

On the Russian front during a gas attack—soldiers wearing gas masks. Note the Red Cross attendant giving first aid to the wounded and overcome soldiers.

International Film.

This picture, taken from far below, shows a daring steeplejack a mere speck, above the rest of the world, at work on the flag-pole atop of the Singer Building.

Underwood & Underwood.

A new photograph of Mme. Botchkareff, the brave woman leader of the Battalion of Death, the company of Russian women who went into service, each with her cyanide of potassium in case of capture by the Germans.

Pictorial Press.

Every camp and cantonment has its Y. M. C. A. Building, fitted out with magazines, newspapers and writing materials, where our boys in khaki may loaf and smoke between whiles.

Press Ill.

Premier Lloyd George of England inspected the women war workers at Birkenhead the other day. He has come to the window to acknowledge the crowd's applause.

Underwood & Underwood.

This is not the Gary plan in operation. The Brooklyn Navy Yard has firewood to give away, and with the prohibitive prices of coal it is a popular place these cool days with the children of the poor.

Social Press.