferous wood.

On December 18 in latitude 85 deg. 10 min. they had attained an altitude of about 7,000 feet, and, thinking that they had now reached the summit, they made a depot and left everything they could spare, including their extra clothing, but they were obliged to ascend 3,000 feet more, and it was not until December 23 that they gained the great inland plateau behind the mountain ranges they had discovered. They pushed over the plateau south through a constant southerly blizzard of terrific force and drifting snow and in a temperature of 37 to 70 deg. below freezing.

On January 7 and 8 the blizzard made any march impossible, and the men lay in their sleeping bags, frequently attacked by frost bite. The wind blew from 50 to 80 miles an hour, and the suffering of the party was extreme. For some days they had been living on greatly reduced rations. On January 9 the blizzard abated, and they continued on a few miles further to 88 deg. 23 min.—110 miles from the South Pole—where they hoisted the Union Jack and deposited a brass cylinder containing stamps and documents. The altitude here was 10,000 feet, and the great white plain extended to the south as far as they could see. It was evident that the geographical South Pole is situated on a plateau at least 10,000 feet above the sea level.

The scientific results of Shackleton's expedition also included the first ascent of the volcano Erebus, 13,350 feet, and a sight of its great crater, which is about half a mile wide and 900 feet deep. The volcano is quite active, throwing up great columns of steam and sulphurous smoke. Shackleton has brought back wonderful photographs of Erebus, and the first moving pictures of life in the Antarctic, and of the extraordinary penguin, which lays its egg on a cake of ice in the blackness of the Polar night and then holds the egg and chick on its feet until the young bird can care for itself.

A most important discovery was the finding of living microscopic animals on some fungus that had been thawed out from a lump of ice taken from the bottom of a small fresh water pond. These rotifers showed remarkable vitality. Murray, the biologist of the expedition, would thaw them out from a block of ice, freeze them up again, and repeat this process several times without killing them. A large number of them survived a temperature of 260 deg. Fahrenheit and a brine solution so strongly saline that it would not freeze at a temperature above minus 7 deg. Fahrenheit. Water bears were found living while frozen in ice just as well as the rotifers.

The expedition has probably solved the problem of the great ice barrier, which is sometimes called one of the seven wonders of the world. The barrier is a great floating plain of ice 1,000 and more feet thick, extending from King Edward Land across to Cape Royds, a distance of over 400 miles. Its front is a precipitous wall of ice from 70 to 250 feet above the sea. The plain extends south for at least 400 miles, probably ending at about 84 deg. south latitude. It had been previously supposed that the ice was fed by glaciers, but Shackleton's observations tend to show that it is composed mainly of layers of snow. The barrier is retreating at the rate of about half a mile a year.

On the voyage homeward in the Nimrod he discovered a new range of tabular mountains 7,000 feet high, extending from Victoria Land. This new land once more confirms the discoveries made nearly seventy years ago by the American, Wilkes, who first announced to the world the existence of a great Antarctic continent.

Campaigning against the Pole in some respects is easier in the South than in the North. The weather is much harsher and more boisterous in the South, but the working season is longer. The North Pole is surrounded by an ice-covered ocean, which must be crossed in Spring before the ice breaks apart under the Summer sun. The South Pole, on the other hand, is situated on a great ice plateau, which may be traversed during almost the entire period of daylight. Thus, while Peary was compelled to complete his dash from the most northern land to the Pole and back in a period of about sixty days, the South Polar explorer had more than one hundred and twenty days at his disposal.

COST OF THE BRITISH ROYAL FAMILY.

The annuities paid by the British people to the royal family for its support are as follows: The King and Queen, $2,350,000; Prince of Wales, $100,000; Princess of Wales, $50,000; Princess Christian, $30,000; Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll) $30,000; Duke of Connaught, $125,000; Princess Beatrice, $30,000; Duchess of Albany, $30,000; Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, $15,000; Trustees for the King's Daughters, $90,000; Total, $2,910,000. The King also receives the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster. During recent years these have amounted to about $500,000 per annum. The Prince of Wales has an income also from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, amounting to about $300,000 per annum. When the royal children marry dowries are usually provided for them. The last of the children of the late Queen Victoria to marry, Princess Beatrice, received $150,000 as dowry from the British people by Parliamentary grant.

Reigning Families

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

Francis Joseph I., the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, was born August 18, 1830, and was proclaimed Emperor of Austria after the abdication of his uncle, Ferdinand I., on December 2, 1848. He was crowned King of Hungary June 8, 1867. He married, in 1854, Elizabeth, a daughter of Duke Maximilian of Bavaria. She died by the hand of an Anarchist in Geneva, September 10, 1898. They had issue:

1. Archduchess Gisela, born 1856; married to Leopold, son of the Regent Luitpold of Bavaria. Issue, two daughters and two sons.
 2. Archduke Rudolph, late heir apparent, born 1858; died by suicide, 1889. He married, 1881, Stephanie, daughter of the present King of the Belgians, and had issue one daughter, the Archduchess Elizabeth, born 1883; married, 1902, Prince Otto Windischgratz. The widowed Crown Princess Stephanie married, March, 1900, Count Elémer Lonyay.

3. Archduchess Marie Valerie, born 1868; married, 1890, Archduke Francis-Salvator of Tuscany. On the death of the Crown Prince, in 1889, the right of succession to the throne passed to the Emperor's eldest brother, the Archduke Charles Louis, who was born 1853, and died 1896; he married, 1892 (second marriage), the Princess Annunziata, daughter of King Ferdinand II. of Naples, and had issue the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, born 1863, who is the heir presumptive to the throne (married, morganatically, 1900, Countess Sophie Chotek, who had title Duchess of Hohenberg conferred upon her October, 1909, and renounced the claim of his issue by her to the throne); the Archduke Otto, born 1855, died 1906, married to the Princess Marie Josefa of Saxony, had two sons (Archdukes Charles, born 1887, and Maximilian, born 1895); the Archduke Ferdinand, born 1868, and unmarried, and the Archduchess Margaret Sophia, born 1870, died 1902; she married in 1893 Albert, Duke of Württemberg. By a third marriage, the Archduke Charles Louis had two daughters.

The Emperor has a second brother, the Archduke Louis Victor, born 1842, who is unmarried, and a sister-in-law, Empress Carlotta of Mexico, the widow of his brother Maximilian, executed at Queretaro in 1867. She is insane, and lives in Belgium with the King, her brother.

There are over seventy other archdukes and archduchesses of Austria, cousins of the Emperor, collateral relatives of the reigning house and members of the formerly reigning branches of Tuscany and Modena.

BAVARIA.

Otto, King of Bavaria, was born April 27, 1848, and succeeded his brother, Ludwig II., June 13, 1886, when that mad monarch committed suicide by drowning himself in the Starnberg Lake. Otto is also crazy, is shut up in one of his châteaux, and the kingdom is governed by Prince Luitpold, his uncle, as regent. The latter is also the heir apparent to the throne; was born in 1821; married, 1844, the Austrian Archduchess Augusta of Tuscany, who is dead, and has four children:

1. Prince Louis, born 1846; married the Austrian Archduchess Maria Theresa, and has six daughters and four sons, the eldest of the latter being Prince Rupert, born 1869, and married, 1900, his cousin, Duchess Marie Gabrielle of Bavaria; has two sons, Luitpold and Albrecht.

2. Prince Leopold, born 1846; married to the Austrian Archduchess Gisela, daughter of the Emperor Francis Joseph I. There are two daughters and two sons.

3. Princess Theresa, born 1850; prioress of a convent in Munich.
 4. Prince Arnulf, 1852, married the Princess Theresia of Lichtenstein, and died 1907, leaving a son, Prince Henry.

King Otto has five cousins who bear princely titles, children of his dead uncle, Adalbert. The royal house of Bavaria comes from the Counts of Wittelsbach of the twelfth century, one of whose descendants was elevated to the rank of Elector, and a later one made King by Napoleon I.

BELGIUM.

Leopold II., King of the Belgians, was born April 9, 1835, and was a son of Leopold I., Prince of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (uncle of Queen Victoria), who was elected King of the Belgians in 1831, and Princess Louise, daughter of King Louis Philippe of France. The present King, who ascended the throne in 1865, was married, in 1853, to the Austrian Archduchess Marie Henriette (died 1902), and has the following children:

1. Princess Louise, born 1858; married to Prince Philippe of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and divorced in 1906. Issue, one son and one daughter.

2. Princess Stephanie, born 1864; married, 1881, to the late Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, and has one daughter. Princess Stephanie married, second, in 1900, Elémer, Count Lonyay of Nagy-Lonyay and Vasoras-Nameuy, Chamberlain to the Emperor of Austria.

3. Princess Clementine, born 1872. The King's brother was Prince Philippe, Count of Flanders, born in 1837; married to the Hohenzollern Princess Marie, and died in 1905. His son, Prince Albert, is the present heir apparent to the throne, born in 1875, and married, in 1900, the Princess Elizabeth (daughter of Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria). They have two sons, Prince Leopold, born in 1901, and Charles Theodore, born in 1903, and a daughter, Princess Marie Jose, born 1906. Prince Philippe had also two daughters, Henriette, born 1870; married, 1896, the Duke of Vendôme; and Josephine, born 1872; married, 1894, Prince Charles of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen.

The sister of the King is the hapless ex-Empress Carlotta of Mexico, widow of Maximilian. She was born in 1840, widowed in 1867, has no children, and is now insane.

DENMARK.

Fredereik VIII., King of Denmark, succeeded to the throne of Denmark by virtue of the law of the Danish succession on the death of his father, King Christian IX., in 1906. He was born 1843; married the Princess Louise of Sweden in 1869, and has three daughters and four sons, the eldest of the latter being Crown Prince Christian, born in 1870, and married, 1898, Princess Alexandra of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and has two sons; and the second, Prince Charles, born 1872, and married, 1896, Princess Matid, third daughter of King Edward VII, and elected King of Norway in 1905, as Haakon VII. The eldest daughter is married to Prince Charles of Sweden.

The King's brothers and sisters are:

1. The Queen of Great Britain and Ireland (Alexandra), born 1844; married 1863, and has four living children.

2. The King of the Hellenes (George I.), born 1845; married to the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, and has one daughter and five sons the eldest of the latter being Prince Constantine.

3. The Dowager Empress of Russia (Dagmar), born 1847; married the late Czar Alexander III. in 1866, and has four children, one being the present Czar.

4. The Duchess of Cumberland (Thyra), born 1853; married the present Duke of Cumberland (English title), son of the ex-King of Hanover, in 1875, and has two sons and three daughters.

5. Prince Waldemar, born 1858; married, 1885, the Princess Marie of Orleans, daughter of the Duke of Chartres, and has four sons and a daughter. He was offered the crown of Bulgaria in 1886, but declined.

GERMANY.

William II., German Emperor and King of Prussia, was born January 27, 1859; succeeded his father, the Emperor Frederick III., June 15, 1888. He married the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg (born 1858), and has had issue:

1. Frederick William, Crown Prince, born 1882, married, June 6, 1905, to Duchess Cecille of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and has two sons, William Frederick, born July 4, 1906, and Louis Ferdinand, born November 9, 1907; 2. William Eitel-Frederick, born 1883, married, February 27, 1906, Princess Sophie Charlotte of Oldenburg; 3. Adalbert, born 1884; 4. August, born 1887, married his cousin, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Sonderburg, 1908; 5. Oscar, born 1888; 6. Joachim, born 1890; 7. Victoria Louise, born 1892.

