

A striking aerial view of a French aviation camp not far from the front line trenches. Three planes have just alighted on the flying field before the hangars. The aviators' barracks can be seen in the rear. Note the numerous motor supply trucks parked about the camp.
Kadel & Herbert.

This pious poilu has just received the padre's blessing after attending mass at the improvised chapel "Aumonier" somewhere on the French front.
French O.F. from Pict. Press.

Two German snipers are made prisoners in the ruins of a recaptured French village. They were captured in the cellar of an old wine factory and both were summarily shot within a half hour after this picture was taken.
Kadel & Herbert.

A splendid example of the deservedly famous French camouflage. A French "75" in hiding from enemy planes.

King Albert reviews his brave troops somewhere on the Belgian coast. The Queen of Belgium can be made out just behind the first post.