Ebenezer Day Alvord lived on several different farms during his life, though his chief occupation was training and dealing in horses, as well as keeping a livery stable. Owing to his piety and integrity, he was dubbed the "Pious Horse Jockey." One of his fellow-townsmen in Florence, Mass., was once heard to remark: "Ebeneyer Alvord is the smartest business man that ever struck this town." His widow was living at Leyden, Mass., in 1903.