The Emperor's brother is Prince Henry, born 1862, and married, 1888, to his cousin, Princess Irene of Hesse, daughter of the late Princess Alice of England, and has two sons; and the Emperor has four sisters, all the children of the late Emperor Frederick and the Princess Victoria of England (the Dowager Empress Frederick, who died in 1901). The sisters are:

1. Princess Charlotte, born 1860; married, 1878, to George, hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, and has one daughter.
2. Princess Victoria, born 1866; married, 1890, to Prince Adolph of Schaumburg-Lippe.
3. Princess Sophia, born 1870; married, 1889, to Constantine, Crown Prince of Greece, and has three sons and a daughter.
4. Princess Margaret, born 1872; married, 1893, to Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, and has five sons.

The Emperor has an aunt, the Princess Louise, born 1838, widow of the late Grand Duke of Baden; and he has a number of cousins, descendants of the brothers and sisters of the Emperor William I. One of these is Princess Margaret, daughter of the late Prince Frederick Charles and wife of the British Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria. The reigning family is descended from Frederick of Hohenzollern, a German count in 980, and Frederick William, the Elector of Brandenburg, 1640-88, whose son became King of Prussia.

GREECE.

George I., King of the Hellenes, born December 24, 1845, elected King in 1863. He is the brother of the present King of Denmark, Frederick VIII., and brother of the Queen of Great Britain and the Dowager Empress of Russia. He married, 1867, the Grand Duchess Olga, eldest daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, grand uncle to the present Emperor. They have had six living children, five sons and one daughter. The eldest son is:

Prince Constantine, born 1868; married, 1889, the Princess Sophia, sister of the present German Emperor, and has three sons—Prince George, born 1890; Prince Alexander, born 1893, and Prince Paul, born 1901—and a daughter, Princess Helen, born 1896. The other sons of the King are: Prince George, born 1869; Prince Nicholas, born 1872; Prince Andrew, born 1882; Prince Christopher, born 1888.

The King's eldest daughter, Alexandra, married, in 1889, the Grand Duke Paul, uncle of the present Emperor of Russia, and died September 24, 1891, leaving a daughter and a son.

ITALY.

Victor Emmanuel III., King of Italy, was born November 11, 1869, and is the only son of Humbert I., second King of United Italy, murdered by the Anarchist Bresci at Monza, July 29, 1900. He married, in 1896, Princess Helene, fourth daughter of Nicholas, Prince of Montenegro, and has four children—Princess Iolande, born June 1, 1901; Princess Mafalda, born November 10, 1902; Prince Humbert (heir apparent), born September 15, 1904, and Princess Giovanna, born November 13, 1907.

Emmanuel, Duke of Aosta, born 1869, is eldest son of the late Prince Amadeus, uncle of present King (and ex-King of Spain); married, 1895, Princess Helene of Orleans, daughter of the late Count of Paris, and they have had issue two children—Amadeus, born 1898, and Aimone, born 1900. The three remaining sons of the late Prince Amadeus are Victor, Count of Turin, born 1870; Louis, Duke of Abruzzi, born 1873, and Humbert, Count of Salerni, born in 1889 of his second marriage with his niece, Princess Letitia, daughter of Prince Napoleon Bonaparte and the Princess Clotilde.

The mother of the King is Queen Margherita, daughter of the late Prince Ferdinand of Savoy. She was born 1851, and married the late King 1868.

The following are the aunts of the King:

1. Princess Clotilde, born 1843; married, 1859, to Prince Napoleon Jerome Bonaparte, the late head of the Bonaparte family, and has issue two sons and a daughter, Letitia. (See "Bonapartists.")
2. Dowager Queen Maria Pia of Portugal, born 1847, and married, 1862, to the late King Louis of Portugal, and has one son.

The King's great aunt by marriage, the Princess Elizabeth, widow of the Duke of Genoa, has a son (Prince Thomas, Duke of Genoa, married, 1883, Princess Isabella, daughter of Prince Adelbert of Bavaria, and has three sons and two daughters) and a daughter, the latter being the late King Humbert's wife. The family is descended from the Counts of Savoy, who flourished in the Eleventh Century.

NETHERLANDS.

Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands and Princess of Orange-Nassau, born August 31, 1880, daughter of the late King William III, and Emma, daughter of Prince George Victor of Waldeck-Pyrmont. She married, February 7, 1901, Prince Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin; issue, Juliana Wilhelmina, born April 13, 1909, Princess of Orange.

The Queen's mother is the late Regent Queen Emma, whose regency lasted from the death of the late King, her husband, November 23, 1890, until the end of the minority of her daughter, August 31, 1898. The Queen's aunt is the Princess Sophia, married to the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar. She has a son, Prince Charles, born 1844, and two daughters. This family, known as the House of Orange, is descended from the Princes of Orange, stadtholders during the Dutch Republic.

NORWAY.

Haakon VII., King of Norway, was before his election to the crown by the Norwegian people, in 1905, Prince Charles of Denmark. He is the second son of King Frederick VIII. of Denmark; was born 1872; married, 1896, Princess Maud, third daughter of King Edward VII. of Great Britain, and has one son, Olav Alexander Edward Christian Frederick, born July 2, 1903.

PORTUGAL.

Manuel II., King of Portugal, born in 1889, son of King Charles and Queen Amélie of Orleans, ascended the throne on the 1st of February, 1908, after the tragic and terrible assassination that day in Lisbon of his father and elder brother, Prince Louis Philippe. He is unmarried. The King has an uncle, Prince Infante Alfonso, Duke of Oporto, born in 1856, and unmarried. The reigning family belongs to the House of Braganza, whose founder was an illegitimate son of King John I. (A. D. 1400) of the old line of Portuguese kings.

RUSSIA.

Nicholas II., Emperor of Russia, was born May 18, 1868, and succeeded his father, the late Emperor Alexander III., November 1, 1894. He is married to the Princess Alice (Alix) of Hesse-Darmstadt, daughter of the Princess Alice of Great Britain, and has four daughters and one son—Olga, born in 1895; Tatiana, born in 1897; Marie, born in 1899; Anastasia, born in 1901, and Alexis (the Czarevitch), born August 12, 1904.

The late Emperor Alexander III., born in 1845, married, in 1866, the Princess Dagmar, sister of the present King of Denmark, had issue three sons: 1. Nicholas, the present Emperor; 2. Grand Duke George (the late Czarevitch), born 1871, died 1899; 3. Grand Duke Michael, born December 4, 1878, and two daughters: 1. Grand Duchess Xenia, born April 6, 1875; married, August 6, 1894, her cousin, the Grand Duke Alexander, has four sons and two daughters; and 2. Grand Duchess Olga, born June 13, 1892, married to Prince Peter of Oldenburg. The uncles and aunts of the Emperor are:

1. Grand Duke Vladimir, born 1847; died 1909. He married, 1874, the Princess Marie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and had three sons and one daughter, Grand Duke Cyril, born in 1876; married, 1905, Melita, second daughter of the late Duke of Coburg and divorced wife of the Grand Duke of Hesse. Grand Duke Boris is the second son and was born in 1877.

2. Grand Duke Alexis, High Admiral, born 1850. He was unmarried. Died Paris, November 14, 1908.

3. Grand Duchess Marie, born 1853; married the late Duke of Edinburgh, and has had one son (deceased) and four daughters.

4. Grand Duke Sergius, born 1857; married, 1884, Princess Elizabeth of Hesse-Darmstadt, daughter of Princess Alice of England. Assassinated in 1905. He left no issue.

5. Grand Duke Paul, born 1860; married, 1889, Princess Alexandria, daughter of the King of the Hellenes. She died September 24, 1891, leaving a son, the Grand Duke Demetrius, and a daughter. In 1902 he contracted amorganatic marriage with Olga Pistolkohrs, now Countess Hohenfelsen.

The Emperor has one grand uncle (son of the Emperor Nicholas I.), Grand Duke Michael, born 1832, field marshal in the Russian Army; married, 1857, Princess Cecilia of Baden, and has issue six living children, the eldest daughter, Anastasia, born 1860, being the widow of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and mother of the German Crown Prince.

A grand uncle, the Grand Duke Constantine, born 1827; died January 12, 1892; married, 1848, Princess Alexandra of Saxe-Altenburg, and had issue five children, the Grand Duke Nicholas, born 1850, being the eldest, and the Grand Duchess Olga, born 1851, the eldest daughter, being married to the King of the Hellenes.

A third grand uncle, the Grand Duke Nicholas, born 1831, field marshal in the Russian Army, died in 1891, married, in 1856, the Princess Alexandra of Oldenburg, and had issue two sons, Grand Duke Nicholas, born 1856, married, 1907, Anastasia daughter of the present Prince of Montenegro, and sister of Queen Helene, of Italy, and Grand Duke Peter, married, in 1889, Miitsa, sister of the preceding.

The Russian reigning family is descended from Michael Romanoff, elected Czar in 1613. The members of the family for over two centuries, however, have married so generally into the German royal houses that the present Romanoffs are practically, by blood, Germans; as much so as their kinsman, the head of the German Empire.

SAXONY.

Frederick August, King of Saxony, born May 25, 1865, succeeded his father, King George, October 15, 1904. He married in 1891 Archduchess Louise of Austria (from whom he was separated in 1903). The King has three daughters and three sons, the Crown Prince being George, born 1893.

The King has two sisters, Mathilde, born 1863, unmarried, and Maria Josepha, born 1867, married to the late Archduke Otto of Austria, and two brothers, Johann Georg, born 1869, married first to Duchess Isabella of Württemberg (died 1904), and in 1906 to Princess Maria Immaculata of Bourbon, and Max, born 1870, a priest in Holy Orders.

A great aunt of the King, Princess Elizabeth, born 1830, married Prince Ferdinand of Sardinia, and after his death in 1856 Marchese Rapallo, who died in 1882.

The royal house of Saxony is one of the oldest in Europe, having given an emperor to Germany as early as the beginning of the tenth century. The Elector of Saxony assumed the title of King in 1806, and was confirmed therein in 1815.

SPAIN.

Alphonso XIII., King of Spain, born May 17, 1886, nearly six months after the death of his father, Alphonso XII. His mother is Maria Christina, an Austrian princess. He married in 1906 the English Princess Victoria Eugeme, daughter of Princess Henry of Battenberg, youngest sister of King Edward VII. He has two sons, Alphonso, Prince of the Asturias, heir to the Spanish throne, born the 10th of May, 1907, and Prince Jaime, born at La Granja Palace, near Madrid, on the 22d of July, 1908, and one daughter, Princess Beatrice, born the 21st of July, 1909.

The King's only surviving sister, the Infanta Maria Teresa, born in 1882, is married to her cousin the Infante Ferdinand, of Bavaria, son of Prince Louis of Bavaria. They have two sons, the Infante Alfonso Luis Fernando, born in 1906, and Infante Jose Carlos, born in 1909.

The King's aunts are the Infantas Isabella, widow of the Count de Girgenti; Maria, wife of Prince Louis of Bavaria, and Eulalie, wife of Prince Antonio of Orleans (separated from him by deed of separation), who visited the United States and the World's Fair in 1893.

The King's grandmother, ex-Queen Isabella, born in 1830, crowned 1833, abdicated 1870, died April 9, 1904. Her husband, the Infante Francis d'Assisi, born 1822, died in 1902.

The King's grand aunt, the Infanta Louisa, widow of the Duke of Montpensier (son of King Louis Philippe of France), now dead, was the mother of a son and three daughters: 1. The wife of the late Count of Paris and mother of the French pretender, the Duke of Orleans; 2. The late Queen Mercedes, wife of Alphonso XII., deceased; 3. The Infanta Christina, also deceased.

