

This cruel Romish triumph proved to be the last throee of that old hierarchy in the British isle. The flag of the Reformation has ever since prevailed by the help of the Dudley family, as well as others, and long may she wave.

DR. WM. E. DUDLEY.*

William Edmondson Dudley, born at Templemore, Co. Tipperary, Ireland, 4th May, 1838. Educated for the medical profession at the Meath Hospital and Royal College of Surgeons in Dublin, during the years 1859-62. He obtained his degree L. R. C. S. J. in 1862, and his degree of Physician the following year at Edinburgh as L. R. C. P. E. He competed for admission to the Army Medical Staff the same year, and got third place out of forty five competitors. He was gazetted Asstant Surgeon to the 76th Regiment, the 19th Sept. 1863. He went to the East Indies with his Regiment in Jan. 1864, and served in Madras Presidency for four years, when he returned to England from ill health. Ordered again on foreign service he was sent to Bombay, in which Presidency he served five years, chiefly with Royal Artillery. In June, 1873, at Kinkee, he married the second daughter of Major General George Prince Sealy, Royal Artillery. He returned to England in Jan., 1876, and was ordered on active service to Zululand in Feb. 1879. He had charge of the Herwen Hospital for the receipt of the wounded from the battle of Ginginglova, and afterwards was Principal Medical Officer at Fort Pearson on the river Tugela under Major General Crealock, C. B., until he was struck down with dysentery, followed by an attack of coast fever which brought him to death's door. He was invalided home and got the Zulu war medal with clasp. He was again ordered on active service in 1880, during the Afghan War, and served with the 78th Highlanders at Candahar, during the early part of 1881. Returning with them to India, in June, 1881, he was stationed at Poona till April, 1884, when he was
