Theodore Watson Alvord was educated in the public schools of Winsted, Conn., and in 1870 entered the works of the Henry Spring Co., which was organized in New Haven, Conn., the previous year and removed to Winsted. The springs manufactured by the company combine to a remarkable degree both strength and elasticity, though of very light weight, and they are in demand for light buggies and carriages. In a short time Mr. Alvord became Superintendent of these works, which position he still holds.

Mrs. Alvord's father was born at Malden Bradley, Wiltshire, Eng.; her mother at Corfe Castle, Wareham, Dorset, Eng.