A second cousin of the King was Don Carlos, born 1848, the pretender to the Spanish throne, who died July 18, 1909, leaving a son, Prince Jaime, born 1870, the present pretender, and four daughters.

The Spanish reigning family are Bourbons, descendants of King Louis XIV. of France.

SERVIA.

Peter I., King of Servia, born in Belgrade, 1846, son of Alexander Karageorgiev, Prince of Servia from 1842 to 1858. Was proclaimed King on the night of June 10-11, 1903, by the officers of the Servian Army after they had murdered King Alexander and Queen Draga, and was crowned in October, 1904. King Peter I. was married in 1883 to Princess Zorka of Montenegro, who died in 1890. He has two sons and a daughter—George (who renounced his right to the throne in 1900), Alexander and Helen.

King Peter is descended from Karageorge, a peasant, who was the leader of the insurrection against Turkey in 1804. He reigned as Prince of Servia from 1804 to 1813, when he was supplanted by the Obrenovic during a second insurrection.

SWEDEN.

Gustaf V., King of Sweden, born June 16, 1858; son of Oscar II., and great-grandson of Marshal Bernadotte. He married, 1881, the Princess Victoria of Baden, and has had three sons, the eldest of whom is the Crown Prince (Gustavus Adolphus, who married in 1905 Princess Margaret of Connaught) and has two sons, born 1906 and 1907. The King's other sons are: Prince Wilhelm, born 1884, and married, 1903, the Grand Duchess Maria Pawlovna of Russia, and Prince Eric, born 1889. The King has three brothers: Prince Oscar, born 1856, married Lady Riba Munck, one of his mother's maids of honor, and relinquished his rights to the throne; Prince Carl, born 1861, and married, 1897, Princess Ingeborg, second daughter of the King of Denmark, and Prince Eugene, born 1865. The King has a niece, Louise, married to the King of Denmark. The royal family comes from Napoleon's Marshal Bernadotte, a Frenchman, who was elected heir-apparent to the crown of Sweden in 1810 and became King in 1818.

WÜRTTEMBERG.

William II., King of Württemberg, born February 25, 1848, succeeded his uncle, King Charles I., October 6, 1891. He married, 1877, Princess Marie of Waudeck, who died leaving a daughter, Pauline, born 1877, and married, 1893, Prince Frederick of Wied. The King married, second, Princess Charlotte of Schaumburg-Lippe by whom he has no children. As the King has no male descendants, the heir presumptive is his distant kinsman, Duke Albert, born 1865, married to the Archduchess Margareta, niece of the Emperor of Austria, who died in 1902, and has three sons and three daughters.

The French Pretenders.

BONAPARTIST.

Of the Emperor Napoleon I. and his brothers Joseph and Louis, male issue is now extinct. The Emperor's brothers Lucien and Jérôme are represented by the following living descendants, and they constitute the present Imperialist house of France:

Prince Victor Napoleon (of the house of Jérôme), born July 18, 1862, is the son of the late Prince Napoleon (who died March 18, 1891) and the Princess Clotilde, sister of the late King Humbert of Italy. The Prince has been recognized by his party as the undisputed head of the Bonaparte family. He lives in Brussels and ismorganatically married, and has had three children. His only brother, Prince Louis Napoleon, born 1864, is a general in the Russian Army, and is unmarried. His sister, Princess Letitia, born 1866, is the widow of Prince Amadeus of Italy, her own uncle, by whom she had a son, Prince Humbert, born 1889.

The late aunt of Prince Victor Napoleon, the Princess Mathilde, born 1820; married, 1840, Prince Demidoff of Russia; died in 1904 without children.

Prince Charles Napoleon, brother of the late Cardinal Bonaparte, who died February 12, 1898, was the last representative of the eldest son of Napoleon's brother Lucien, in the male line. He was born 1839; was married and had two daughters—Marie, wife of Lieutenant Gottl. of the Italian Army, and Eugénie, unmarried. He had three sisters, married respectively to the Marquis of Roccavione, Count Primoli and Prince Gabrelli, who have descendants.

Prince Roland Bonaparte is the only living male cousin of Prince Charles Napoleon. He is a son of the late Prince Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte; was born 1858; married, 1880, the daughter of Blanc, one of the proprietors of the Monte Carlo gambling-hell. His wife died in 1882, leaving him a daughter and a fortune. He has one sister, Jeanne, born 1861, and married to the Marquis de Villeneuve.

Ex-Empress Eugénie, widow of Emperor Napoleon III., was a daughter of Count Cyrien de Montijo, a Spanish grandee, and was born May 5, 1826. She married 1853. Became a widow, 1873. Her only son, Prince Louis Napoleon, was killed in Zululand in 1879.

BOURBON—ORLEANIST.

Philippa, Duke of Orleans, born 1869, succeeded his father, the late Count of Paris, in 1894, as the head of the royal family of France. He married, in 1896, the Archduchess Marie-Dorothea, daughter of the Archduke Joseph, cousin of the Emperor of Austria. His mother (still living) was the Spanish Infanta Louise of Montpensier, and he has one brother, the Duke of Montpensier, and four sisters—Princess Amélie, married to the King of Portugal; Helena, married to the Duke of Aosta, nephew of the late King Humbert of Italy; Isabel, married to the Duke of Guise, son of the Duke of Chartres, and Louise, married to Prince Charles of Bourbon, grandson of King Ferdinand II., of Naples.

The only uncle of the Duke of Orleans is the Duke of Chartres, born 1840, and married to a daughter of the Prince of Joinville. The issue are two daughters and two sons, the eldest son being Prince Henry, born 1867 (died at Saigon, Cochin-China, in 1901); the second, the Duke of Guise; the eldest daughter, Princess Marie, being married to Prince Waldemar of Denmark, and the second daughter, Princess Marguerite, being married (in 1896) to Patrice MacMahon, Duke of Magenta.

The grand uncles of the Duke of Orleans (who were the sons of King Louis Philippe) are all dead. They were the Prince of Joinville, born 1818, died 1900, married to a daughter of Pedro I. of Brazil, and had one daughter and one son, the Duke of Penthièvre, born 1845, Henry, Duke of Aumale, born 1822, died (childless) 1897; Anthony, Duke of Montpensier, born 1824, died 1890 (married, 1852, a sister of Queen Isabella of Spain, and had a daughter, the wife of the Count of Paris, and a son, Prince Anthony, born 1866, who married, 1888, his cousin, the Infanta Dulcine of Spain), and Louis, Duke of Nemours, born 1814, died 1896. He was the father of two daughters, the Princess Craxtorska, deceased, and Princess Blanche of Orleans, and two sons, the eldest being the Count of Eu, born 1842, married to a daughter of Pedro II. of Brazil, and having three children and the second the Duke of Alençon, born 1844, and married to a Bavarian princess (who was burned in the Paris bazaar fire in 1897), and having two children.

By the death of the Count of Chambord, in 1883, the elder line of the Bourbons of France became extinct, and the right of succession merged in the Count of Paris, grandson of King Louis Philippe, representative of the younger, or Orleans, line.

Estimates of area and present population are by Whitaker, and in some cases by the "Statesman's Year-Book," except for British Africa and the late accessions there, which are corrected by Ravenstein's figures. The entire population of the empire, according to the estimates of the "Statesman's Year-Book," is 394,246,882, and the total area, 11,343,706. The East Indian possessions extend over a territory larger than the continent of Europe without Russia; but the North American possessions are greater still, and, inclusive of Hudson's Bay and the great lakes, have a larger area than the whole of Europe. British Africa and Australasia are the next possessions in size.

The British Parliament.

THE supreme legislative power of the British Empire is, by its constitution, vested in Parliament. This body consists of two houses, the Lords and the Commons.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The House of Lords is composed of the whole Peerage of England and of the United Kingdom, and of certain representatives of the peerages of Scotland and Ireland, but many members of these latter have also English titles which give them seats in the House. The Duke of Buccleuch sits as Earl of Doncaster, and the Duke of Leinster as Viscount Leinster. The House at present consists of 3 Princes of the Blood, 2 Archbishops, 22 Dukes, 23 Marquises, 124 Earls, 40 Viscounts, 24 Bishops, 335 Barons, 16 Scottish Representative Peers elected for each Parliament, and 28 Irish Representative Peers elected for life—in all, 617 members.

The Lord Chancellor of England is always the Speaker of the House of Lords.

The World's Shipping Losses.

THE annual return issued by Lloyd's Register on the losses sustained by the world's mercantile marine by wrecks, collisions, breaking up, etc., shows that during 1908 the gross reduction in the effective mercantile marine of the world amounted to 800 vessels of 809,292 tons, excluding all vessels of less than 100 tons. Of this total, 382 vessels of 566,487 tons were steamers and 418 of 242,805 tons were sailing vessels. The figures for the previous ten years are as follows:

	Steamers		Sailing Vessels			Steamers		Sailing Vessels
	No.	Tons gross.	No.	Tons net		No.	Tons gross	No.	Tons net
1898	322	463,241	819	357,484	1903	326	479,081	596	300,722
1899	330	469,621	666	313,887	1904	344	512,879	463	225,266
1900	296	385,304	552	290,878	1905	382	527,978	501	264,376
1901	268	366,584	538	295,984	1906	378	509,707	567	307,105
1902	301	408,363	571	292,327	1907	356	565,119	512	286,105

Steamers have a much greater immunity from disaster than have sailing vessels. Merchant navies which exceed a total of 1,000,000 tons are those of the United Kingdom, the British colonies, the United States of America, France, Germany, Italy, Norway and Japan. The percentage of steamers and sailing vessels lost by the United Kingdom during 1908 was 1.57, while the average of the percentages for the next six countries was 2.63.

*The area and population of the newly created Territory of Quintana Roo is included in Yucatan in the table.

The present Constitution of Mexico bears date February 5, 1857, with subsequent amendments. By its terms Mexico is considered a Federative Republic, divided into States, nineteen at the outset, but at present twenty-seven in number, with three Territories and one Federal District, each having a right to manage its own local affairs, while the whole are bound together in one body politic by fundamental and constitutional laws. The powers of the Federal Government are divided into three branches—the legislative, executive, and judicial. The legislative power is vested in a Congress, consisting of a House of Representatives and a Senate; the executive in a President, and the judicial in Federal Courts. Representatives elected by the suffrage of all male adults, at the rate of one member for 40,000 inhabitants, hold their places for two years. The qualifications requisite are to be twenty-five years of age and a resident in the State. The Senate consists of two members from each State, of at least thirty years of age, who hold their places for four years. Senators are elected indirectly, half of them being renewed every two years. The members of both Houses receive salaries of $3,000 each a year.

The President is elected by electors popularly chosen in a general election and holds office for six years. According to the last Amendment of the Constitution, it does not prohibit his re-election. In case of his sudden disability, the Vice-President, who is also permanent President of the Senate, officiates in his place. Congress has to meet annually, from September 16 to December 15, and from April 1 to May 31, and a permanent committee of both Houses sits during the recesses.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

The Federal revenues estimated for the fiscal year that ends June 30, 1910, are $97,261,000.00; disbursements, $96,935,402.11. Value of imports, year ended June 30, 1908, were $221,757,464.21. Value of exports, year ended June 30, 1908, were $242,740,201.07.

ARMY AND NAVY.

The army consists of infantry, 26,000; engineers, 766; artillery, 2,304; cavalry, 8,454; rural guards of police, 2,365; gendarmerie, 250; total, 37,103. There are over 3,000 officers. There are six gunboats of from 1,000 to 1,300 tons, armed with rapid-firing four-inch guns and with rapid-firing six pounders; a transport of 1,600 tons, armed with 57 mm guns; another transport of 900 tons; two training ships, one of steam, 1,300 tons, armed with 12 cm. and 57 mm., and the other, a sailing ship of 700 tons. There are, also, several small revenue cutters watching the coast on both oceans; a naval school, a navy-yard, and a floating dock at Vera Cruz, and a shipyard at Guaymas. The Military School is at Chapultepec.

