A Modern Battle Staged By 1,200 West Point Cadets In the Hills of Central Valley

Exclusive Photos. (c) Kadel & Herbert.

Advance scouts watch the movements of the enemy, who are lining up in battle formation, and—

Signal to the advance guard of the infantry on their side to advance to meet the enemy. Meanwhile—

An officer of the United States Army, who acts as umpire, watches the movements and—

Note the long line of artillery coming up to support the infantry, while—

Sharpshooters in the advance guard pick off the enemy's advancing scouts; then—

There soon is heard the rattle of the infantry firing from ambush at an 800-yard range, to which—

Is quickly added the roar of the field batteries firing from a 1500-yard range on the enemy's position; then—

When evening comes at the mess tents friends and enemies get together to discuss the lessons learned in seven hours of fighting.