NATIONAL DEBT.

The national debt is $138,838,900 gold, and $142,116,950 payable in silver.

High Commissioner in London, England, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G. C. M. G. Salary, $10,000.

The Dominion of Canada has an area of 3,720,665 square miles (excluding the Hudson Bay, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and all tidal waters) and comprises one-sixteenth of the land surface of the globe. It is the largest of all the British possessions, Australia, the next in size, containing 2,943,691 square miles. The Government of Canada is federal, centred at Ottawa, which city is the capital of the Dominion, while the provinces have their respective local Legislatures. The head of the Federal Government is the Governor-General, appointed by the King of Great Britain, and holding office for five years, his salary being paid by the Dominion Government.

The Lieutenant-Governors of the several provinces are appointed by the Federal Government for a term of five years. The Legislatures are elected by the people of each province. The highest Court in the Dominion is the Supreme Court, composed of a Chief Justice and five Judges, each of whom receives a salary of $9,000 per annum, except the Chief Justice, who is paid an additional $1,000. From the decisions of this Court the only tribunal to which appeal can be made is to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council of Great Britain. The only other Federal Court is the Exchequer Court, presided over by a single Judge, for trying cases connected with the revenue. Salary $3,000. All others are of a provincial character, limited to jurisdiction in their respective provinces only.

The above returns were compiled from the reports of the International Bureau of American Republics.

The Bureau was established at Washington under the recommendation of the Pan-American Conference of 1890, for the purpose of maintaining closer relations of commerce and friendship between the American Republics. At the Pan-American Conference at Mexico in 1901, its scope was enlarged, while at the Third Pan-American Conference held at Rio de Janeiro in 1906 a resolution was passed for its reorganization upon broader lines, so that it should become a world-recognized and practical institution for the development of Pan-American commerce and comity. For statement of its general purposes see page 500.

The list of Directors who have administered the affairs of the Bureau since it was organized is as follows: William E. Curtis, 1890-1893; Clinton Furbish, 1893-1897; Joseph P. Smith, 1897-1898; Frederic Emory, 1898-1899; W. W. Rockhill, 1899-1905; William C. Fox, 1905-1907; John Barrett, 1907.

Work is nearly completed on the new building of the Bureau, located on the Van Ness Park site, Seventeenth and B Streets, Washington, for which Mr. Andrew Carnegie gave $750,000 and the different republics $250,000, making a total of $1,000,000 available for the new home and grounds of the Bureau.

* Egypt and the Egyptian Soudan, although nominally under the suzerainty of Turkey, are really controlled by Great Britain, and it is only a matter of time as to when they will be incorporated into the British Empire. Adding Egypt and the Soudan to the Empire would increase the figures above given to 3,207,700 square miles and 50,316,019 population.

The remaining territory of Africa unoccupied is a part of the great Desert of Sahara and the Independent States of Abyssinia and Liberia. Even this territory, except the last, is destined to pass under the power of the Europeans. The tabular figures are from "The Statesman's Year-Book."

 Note.—The population of Chinese cities other than Canton, Peking, and Shanghai is omitted, because reports respecting it are utterly untrustworthy. There are forty or more Chinese cities whose inhabitants are numbered by rumor at from 200,000 to 1,000,000 each, but no official censuses have ever been taken; and setting aside consideration of the Oriental tendency to exaggeration, there is reason to believe that the estimates of population in many instances covered districts of country bearing the same names as the cities, instead of definite municipalities.

PROPORTION OF SEXES IN THE UNITED STATES.

(Extracts from Census Bulletin No. 14.)

MORE MALES THAN FEMALES IN THE UNITED STATES.

The whole population of continental United States was first counted with distinction of sex in 1820. During the seventy years from 1830 to 1900 the absolute excess of males was greater at each census than at any preceding census with one exception—that of 1870—when the excess of males was less than in 1850 and 1860.

This reduction of the excess of males between 1860 and 1870, by about 300,000, was doubtless due to the deaths in the Civil War and the diminished immigration during the decade.

The greatest relative excess of males was in 1890, when in each 10,000 people there were 242 more males than females.

By 1900 this excess had decreased to 216 in 10,000, less than the relative excess in 1890 and 1860, but greater than that at each other census.

In continental United States there are 1,638,321 more males than females, or about two in each 100 people.

Probably in the population of the world, as a whole, and certainly in that half of it which has been counted with distinction of sex, there are several millions more males than females.

In continental United States, however, the relative excess of males is greater than the average for all countries.

Europe has an excess of females; every other continent, so far as known, has an excess of males.

The divisions of continental United States with the smallest proportion of males are the District of Columbia (47.4 per cent.), Massachusetts (48.7 per cent.), and Rhode Island (49.1 per cent.); those with the largest are Wyoming (62.9 per cent.), and Montana (61.6 per cent.).

As a rule sparsely settled regions have an excess of males and densely settled regions an excess of females.

CITIES HAVE MORE FEMALES THAN MALES.

American cities as a rule have more females than males. In the 1,861 cities, each having in 1900 at least 2,500 inhabitants, there were 201,959 more females than males, and this notwithstanding the many western cities which contained more males than females, and the enormous number of foreign-born in the country, five-ninths of them male, and a large proportion of them living in the cities.

This tendency of American cities to develop a population having a majority of females had increased since 1890, when, in the 1,490 cities, each having at least 2,500 inhabitants, there were 6,929 more males than females.

While the excess of 6,929 males in American cities in 1890 became an excess of 210,959 females in American cities in 1900, the excess of 1,519,559 males in country districts in 1890 became an excess of 1,840,280 males in 1900.

Or, expressing the facts in ratios, of each 1,000 inhabitants of such cities in 1890, 500 were males and in 1900, 497 were males; of each 1,000 inhabitants living outside these cities in 1890, 519 were males, and in 1900 520 were males. The difference thus in the number of males or of females between an average thousand of city and of country population in 1890 was 19, and in 1900, 23.

WOMEN LIVE LONGER THAN MEN.

Notwithstanding the great excess of males in the total population of the United States, there are two periods of life at which the reported number of females is greater. One, extending from about eighty-three years of age to the end of life, is probably due mainly to the longer average life of woman; the other, from sixteen to twenty-five, is probably apparent rather than real, and due mainly to the greater number of women who claim, erroneously, to belong to this age period.

In 1900, among the 13,367,147 persons attending school, 499 in each 1,000 were male and 501 female; in 1890, in the same class, 510 per 1,000 were male and 490 female.

INCREASING PROPORTION OF GIRLS AMONG SCHOOL CHILDREN.

In all races and in all parts of the country there has been a decided increase since 1890 in the proportion of females among persons attending school. This increase is due mainly to the increase in the proportion of young women among persons at least fifteen years of age attending school, the increase at this age period being nearly five times as great as at any other, and more than three times as great as the average increase for all ages.

DEATH RATE HIGHER FOR MALES THAN FEMALES.

The death rate of males in the registration area of the United States in 1900 was 19.0 per 1,000, and that of females 16.6 per 1,000, the former having a death rate higher by about one-seventh than the latter. In the 346 registration cities the death rate of males was 20.0, and that of females 17.2 per 1,000, the male rate exceeding the female by one-sixth. In the rest of the registration area the male death rate was 15.8 and that of females 15.0 per 1,000, the male rate exceeding the female by one-nineteenth.

*The average size of families was 4.7 persons in 1900, against 5 in 1890 and 5.6 in 1850. Of the 15,963,965 private families in 1900, 14,042,546 had male heads and 1,921,419 female heads.

†Of 7,218,755 persons owning their homes in 1900, 5,064,848 were native whites, 1,730,970 were foreign whites, 372,444 were negroes, 48,219 were Indians, and 2,274 Chinese and Japanese.

The density of population is obtained by dividing the population of each State and Territory and of the United States by its total land area in square miles at each census. In computing density of population for the United States, the areas and population of Alaska and Hawaii in 1900, of Alaska in 1890, and of Indian Territory in 1860, 1870, and 1880 are not considered. The area of Indian reservations, outside of Indian Territory, is included in the area of the States and Territories in which they are severally situated, and in that of the United States, prior to 1890, although the population of these Indian reservations was not ascertained, and, for this reason, cannot be considered in figuring density of population at the censuses prior to 1890.

The density of population of the United States, exclusive of Alaska and Hawaii, according to the Census of 1900, is 25.6—that is, there were in the United States in 1900, on the average, 25.6 inhabitants to the square mile, using land surface only. At the Census of 1790 there were less than 5 inhabitants to the square mile, so that the density of the population of the country has increased in 110 years more than fivefold, although the land area of the country in 1900, exclusive of Alaska and Hawaii, was more than three and one-half times what it was in 1790.

NOTE.—The figures relating to conjugal condition are not absolute, as the statements as to those married and unmarried are apt to be incorrectly reported, partly through unintentional misstatement and partly through a desire to conceal the facts. For instance, an incorrect return may be made through lack of knowledge, in the case of boarders and lodgers (particularly men) who are reported as single when in fact they are or have been married; or from motives of concealment, in the case of divorced persons who report themselves as single, of couples who have separated but are not legally divorced, or of persons who are not lawfully married.

* Including all persons in the military and naval service of the United States. † Including all persons of negro descent.

The whole number of persons of school age—that is, from 5 to 20 years of age, inclusive—in 1900 is 26,110,788, of whom 21,573,492 are from 5 to 17 years of age and 4,537,296 from 18 to 20 years of age. These figures include, however, 21,523 persons of school age reported in Alaska, Hawaii, Indian Territory, and on Indian reservations. Eliminating the latter from the account there are native born, 24,689,118; foreign born, 1,204,147; native white (native parents), 14,775,476; native white (foreign parents), 6,371,221; foreign white, 1,193,443; colored, 3,553,125; persons of negro descent, 3,485,188; males, 12,972,994; females, 12,920,271.

The number of males of voting age is 21,329,819, of which there are native born, 16,227,285; foreign born, 5,102,534; native white (native parents), 10,636,898; native white (foreign parents), 3,466,721; foreign white, 4,932,524; colored, 2,293,676; persons of negro descent, 2,065,539.

The ratio of population to males of voting age in the entire country is 3.6. This ratio varies, however, for the several elements of the population, the ratio of negro population to negro males of voting age being 4.3.

A R E A.—According to the Census of 1900, the largest county in the United States is Custer County, Montana, which has 20,430 square miles. The smallest is Bristol County, Rhode Island, which has 25 square miles.

* No enumeration of mulattoes was taken in 1900. The returns of 1890 include quadroons and octroons. † The whole United States being 100 per cent., the ratios show what proportion of the whole resides in each specified State. ‡ Less than one-tenth of one per cent.

The ten counties in the United States having the largest negro population are, in percentages, Isaquena, Miss., 94.0; Tensas, La., 93.5; Madison, La., 92.7; East Carroll, La., 91.6; Beaufort, S. C., 90.5; Tanna, Miss., 90.5; Washington, Miss., 89.7; Coahoma, Miss., 88.2; Leflore, Miss., 88.2; Bolivar, Miss., 88.1.

The negro population of cities having the largest number of negroes in 1900 was: Washington, D. C., 86,702; Baltimore, Md., 79,258; New Orleans, La., 77,714; Philadelphia, Pa., 62,613; New York City, 60,666; Memphis, Tenn., 49,910; Louisville, Ky., 39,139; Atlanta, Ga., 35,727; St. Louis, Mo., 35,516; Richmond, Va., 32,230; Charleston, S. C., 31,522; Chicago, Ill., 30,150; Nashville, Tenn., 30,044; Savannah, Ga., 28,090.

More than three-fourths (77.3 per cent.) of the negroes live in the country districts. Illiteracy among negroes is about seven times as common as among whites. There are 3,992,337 negroes in Continental United States engaged in gainful occupations. The death rate of negroes in the registration area in 1900 was 30.2 per cent.; that of whites in the same area was 17.3 per cent.

The proportion of negro children to negro women 15 to 49 years of age was largest in 1880 and smallest in 1900. There has been uniformly a larger proportion of negro children than of white children. That difference more than doubled between 1860 and 1880, but in 1900 it was less than half what it was in 1880 and less than at any other census except 1860.

Though the negroes have a larger proportion of children than the whites, it has been noticed that the whites of the South have a larger proportion than the whites in other sections of the country.

At the two censuses preceding the Civil War, the proportion of children for the two races at the South was substantially the same. The immediate effect of the Civil War and Reconstruction, if the figures of 1870 may be trusted to that extent, was to reduce the proportion of children among Southern whites by about one-eighth, and among negroes by about one twenty-fifth. The following decade saw an increase in the proportion for each race, but as the decrease among the negroes, 1860 to 1870, has been less, so was the increase, 1870 to 1880, greater. But between 1880 and 1900 there was a decrease of 160 in the number of negro children at the South to 1,000 negro women, and a decrease of only 75 white children to 1,000 white women. As a result, in 1900 there were for the first time more white children than negro children at the South to 1,000 women.

This table was prepared by the Census Office. The centre of the negro population in 1890 was near Rome, Ga., and was travelling Gulfward.

The centre of area of the United States, excluding Alaska and Hawaii and other recent accessions, is in Northern Kansas, in approximate latitude 39° 55', and approximate longitude 98° 50'. The centre of population is therefore about three-fourths of a degree south and more than thirteen degrees east of the centre of area.

The above summary shows that of the 21,329,819 males of voting age in 1900, 19,002,279, or 89.1 per cent. were literate, and 2,327,540, or 10.9 per cent. were illiterate. By "illiterate" is meant all persons who can neither read nor write, or who can read but not write. There is a very large percentage of illiterates among each of the several classes of colored males of voting age, and a considerable proportion also among foreign white males of voting age. Of the two classes of native white males of voting age much the larger proportion of illiterates is found among those of native parentage, 5.8 per cent. of this class of voters being illiterate as compared with 2 per cent. for native white males of voting age who are of foreign parentage.

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The municipal government of the District of Columbia is vested by act of Congress approved June 11, 1878, in three Commissioners, two of whom are appointed by the President from citizens of the District having had three years' residence therein immediately preceding that appointment, and confirmed by the Senate. The other Commissioner is detailed by the President of the United States from the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, and must have lineal rank senior to Captain, or be a Captain who has served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army. The Commissioners appoint the subordinate official service of said government, except the Board of Education, which is appointed by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. The present Commissioners are H. B. F. Macfarland (Republican), President, whose term will expire May 5, 1909; Henry L. West (Democrat), whose term will expire February 1, 1909; Major Jay J. Morrow (non-partisan), Corps of Engineers, United States Army, detailed during the pleasure of the President of the United States, Secretary William Tindall. Offices of Commissioners, 464 Louisiana Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Three separate local government, existed in the District of Columbia from its establishment until 1871, namely: the City of Washington, the Town of Georgetown, and the Levy Court. The latter had jurisdiction over the portion of the District of Columbia outside of the city and town mentioned. All three of these governments were abolished by an act of Congress approved February 21, 1871, which provided a territorial form of government for the entire District of Columbia, with a Governor, Secretary, Board of Public Works, and Council, appointed by the President of the United States, and a House of Delegates and a delegate in Congress elected by the citizens of said district.

604 United States Military Academy at West Point.

EACH Senator, Congressional District, and Territory—also the District of Columbia, Porto Rico, Alaska, and Hawaii—is entitled to have one cadet at the Academy. There are also forty appointments at large, specially conferred by the President of the United States. The number of students is thus limited to 533.

Appointments are usually made one year in advance of date of admission, by the Secretary of War, upon the nomination of the Senator or Representative. These nominations may either be made after competitive examination or given direct, at the option of the Representative. The Representative may nominate two legally qualified second candidates, to be designated alternates. The alternates will receive from the War Department a letter of appointment, and will be examined with the regular appointee, and the best qualified will be admitted to the Academy in the event of the failure of the principal to pass the prescribed preliminary examinations. Appointees to the Military Academy must be between seventeen and twenty-two years of age, free from any infirmity which may render them unfit for military service, and able to pass a careful examination in English grammar, English composition, English literature, algebra through quadratic equations, plane geometry, descriptive geography and the elements of physical geography, especially the geography of the United States, United States history, the outlines of general history. The Secretary of War is authorized to permit not exceeding four Filipinos, to be designated, one for each class, by the Philippine Commission, to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy at West Point; Provided, That the Filipinos undergoing instruction, shall receive the same pay, allowances, and emoluments as are authorized by law for cadets at the Military Academy appointed from the United States, to be paid out of the same appropriations; And provided further, That said Filipinos undergoing instruction on graduation shall be eligible only to commissions in the Philippine Scouts. And the provisions of Section 1321, Revised Statutes are modified in the case of the Filipinos undergoing instruction, so as to require them to engage to serve for eight years, unless sooner discharged, in the Philippine Scouts.

The course of instruction, which is quite thorough, requires four years, and is largely mathematical and professional. The principal subjects taught are mathematics, English, French, drawing, drill regulations of all arms of the service, natural and experimental philosophy, chemistry, chemical physics, mineralogy, geology, electricity, history, international, consitutional, and military law, Spanish, civil and military engineering, art and science of war, and ordnance and gunnery. About one-fourth of those appointed usually fail to pass the preliminary examinations, and but little over one-half the remainder are finally graduated. The discipline is very strict—even more so than in the army—and the enforcement of penalties for offences is inflexible rather than severe. Academic duties begin September 1 and continue until June 1. Examinations are held in each December and June, and cadets found proficient in studies and correct in conduct are given the particular standing in their class to which their merits entitle them, while those cadets deficient in either conduct or studies are discharged.

From about the middle of June to the end of August cadets live in camp, engaged only in military duties and receiving practical military instruction. Cadets are allowed but one leave of absence during the four years' course, and this is granted at the expiration of the first two years. The pay of a cadet is $709.50 per year, and, with proper economy, is sufficient for his support. The number of students at the Academy is usually about four hundred and fifty.

Upon graduating cadets are commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Army. The whole number of graduates from 1802 to 1909, inclusive, has been 4,852. It is virtually absolutely necessary for a person seeking an appointment to apply to his Senator or Member of Congress. The appointments by the President are usually restricted to sons of officers of the army and navy, who, by reason of their shifting residence, due to the necessities of the service, find it next to impossible to obtain an appointment otherwise. The Superintendent is Colonel Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., and the military and academic staff consists of 110 persons. Capt. Joseph S. Herron, 2d Cavalry, is adjutant.

United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

THE students of the Naval Academy are called Midshipmen. Two Midshipmen are allowed for each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, two for the District of Columbia, and five each year from the United States at large. The appointments from the District of Columbia and five each year at large are made by the President. One Midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the President, on the recommendation of the Governor of Porto Rico. The Congressional appointments are equitably distributed, so that as soon as practicable each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress may appoint one Midshipman during each Congress. The course for Midshipmen is six years—four years at the Academy, when the succeeding appointment is made, and two years at sea, at the expiration of which time the examination for graduation takes place. Midshipmen who pass the examination for final graduation are appointed to fill vacancies in the lower grade of the Line of the Navy, in the order of merit as determined by the Academic Board of the Naval Academy. The act of June 29, 1906, prescribes that the Secretary of the Navy shall as soon as possible after June 1 of each year preceding the graduation of Midshipmen in the succeeding year, notify in writing each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress of any vacancy that will exist at the Naval Academy because of such graduation, and which he shall be entitled to fill by nomination of a candidate and one or more alternates therefor. The nomination of a candidate and alternate or alternates to fill said vacancy shall be made upon the recommendation of the Senator, Representative, or Delegate, if such recommendation is made by March 4 of the year following that in which said notice in writing is given, but if it is not made by that time the Secretary of the Navy shall fill the vacancy by appointment of an actual resident of the State, Congressional District, or Territory, as the case may be, in which the vacancy will exist, who shall have been for at least two years immediately preceding the date of his appointment an actual and bona fide resident of the State, Congressional District, or Territory in which the vacancy will exist, and of the legal qualification under the law as now provided. Candidates allowed for Congressional Districts, for Territories, and for the District of Columbia must be actual residents. Candidates at the time of their examination must be physically sound, well formed, and of robust constitution. Attention will also be paid to the stature of the candidate, and no one manifestly under size for his age will be received at the Academy. The height of candidates for admission shall not be less than 5 feet 2 inches between the ages of 16 and 18 years, and not less than 5 feet 4 inches between the ages of 18 and 20 years; and the minimum weight at 16 years of age shall be 100 pounds, with an increase of not less than 5 pounds for each additional year or fraction of a year over one-half. Any marked deviation in the relative height and weight to the age of a candidate will add materially to the consideration for rejection. Candidates must be unmarried, and any Midshipman who shall marry, or who shall be found to be married, before his graduation, shall be dismissed from the service, and no Midshipman may marry between the date of his graduation from the Naval Academy and his final graduation after two years' service at sea, except by permission of the Secretary of the Navy. All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of 16 and 20 years. The pay of a Midshipman is $600, beginning at the date of admission. The regulations regarding places and times of examinations and subjects of examinations may be obtained by addressing the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Dept., Washington, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF MINDANAO.—Headquarters Zamboanga, P. I. Commander, Brig.-Gen. John J. Pershing.

The Triple Alliance.

Comparing the combined land and sea forces of the Triple Alliance with those of the Triple Entente, an Italian staff officer places the army of the Alliance (Germany, Austria and Italy) at 4,550,000 men, with 9,544 guns, and its navies at 411 ships, including torpedo boats and submarines, with 1,217,757 tons displacement, and 4,202 naval guns. The corresponding figures for the united forces of Great Britain, France and Russia are: Armies, 4,025,000, with 8,972 guns, and navies, 1,005 vessels, of 2,883,322 tons displacement, and 8,635 guns. Italy is the weakest of the six Powers, but if she forsook the Triple Alliance and joined the Entente then the Austro-German combination's army would number 3,750,000 men and 7,864 guns, and the combined navies 346 ships, with 2,892 guns. This combination would face the quadruple entente's 4,885,000 soldiers, with 10,652 guns, and 1,160 ships, of 3,241,322 tons displacement, and 9,945 guns.—Army and Navy Journal.

(a) No organized militia. Alaska has no militia, though provision is made for such if need arises. Guam and Samoa have each a small provisional force, used more for police purposes than for military. The Philippines have a constabulary force which can be used either for police or war purposes, provided the latter is on the islands. Porto Rico has a regiment of eight companies of infantry which is a part of the army. The enlisted men of this regiment are natives of Porto Rico. The reserve militia in the Southern States is assumed to include negroes capable of bearing arms.

Intercollegiate Athletic Association OF THE UNITED STATES.

Organized in December, 1905, on the initiative of New York University, with over sixty universities and colleges as members; includes every important college in the United States except Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell. President, Capt. Palmer B. Pierce, U. S. A.; Secretary, Prof. F. W. Nicholson, Middletown, Ct. Annual meeting is held each year in New York City in the week after Christmas.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ENLISTMENT.

The term of enlistment in the Navy is four years, except for boys under eighteen, who enlist for minority, with the consent of parents or guardian. Minors over eighteen are enlisted without the consent of parents or guardian, but they must furnish a birth certificate or verified written statement of parent or guardian as to their age. Only American citizens of good character who may reasonably be expected to remain in the service are enlisted, and every applicant must pass the required physical examination, be able to read and write English and take the oath of allegiance. No boy under seventeen can be enlisted except by special permission from the Department.

Information regarding rates, with pay, opportunities for advancement, allowances, etc., can be obtained by addressing: BUREAU OF NAVIGATION, NAVY DEPARTMENT.

The origin of the Navy Department may be said to date from October 13, 1775, when Congress authorized the equipment of two cruisers, mounting respectively 10 and 14 guns. Before the end of that year 15 more vessels of from 20 to 36 guns were authorized. The affairs of the Navy were at that time intrusted to a "Marine Committee." In 1798 the present department was formally created, and Benjamin Stoddart appointed the first Secretary.

NAVY-YARDS.

1. Brooklyn Navy-Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.
2. Charlestown Navy-Yard, Boston, Mass.
3. Portsmouth Navy-Yard, near Norfolk, Va.
4. Kittery Navy-Yard, opposite Portsmouth, N. H.
5. Philadelphia Navy-Yard, Philadelphia, Pa.
6. Mare Island Navy-Yard, near San Francisco, Cal.
7. Washington City Navy-Yard, Washington, D. C.
8. Puget Sound Navy Yard, Bremerton, Wash.

There are naval stations at New Orleans, La.; Port Royal, S. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Key West, Fla.; Pensacola, Fla.; Algiers, La.; Great Lakes, North Chicago, Ill.; a torpedo and training station at Newport, R. I., and a training station on Yerba Buena Island, Cal., and the Naval War College, Newport, R. I.

Naval stations have been established at Tutuila, Samoa; Island of Guam; San Juan, Porto Rico; Culebra, W. I., Guantanamo, Cuba; Honolulu, H. I., and Cavite, Philippine Islands. The latter has become an important naval base for the Asiatic squadron.

OLD VESSELS.

There are in the Navy a small number of old vessels which are unserviceable for war purposes. A number of these vessels are in service as receiving ships at the principal navy yards.

TUGS.

There are 45 tugs in the Naval Service, of which the Potomac has a displacement of 785 tons, and the two smallest, the Chickasaw and Rapido, 100 and 148 tons respectively. These vessels are distributed among the various naval stations in the United States and the Philippine Islands. The new sea-going tugs, Patapsco and Patuxent, of 755 tons each, are in course of construction.

VESSELS USED BY NAVAL MILITIA.

The following vessels have been assigned to the various naval militia: Alleen, Alert, Alvarado, Don Juan de Austria, Dorothea, Essex, Gopher, Gloucester, Hawk, Huntress, Inca, Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon, Machias, Nashville, Onida, Portsmouth, Puritan, Sandoval, Sylvia, Vixen, Wasp and Yantic.

*Generally one-half sea pay. Officers paid under old navy pay lose one half pay for each day not performing active duty. Officers receiving army pay are allowed 30 days' leave per year with full shore pay.

All officers paid under this table, below the rank of Rear-Admiral, are entitled to 10 per cent. increase upon the full yearly pay of their grades for each and every period of five years' service as "longevity pay," computed upon their total actual service in the Navy or Marine Corps, provided that the total amount of such increase shall not exceed 40 per cent. upon the full yearly pay of their grade.

Officers of the line, medical and pay corps, commissioned prior to July 1, 1899, are entitled to receive pay according to the then existing law whenever it is in excess of the pay of officers of corresponding rank in the Army.

All officers on sea duty and all officers on shore duty beyond the continental limits of the United States shall while so serving receive ten per centum additional of their salaries and increase as above provided, and such increase shall commence from reporting for duty on board ship or the date of sailing from the United States for shore duty beyond seas or to join a ship in foreign waters.

Commandants' clerks receive from $1,000 to $1,800 a year.

Petty officers (masters-at-arms, boatswains' mates, gunners' mates, gun captains, quartermasters, machinists, hospital stewards, yeomen, bandmasters, first musicians, coxswains, electricians, boiler-makers, coppersmiths, blacksmiths, plumbers and fitters, sailmakers' mates, carpenters' mates, oilers, printers, painters, water tenders, and hospital apprentices (first class) receive from $396 to $924 a year.

The pay of first-class seamen per month is $26; seamen gunners, $23; firemen, first class, $38; musicians, first class, $34.

The pay of second-class seamen per month is: Ordinary seamen, $21; firemen, second class, $33; shipwrights, $27; musicians, second class, $33.

The pay of third-class seamen per month is: Landsmen, for training, $17; coal passers, $24; apprentices, third class, $10.

By the Act of May 18, 1908, the pay of all active and retired enlisted men of the Navy was increased 10 per centum.

The Principal Languages of the World.

There are said to be 3,424 spoken languages or dialects in the world. These are distributed as follows:

America	1,624	Asia	937	Europe	587	Africa	276
The English language is spoken by more than 150,000,000 of people.
The German	"	"	"	"	"	"	120,000,000
The Russian	"	"	"	"	"	"	90,000,000
The French	"	"	"	"	"	"	60,000,000
The Spanish	"	"	"	"	"	"	55,000,000
The Italian	"	"	"	"	"	"	40,000,000
The Portuguese	"	"	"	"	"	"	30,000,000

The English language contains approximately 600,000 words. Of this total nearly one-half consists of scientific terminology seldom met outside of text-books and of archaic, obsolescent or obsolete terms.

An examination of 100,000 words of the language shows them to comprise:
 60,000 words of Teutonic origin.
 30,000 words of Greek or Latin origin.
 10,000 words derived from other (miscellaneous) foreign sources.

As regards the number of words in the principal other languages no estimate of any practical value has been made in recent years, but existing dictionaries show the following facts:

The vocabulary of the New Standard Dictionary of the English Language aggregates approximately 425,000 words.

The German word-book (Kürschner's Universal-Konversations-Lexikon) contains not more than 300,000 words including personal names.

Grimm's Dictionary of the German Language contains approximately 150,000 words.

Littre's Dictionary of the French Language contains approximately 210,000 words.

Dahl's Dictionary of the Russian Language contains approximately 140,000 words.

Carlos de Ochoa's Dictionary of the Spanish Language contains approximately 120,000 words.

Petrocchi's Dictionary of the Italian Language contains approximately 140,000 words.

This table was prepared by F. H. Vizetelly, Managing Editor of the "Standard Dictionary."

Electoral votes necessary to a choice..... 242
 Under the Federal census of population to be taken in 1910 there will be a new apportionment of electoral votes, which will be in force at the Presidential election of 1912. Arizona having at the election of 1906 rejected joint Statehood with New Mexico under the permissory act of Congress, neither will attain Statehood before the next Presidential election unless Congress admits them separately in the meanwhile.

* Seating capacity is given from information of the best possible authority, but as some theatres are able to add extra seats during important engagements the figures, in a few cases, are likely to vary slightly. There is also, usually, standing room for a limited number of people. Theatre-goers should consult daily papers as to time performances begin.

The cost each season of operating all the theatres in Greater New York, exclusive of the two grand opera houses, by careful estimates is computed to be about $17,368,000.

MUSEUMS.—Metropolitan Museum of Art, 5th Ave. and 82d St. (Central Park); open free to the public every week day (except Mon. and Fri., when admission is 25 cents) from 10 A. M. to half hour before sunset, and on Sundays from 1 P. M. to half hour before sunset, also Saturdays from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. Museum of Natural History, 8th Ave. and 77th St., open week days from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., Sunday from 1 to 5 P. M., also on holidays and Tues. and Sat. evenings; admission free. Aquarium, Castle Garden, Battery Park. Zoological Gardens, Central Park, entrance 5th Ave. and 64th St., and at Bronx Park, 182d St. and Southern Boulevard; admission free, except on Mon. and Thurs., when 25c. is charged. Botanical Gardens (Bronx Park) open daily 10 A. M. to 4.30 P. M., free.

The hour for beginning theatrical performances in New York varies, being dictated by the length of the plays. Curtains rise between 8 and 8.30 P. M.; doors at all theatres open at 7.30 P. M. Saturday matinees are given at all theatres; mid-week matinees are given on Tuesdays, Wednesdays or Thursdays, the days varying at different theatres and attractions. A few popular-price theatres and all vaudeville houses give daily matinees. Such afternoon performances begin at 2 P. M.

The standard price for the best seats in New York theatres of the first class is $2, the scale grading down to fifty cents, according to location. In cases of the appearance of great celebrities, an additional charge is sometimes, but not often, made.

The standard price for the best seats at the so-called popular-price theatres is $1, the scale grading down to twenty-five cents, according to location. At these theatres matinee seats are usually sold at reduced rates.

The standard price for the best seats at the Metropolitan and Manhattan Opera Houses is $5, the scale grading down to $1, according to location. At these houses seats and boxes are sold by annual subscription also. At the Metropolitan Opera House some of the boxes are leased or owned outright; such boxes are valued as high as $100,000.

In the number, beauty and convenience of its theatres New York now leads all other cities of the world. Architecturally and in art treasures, however, some of the municipal and State endowed theatres of Continental Europe still excel. The New York Hippodrome, seating 5,600 people, is the largest and finest place of amusement of its kind in the world.

The Court of Appeals of the State of New York has decided that a theatre ticket is a personal contract which may be cancelled at the will of the management of the theatre. But the holder of a ticket which entitles him to a seat at a given time and place of amusement, upon being refused admission, must be refunded the full price of such ticket at the box office.

The New Theatre, at Central Park West, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third Streets, is the first serious attempt to found a privately endowed theatre in this country. It was organized in 1906 with a capital stock of about $1,000,000. It was opened on November 8, 1906, with a performance of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra." It is altruistic in purpose, its profits being devoted to a permanent endowment fund, out of which pensions will eventually be given to the members of its stock company in case of age or disability. The structure itself, built of Indiana limestone and marble, and handsomely appointed, is the finest of its kind on the American continent. Carrere and Hastings are the architects. The theatre's officers are: William K. Vanderbilt, President; Clarence H. Mackay and William B. Osgood, Vice-Presidents; Otto H. Kahn, Treasurer; Henry Rogers Winthrop, Secretary. The directorate in immediate control is composed of Winthrop Ames, Director; Lee Shubert, Manager; John Corbin, Literary Manager. The executive staff consists of Loui. Calvert, producer of classic dramas; George Foster Platt, producer of modern dramas; Wilfrid North and Frederick Stanhope, assistant producers; Elliott Schenck, musical director; Edward Hamilton Bell, art director; Claude L. Hagen, technical director; Edward E. Lyons, acting manager; Jed F. Shaw, treasurer, and Van Ness Harwood, general representative. The personnel of its first stock company embraces Julia Marlowe, Edward H. Sothern, Rose Coghlan, Mrs. Sol Smith, Albert Bruning, Louis Calvert, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Rowland Buckstone, Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Edith Cartwright, Jessie Busley, Olive Wyndham, Beverly Sitgreaves, Mrs. Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh, Ben Johnson, William McVay, Wilfrid North, Henry Stanford, A. E. Anson, Charles Balsar, Leah Bateman-Hunter, Thais Lawton, Olive Terry, Elsie H. Kearns, Vida Sutton, Pedro de Cordoba, Harry Melick, Jacob Wendell, Jr., and Master John Tausey. No long runs of plays, however successful, will be attempted. Standard prices of theatres of the first class will prevail, although annual subscriptions for seats are taken and the thirty founders own boxes by virtue of their $25,000 contribution each to the original fund. Performances of opera comique are given twice weekly, such performances being under the control of the directorate of the Metropolitan Opera House, with singers of the Metropolitan Opera Company in the casts and choruses.

A Shakespearian Table.

PROFESSOR ROLFE, the Shakespearian scholar, has counted the lines which the principal characters in Shakespeare's plays have to speak. His rule was to consider parts of lines, beginnings and endings of speeches as full lines. This is the result:

Lines to Speak.	Lines to Speak.	Lines to Speak.
Richard III..... 1,161	Cleopatra..... 670	Viola..... 353
Iago..... 1,117	Prospero..... 665	Julia ("Two Gentlemen")..... 323

Richard II..... 765	Isabella..... 426	Perdita..... 129
Brutus..... 727	Desdemona..... 389	Cordelia..... 115

Henry V. as king and prince (in "Henry IV." and "Henry V.") has 1,987 lines to speak, and Falstaff, in both parts of "Henry IV." and "Henry V." and in the "Merry Wives," has 1,895.

The Stage in New York City During 1909.

A RECORD OF NEW PLAYS AND REVIVALS FROM DECEMBER 1, 1908, TO DECEMBER 1, 1909.

THERE are in New York City about seventy-four theatres devoted to drama, opera, spectacles, concerts, vaudeville, and other forms of stage entertainment (see WORLD ALMANAC, 1910). Six more are projected or in course of construction. The total number of events, changes of bill, special performances, trials of plays, etc., in all these theatres during the regular season, which, roughly estimated, extends over forty weeks, approximates 1,300. Of the above mentioned number of theatres, thirty-four are producing houses, devoted to productions and runs of their own plays, or to those of producing managers who are not theatre managers, and also to revivals of standard plays. The following summary of dramatic events includes all the productions and revivals in these producing houses, but excludes the Irving Place (German) Theatre and the two grand opera houses. At the Irving Place about forty productions and revivals are made during each season of thirty weeks.

Number of Producing Theatres, 31.

Season is reckoned from the general opening of the theatres in the Autumn of 1908 until their closing in the late Spring of 1909, or, in the cases of runs that continued into the Summer, until July 1.

Owing to the great number of theatres in New York (Manhattan) and the experimental character of some of the productions a considerable percentage of which prove either to be failures or are of only insignificant interest, no attempt has been made in the following lists to include every play presented between November 30, 1908, and December 1, 1909. Care has been observed, however, to enumerate the new dramas and musical comedies, the revivals of classic plays and the reappearance of successful plays of other seasons which, in their successes or failures, were conspicuous during the year in the theatrical affairs of New York.

Of the runs of important dramas and musical comedies, produced between August 1 and December 1, 1908, that extended into 1909, "The Man From Home," a comedy with William Hodge, lasted 63 weeks at the Astor; "The Gentleman From Mississippi," a satirical comedy with Thomas Wise and Douglas Fairbanks, 53 weeks at the Bijou and Aerial; "Sporting Days," "The Battle in The Skies" and "Birdland" spectacles, 41 weeks at the Hippodrome; "The Travelling Salesman," a light comedy, 35 weeks at the Liberty and Gaiety; "Love Watches," a farce, with Billie Burke, 22 weeks at the Lyceum, "The Blue Mouse," a farce, with Mabel Barrison, 22 weeks at the Lyric; "Miss Innocence," a musical comedy, with Anna Held, 22 weeks at the New York; "The Devil," a satirical comedy, with George Arliss, 21 weeks at the Belasco; "The Patriot," a farce, with William Collier, 20 weeks at the Garick; "Samson," a melodrama, with William Gillette, 19 weeks at the Criterion; "The Fighting Hope," a drama, with Blanche Bates, 29 weeks at the Stuyvesant and Belasco; "Jack Straw," a farce, with John Drew, 14 weeks at the Empire; "Lady Frederick," a comedy, with Ethel Barrymore, 12 weeks at the Hudson; "Via Wireless," a melodrama, 11 weeks at the Liberty; "The Prima Donna," a comic opera, with Fritz Scheff, 9 weeks at the Knickerbocker; "Salvation Nell," a melodrama, with Mrs. Fiske, 7½ weeks at the Hackett, and "The Man Who Stood Still," a comedy, with Louis Mann, 7 weeks at the Circle.

Banks in Manhattan and Bronx.

THE Clearing-House is at 77 Cedar Street, Manhattan Borough. Wm. Sherer is manager, Wm. J. Gilpin, assistant manager. Fifty banks are associated for the purpose of exchanging the checks and bills they hold against each other. Other banks, not members of the association, clear through members. The representatives of the members appear at the Clearing-House at 10 o'clock A. M. every business day, with the checks and bills to be exchanged. The resulting balances are ascertained in about an hour, and before half-past one o'clock those indebted pay their balances, and after that hour the other banks receive the amounts due them. The Clearing-House has been in operation since 1853.

Following are extracts from the Manager's annual report for year ending September 30, 1909: The Clearing-House transactions for the year have been as follows: Exchanges, $99,257,662.411; balances, $4,194,484.023; total transactions, $103,452,156.439. The average daily transactions: Exchanges, $326,505,463; balances, $13,797,644; total, $340,303,113. Total transactions since organization of Clearing-House (56 years): Exchanges, $2,029,505,795,760; balances, $93,889,243,-199; total, $2,123,395,038,959.

Banks are open from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., and on Saturdays from 10 A. M. to 12 noon. Commercial paper, except sight or demand bills, falling due on Saturday is payable on the following business day.

The Public Schools of New York City.

(By A. Emerson Palmer, Secretary, Board of Education, New York City.)

Public education in New York City began with the founding of the Free School Society (after 1826 the Public School Society) in 1805. The society began in a small way, depending upon private subscriptions, but soon received aid from the city. It gradually expanded, and until 1842 had control of the moneys supplied for educational purposes by the city and the common school fund of the State. This condition of affairs was unique. The society, being under the direction of high-minded citizens, enjoyed a large degree of public confidence. So anomalous a system could not last, however, and by an act of the Legislature, passed in 1842, the Board of Education was established. The Public School Society continued to conduct its schools until 1853, when, by mutual consent, they were all taken over by the Board. The society at that time had more than a hundred schools; the value of the property it transferred to the city was estimated at $450,000, and during its existence it educated some 600,000 children. The Board of Education was an elective body from 1842 to 1871, the members being chosen first by wards, and from 1863 by school districts; since 1871 they have been appointed by the Mayor. In Brooklyn a Board of Education was created in 1843; the members were chosen by the Common Council until 1862, in which year the appointing power was vested in the Mayor. When consolidation took effect, in 1898, separate school boards were provided for the several boroughs (Manhattan and the Bronx being united), with a central Board of Education (a delegated body) having charge of the finances, the erection and repair of buildings, the acquiring of sites, the purchase and distribution of supplies, etc. This system was dropped on the revision of the Charter in 1901, and since 1902 there has been one Board of Education for the city. It consists of forty-six members—twenty-two for Manhattan, fourteen for Brooklyn, four each for the Bronx and Queens, and two for Richmond. Their term of office is five years.

The Board of Superintendents, consisting of the city superintendent of schools and eight associate superintendents, has large powers in the nomination, promotion, and transfer of teachers, the recommendation of text-books and scholastic supplies, the determination of courses of study, the fixing of qualifications for teachers' licenses, etc. Its important acts require the approval of the Board of Education. There are twenty-six district superintendents, whose duties are to visit schools and observe the work of teachers. The Board of Examiners (consisting of the city superintendent and four examiners) conducts all examinations for would-be teachers, and prepares eligible lists. The school superintendents and examiners, as well as the supervisor of free lectures, the superintendent of school buildings, and the superintendent of school supplies (whose duties are indicated by their titles), have terms of six years each. The Board of Education appoints all these officials, and also a secretary and auditor, having no fixed term. Principals and teachers are appointed by the Board of Education on the nomination of the Board of Superintendents. The merit system is in full operation, and teachers are appointed in order of standing. Beginners are on probation for three years, their licenses being renewable from year to year; when permanently licensed, their tenure is assured, and they cannot be removed except on charges. New teachers are appointed only after pursuing a training school course.

The budget appropriation of the Department of Education for 1909 was $27,470,736.80, of which $22,044,821.43 constituted the general school fund (for teachers' salaries). For 1910 the appropriation is $28,578,432.43, the general school fund being $23,130,014.40. A woman teacher now enters the system at $600 a year, and advances, with yearly increments of $40 to $1,240. This applies to the great majority of teachers in elementary schools. In the upper grades the maximum salaries are $1,320 and $1,440. Men teachers in these schools now start at $900 and go up to $2,400. Men principals of elementary schools receive $3,500, and for men from $900 to $3,000. Principals of high schools are paid $5,000, and $5,000 is the salary of district superintendents. Examiners receive $6,000. Associate superintendents receive $6,500. The salary of the city superintendent is $10,000. The number of elementary schools is 508—177 in Manhattan, 166 in Brooklyn, 44 in the Bronx, 87 in Queens, and 34 in Richmond. The number of high schools is nineteen. There are also three training schools for teachers and three truant schools. In the elementary schools there are 1,462 men and 14,250 women teachers; in the high schools, 584 men and 645 women. In the evening schools (high and elementary) there are 694 men and 756 women teachers. Eighty-five attendance officers enforce the Compulsory Education law. The latest available figures show the attendance as follows:

The number of new sittings supplied since September 1, 1908, has been 57,144, and the reduction in the number of part-time pupils has been 23,470.

Teachers incapacitated after thirty years' service are retired on pensions (half pay); the number of retired teachers is 1,093.

School buildings and sites are paid for with the proceeds of city bonds (corporate stock); the amount issued since consolidation has been $83,699,999.

New York Chamber of Commerce.

ORGANIZED April 5, 1768. Incorporated by George III, March 13, 1770. Reincorporated by the State of New York April 13, 1784. Its object is indicated in the following words of the original charter: "Sensible that numberless inestimable benefits have accrued to mankind from commerce; that they are, in proportion to their greater or lesser application to it, more or less opulent and potent in all countries; and that the enlargement of trade will vastly increase the value of real estates as well as the general opulence of our said colony;" and "to carry into execution, encourage, and promote, by just and lawful ways and means, such measures as will tend to promote and extend just and lawful commerce."

During the decade 1760-1770, according to Lord Sheffield's Observations, the average yearly value of American Colonial imports from Great Britain was £1,763,409, and of exports to the same country £1,044,591. Up to the evacuation of the city by the British and its occupation by the Americans, on the 25th of November, 1783, the New York Chamber of Commerce had had seven presidents, thirteen vice-presidents, eight treasurers, one secretary, and 135 members. In May, 1763, the Sandy Hook Lighthouse was lighted up for the first time. In 1786 the Chamber of Commerce first suggested the construction of the Erie Canal, and in 1784 petitioned the New York Legislature (which so ordered) that duties should be levied under a specific instead of an ad valorem tariff—a system of which the Chamber of Commerce has ever since been the constant advocate.

As a society the Chamber of Commerce is limited to fifteen hundred resident and two hundred and fifty non-resident members. Initiation fee, $50. Annual dues, $50 per annum. Non-resident members, $25 per annum.

The building of the Chamber is at 65 Liberty Street, New York. Officers: President, J. Edward Simmons; Secretary, Sereno S. Pratt; Treasurer, William H. Porter.

Distances and Postal Time from New York City.

THE distance herein shown is that via the quickest route and the lines carrying the bulk of the mails. The time is from depot to depot, taking the fastest trains of the through connections carrying the major portion of the mails. There is eighteen hour service between New York and Chicago; however, only a small quantity of mail is carried via these trains and the time of the fast mail trains is from twenty-two to twenty-four hours. The time in transit herein shown is for the quickest possible despatch and should not be taken as the average time in transit between the offices in question. The fastest time from the points named to New York in a great many cases is considerably slower than the time from New York to those points.

CENTRAL PARK.

The great park of New York extends from 59th St. to 110th St., being over 2¼ miles long, and from 5th Ave. to 8th Ave., being over half a mile wide. It covers 843 acres, of which 185 are in lakes and reservoirs and 600 in forest, wherein over half a million trees and shrubs have been planted. There are 9 miles of roads, 5¼ of bridle paths, and 31 of walks. The landscape architects of the Park were Frederick Law Olmsted and Calvert Vaux. Public park carriages can be found (except in Winter) at the entrances on 5th Ave. and 8th Ave. The fare for an extended ride through the Park is 25 cents. Work was begun on the Park in 1857. The following fanciful names have been officially applied to the several entrances to the Park: 5th Ave. and 59th St., Scholar's Gate; 6th Ave. and 59th St., Artist's Gate; 7th Ave. and 59th St., Artisan's Gate; 8th Ave. and 59th St., Merchant's Gate; 8th Ave. and 72d St., Woman's Gate; 8th Ave. and 81st St., Hunter's Gate; 8th Ave. and 85th St., Mariner's Gate; 8th Ave. and 96th St., Gate of All Saints; 8th Ave. and 100th St., Boy's Gate; 8th Ave. and 110th St., Stranger's Gate; 5th Ave. and 57th St., Student's Gate; 5th Ave. and 72d St., Children's Gate; 5th Ave. and 79th St., Miner's Gate; 5th Ave. and 90th St., Engineer's Gate; 5th Ave. and 96th St., Woodman's Gate; 5th Ave. and 102d St., Girl's Gate; 5th Ave. and 110th St., Pioneer's Gate; 6th Ave. and 110th St., Farmer's Gate; 7th Ave. and 110th St., Warrior's Gate.

FACTS ABOUT PUBLIC PARKS.

Union Square was purchased by the city in 1833 for $116,051; Madison Square, in 1847, for $65,952; Tompkins Square, in 1834, for $93,368; Washington Square, in 1837, for $77,970, and Manhattan Square, in 1833, for $54,657. The latter is assessed as a part of Central Park. The other four are assessed at over $16,000,000, and are easily worth $20,000,000, while their original cost to the city was only $353,351. Prospect Park, Brooklyn, contains 526 1-6 acres. In woodland, 110 acres; in lakes and watercourses, 77 acres; in meadows, 70 acres; in plantations, 259 1-6 acres; in drives, 9 miles; in bridle roads, 3 1-10 miles; in walks, 12 miles. Ocean Parkway is 5 1-2 miles long and 210 feet wide. Eastern Parkway is 2 1-2 miles long and 210 feet wide. London has 271 public parks, containing 17,876 acres of ground. The largest European city park is in Denmark; it contains 4,200 acres. The great forest of Northern New York covers an area of 3,588,803 acres.

Bridges in and About the City of New York.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

The bridge connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn over the East River from Park Row, Manhattan, to Sands and Washington Streets, Brooklyn, was begun January 3, 1870, and opened to traffic May 24, 1883. Total cost of the bridge to date about $22,400,000.

The tolls are: For foot passengers, free; railway fare, 8 cents, or 2 tickets for 5 cents; one horse, 8 cents; one horse and vehicle, 5 cents; two horses and vehicle, 10 cents; each extra horse above two attached to vehicle, 3 cents; bicycles, free. On August 23, 1897, the bridge railway was leased to the elevated railroad companies (now operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit), paying therefor 10 cents per car; trolley cars, 5 cents per round trip. About 125,000 surface cars cross the bridge each month. The carriageways are under control of the Bridge Commissioner, and about $75,000 per annum is derived from this source.

The following are the statistics of the structure: Width of bridge, 85 feet. Length of river span, 1,595 feet 6 inches. Length of each land span, 930 feet. Length of Brooklyn approach, 983 feet. Length of New York approach, 1,577 feet 6 inches. Total length of carriageway, 6,016 feet. Total length of the bridge, with extensions, 7,530 feet.

Size of Manhattan caisson, 172 x 102 feet. Size of Brooklyn caisson, 168 x 102 feet. Timber and iron in caisson, 5,253 cubic yards. Concrete in well holes, chambers, etc., 5,669 cubic feet. Weight of Manhattan caisson, about 7,000 tons. Weight of concrete filling, about 3,000 tons.

Manhattan tower contains 46,945 cubic yards masonry. Brooklyn tower contains 38,214 cubic yards masonry. Depth of tower foundation below high water, Brooklyn, 45 feet. Depth of tower foundation below high water, Manhattan, 78 feet. Size of towers at high water line, 140 x 59 feet. Size of towers at roof course, 136 x 53 feet. Total height of towers above high water, 272 feet.

Clear height of bridge in centre of river span above high water at 90° F., 135 feet. Height of floor at towers above high water, 119 feet 3 inches.

Grade of roadway, 34 feet in 100 feet. Height of towers above roadway, 153 feet. Size of anchorage at base, 129 x 119 feet. Size of anchorage at top, 117 x 104 feet. Height of anchorages, 89 feet front, 85 feet rear. Weight of each anchor plate, 25 tons.

Pawnbrokers' Regulations in the City of New York.

PAWNBROKERS in New York City are regulated by statute. The rate of interest fixed by law is 3 per cent. a month or any fraction of a month for the first six months, and 2 per cent. per month for each succeeding month upon any loan not exceeding $100, and 2 per cent. a month for the first six months and 1 per cent. a month for each succeeding month on any loan exceeding $100. Pledges cannot be sold until after they have been kept one year, and then at public auction by a licensed auctioneer, after publication of at least six days in two daily newspapers designated by the Mayor. Pawnbrokers pay a yearly license fee of $500 to the city and are under the control of the Mayor. The license is issued through the Bureau of Licenses, and their books must be kept open to the Mayor, Criminal Courts, Magistrates, and Police.

PROVIDENT LOAN SOCIETY (EXECUTIVE OFFICE, 346. FOURTH AVE., COR. 25TH ST.) LOANING OFFICES: 346 FOURTH AVE., 186 ELDRIDGE ST., 736 SEVENTH AVE., 105 E. 125TH ST., 409 GRAND ST. BROOKLYN, 24 GRAHAM AVE. BRONX, COURTLANDT AVE., AT 148TH ST.

Office hours: 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.; Saturday to 6 P. M. Ticket good for one year only. Loans may be paid by instalments, in sums not less than $1. Rates of interest: One per cent. per month, or any fraction thereof. Only one-half month interest charged on all loans redeemed within two weeks after date of pledge. Condition of loan, agreed to by the holder of the ticket in consideration of interest being charged at less than the rate allowed by law. The Provident Loan Society of New York shall not be liable for loss or damage by fire, breakage, dampness, theft, or moths; nor shall it be liable in any event for more than 25 per cent. in addition to the amount loaned. Otto T. Bannard, President; Frank Tucker, Vice-President; James Speyer, Treasurer; Mortimer L. Schiff, Secretary.

When making payment by instalment, the full amount of interest due on the sum loaned must be included, and the ticket must be returned. The interest due on the loan cannot be paid by instalment. The Society has thus far limited the classes of personal property on which it has made loans to clothing and so-called "jewelry," including under that designation all articles of gold or silver, precious stones, opera-glasses, eye-glasses, also men's clothing in good condition, and ladies' and men's furs.

Hack and Cab Fares in Manhattan Borough.

The legal rate of fare, of which an official copy shall be furnished by the Bureau of Licenses, and carried by every licensed hackman, shall be as follows:
 Mileage rates charged for general driving.

Cabs—
For one mile or any part thereof.....	$0.50
For each additional half mile or part thereof.....	0.25
For any stop over five minutes in a trip, for every fifteen minutes or fraction thereof..	.25
Coaches—
For one mile or any part thereof.....	$1.00
For each additional half mile or part thereof.....	.50
For any stop over five minutes in a trip, for every fifteen minutes or fraction thereof..	.40

Hourly Rates.—These hourly rates, except by special agreement, are to apply only to shopping or calling, and shall not include park or road driving, nor driving for more than three miles from the starting point:

Cabs—For one hour or any part thereof, $1.00; For each additional half hour or part thereof, 50c.
Coaches—For one hour or any part thereof, $1.50; For each additional half hour or any part thereof, 75c.

REGULATIONS.

Any vehicle kept for hire shall be deemed a public hack, and a vehicle intended to seat two persons inside shall be deemed a cab, and a vehicle intended to seat more than two persons inside shall be deemed a coach, and the term hackman shall be deemed to include owner or driver, or both.

Every hack shall be provided with a suitable lamp on each side, and shall have securely fastened across the middle of the outside of each lamp, a metal band not less than two inches in width, out of which the official number of the license shall be cut after the manner of a stencil plate, the component figures of such numbers to be not less than one and one-half inches in height, and the style of the whole to be approved by the Mayor or Chief of the Bureau of Licenses. Every licensed hack shall have the official number of the license legibly engraved or embossed upon a metal plate and affixed inside, as designated and approved by the Mayor or Chief of the Bureau of Licenses, and no licensed hack shall carry or have affixed to it, inside or outside, any number except the official number as aforesaid.

Every licensed hackman, immediately after the termination of any hiring or employment, must carefully search such hack for any property lost or left therein, and any such property, unless sooner claimed or delivered to the owner, must be taken to the nearest police station and deposited with the officer in charge within twenty-four hours after the finding thereof; and in addition a written notice, with brief particulars and description of the property, must be forwarded at once to the Bureau of Licenses.

Every licensed hackman shall have the right to demand payment of the legal fare in advance, and may refuse employment unless so prepaid, but no licensed hackman shall otherwise refuse or neglect to convey any orderly person or persons, upon request, anywhere in the city, unless previously engaged or unable so to do. No licensed hackman shall carry any other person than the passenger first employing a hack without the consent of said passenger.

Twenty blocks north and south to constitute a mile; seven blocks between the numbered and lettered avenues will be deemed a mile, as from Avenue B to Sixth Avenue or from Second Avenue to Ninth Avenue.

TAXICAB SERVICE.—For each taxicab intended to seat two persons inside and driven by motive power, for one-half mile or any part thereof, 30 cents. For each additional quarter mile or any part thereof, 10 cents. For waiting time at the rate of $1 per hour. For each taxicab intended to seat four persons inside and driven by motive power, for one-half mile or any part thereof, 40 cents. For each additional quarter mile or part thereof, 10 cents. For waiting time at the rate of $1.50 per hour. For one piece of baggage, 20 cents. No charge shall be made for handbags, dress suit cases or child under five years of age by any taxicab. All rates of fare shall depend on the number of persons which each vehicle is intended to seat inside and not on the number of persons actually carried.

No owner or driver of any taxicab which seeks patrons on the streets, avenues or highways of the City of New York, or occupies space thereon by reason of a permit or license from the City of New York, shall exact any fare from a passenger greater than that set forth in the official schedule of rates above provided.

Disputes as to rates and distances may be settled by the police, or complaints may be made to the Bureau of Licenses, Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, City Hall, New York.
